Bars sawn, suspect gone

A foresighted prisoner sawed his way out of a cell at Newton police headquarters Wednesday morning and escaped.

James B. McGonagle, Jr., 33, address unknown, was arrested at about 4 a.m.Wednesdayafter police responded to an alarm at the Manet-Lake Street Pharmacy, 17 Commonwealth Ave., and found the man on the roof of the building.

Burglar tools and a bag of drugs were found after Police police officers Sgt. Frank Halloran, Sgt. Robert McDonald, Harold Travers, and Robert Magni arrested McGonagle.

McGonagle escaped between 8 and 8:25 a.m. by sawing out two bars of the cell in which he was confined, according to police. After leaving the cell he left the building by a back door from the lockup leading to stairs down to the parking lot. The back door is locked from the outside, but by state law, according to Lt. Charles Feeley, must have a "panic bar" for exit from the inside.

Since McGonagle had no visitors, and no saw has been found, police theorize that he had secreted on or in his person a "jeweler's wire."

A local jeweler described the cutting instrument as a "lapidary's wire," made primarily for cutting stone is also used for impregnated cutting glass and metal. It is a wire with diamond dust during manufacture. Normally used with a handle at each end, it can also be used by simply holding the wire with both hands.

The wire is fine and can be rolled up into a small coil, easily hidden.

McGonagle was placed in a cell not under surveillance by a TV camera. Usually prisoners are put into the first two cells, which are under surveillance by a closed-circuit television, but the first cell was out of service because of a plumbing breakdown.

The second cell was occupied by

Upper Falls
Suspect arson in station blaze

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

The Newton Upper Falls railroad station, built in 1852, was destroyed by two fires within an hour of each other at around midnight Monday.

On Tuesday the MBTA, owner of the building, received notice in the mail that Newton Building Commissioner Allan Fraser had condemned the building about two weeks ago.

Both fires in the 1 ½ story wood frame building were believed to be set.

Fire Chief Harvey Preble said rubbish was set on fire before the first telephone alarm came in at 11:09 p.m. Monday, July 4, and all fire apparatus returned 20 minutes later.

The second telephone alarm for the structure came in at 12:44 a.m. Tuesday, with all engines returning at 12:59 a.m.

Chief Preble said engines 3, 6, 7, and ladder 2 responded to both fires along with Assistant Chief Edward Reilly.

The second fire was believed to set with a flammable liquid, the chief said.

Upper Falls historian Kenneth Newcomb, who had been working with other residents to preserve the historic building, said of the destruction, "It kind of makes you a little embittered."

Newcomb cynically said Tuesday morning, "It was appropriate to lose your heritage on the Fourth of July.

"I'm not going to get involved with anything historical," (again)," he said, citing inactivity of the governmental bodies and officials that he had been prodding to take care of the station.

Brew Clark, director of the MBTA Commuter Rail Division, said Wednesday that he would have the remaining burned out structure torn down as soon as he is sure no historical group is interested in it.

Clark said ConRail, who deserted the building about 18 months ago, had boarded it up four times until now to prevent vandals and vagrants from getting in.

Historian Newcomb, who had been working for six months to save station, said vandalism had only gotten an upper hand over efforts of preservation within the past eight months.

Building Commissioner Fraser said the building was condemned because it had been "burned, was structurally unsafe, was open to the weather, was abandoned, and was unused."

This was one of about eight dilapidated buildings in the city Fraser has ordered torn down or repaired, he said.

HUD funds Paul St. project

A 43-unit apartment house for the elderly, proposed for Paul Street, Newton Centre, can be built soon if the Board of Aldermen approves height of the five-story building.

A commitment for nearly $2 million has been obtained from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for the project, Planning Director and one-man Community Development Authority Charles Thomas, disclosed the HUD approval last week, and filed a request for permissive use to allow the building to exceed 40 feet in height.

A zoning amendment passed in October, 1976, restricts the height of building in Business A and B districts. The Paul Street site, adjacent to Centre Street, is in Business B.

The amendment was passed to calm neighborhood fears that a six-story office building might be built on the Paul Street land, after it appeared that the elderly housing would not go through.

The Paul Street housing was originally proposed at 60 units, then was gradually cut to the present 43 units. The final reduction was thought to have been so severe that HUD would not approve the cost, now fixed at $1,813,283 all-inclusive.

Thomas said this week he is aiming at a construction contract signed by Oct. 1; construction itself will take an estimated 18 months.

Neighbors are still opposed to the height of the building. A public hearing is set for Aug. 8 before the Land Use Committee.

Police-fire dispatch unit sidetracked

Another look at the proposed central dispatch system for the police and fire departments and its possible ramifications caused the Board of Aldermen Tuesday night at the last minute to return the matter to the Finance Committee to get some questions answered.

One major question will be whether the savings projected over the next 10 years are accurately calculated.

The central dispatch system, which will cost the city $665,000, has been highly touted by the mayor's office and the police department as providing not only the centralized computer equipment that is felt necessary for efficiency but also a saving of $1.2 million over the next 10 years.

The total cost, $977,000, includes $312,000 from the federal government.

Part of the saving will be accomplished by staffing the center primarily with civilian employees at a lower pay than the current pay for the 28 police officers and firefighters who staff the two separate operations now.

Lower Falls residents to meet with city July 14 on housing

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

At a neighborhood meeting July 14, city officials will try to a pacify Lower Falls residents about housing to be built in the Lower Falls renewal area.

At a public hearing recently, some Lower Falls residents appeared to be under the impression that the original plan called definitely for an equal mix of low-income, moderate-income and market-rental units in the 60 apartments to be built and now feel that current plans for HUD subsidy of all 60 units is a breach of faith.

The request for proposal for development, in fact, said, "If feasible, the Newton Redevelopment Authority would prefer an equal distribution of low-, moderate-, and market-income housing."

At one time, financing was to have been through the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency, which would have required some market-level rentals.

Now that HUD is financing the project, the developers have requested HUD subsidy for all 60 units, in case they are unable to rent the higher-cost apartments.

Residents do not want all 60 units to be occupied by low-income tenants.

The urban renewal plan called for 20-25 units for low-income elderly tenants, and "the majority of the balance" to be for low- and moderate-income tenants, and subsequently determined that an equal number of low-, moderate-, and market-(high-) income rentals "would be desirable."

The meeting is scheduled for July 14 at 8 p.m. at St. Mary's Church, Concord Street, Newton Lower Falls.

In addition to members of the Planning and Development Board and the Community Development Authority, which have assumed the role of the defunct Newton Redevelopment Authority, the Land Use Committee of the Board of Aldermen has been invited.

The application of the developer, New Falls Associates, to form an urban development corporation, as well as a petition for extension of permissive use to build, will be discussed by the Land Use Committee July 21.

State rules Weeks English choices OK

A state education official has essentially dismissed a complaint by a Newton Centre woman that the Weeks Junior High School English curriculum does not supply adequate role models for women and minorities' according to a letter received by the superintendent Wendesday.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said Wednesday that Charles Glenn, director of the Bureau of Equal Educational Opportunity in the State Department of Education, sent him a copy of a letter sent to Jeanne Speizer of 80 Manemet Rd., Newton Centre.

Ms. Speizer, who holds a doctorate degree in education, had charged that the 12 books required for Weeks students to read in English do not present women and minorities in a strong enough light to satisfy Chapter 622 of the Acts of 1971.

That law prohibits discrimination in schools on the basis of sex, race, color, religion, or national origin.

Director Glenn's letter to Ms. Speizer noted that the School Department agreed to change one book in its required list — Ernest Hemingway's "Old Man in the and the Sea."

According to the superintendent Glenn said, "While the Newton schools, no doubt, have a long way to go, the evidence does not suggest they are in violation of Chapter 622."

With the materi l presented by Ms. Speizer and the administration to Glenn, he concluded that the curriculum represents the better writing of the past half century and "takes a critical stand toward its characters."

Ms. Speizer and Assistant Superintendent for Program Henry Atkins had exchanged a series of 10 letters from Dec. 31, 1976, to June 21.

On March 30 Atkins told Ms. Speizer that the Weeks English Department agreed to drop Hemingway's novel.

The English Department is considering "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," "My Antonia," "Ethan Frome," or "A Story of Sojourner Truth" to replace "The Old Man and the Sea."

In the letters to Ms. Speizer Assistant Superintendent Atkins noted that there are many books and readings available for teachers to use in the classroom that are not on the required list, and also pointed out other areas of the school curriculum, especially social studies, that include role models of for women and minorities.

In the complaint Ms. Speizer referred

Board creates new ad hoc committee

The Board of Aldermen created yet another committee of itself Tuesday night when it approved an "ad hoc committee on transportation."

The proposal was offered by Ald. Susan Schur and Carol Ann Shea.

Schur explained to the Board that now transportation matters are referred to various committees, and she thinks they should be all in one committee.

Ald. Sidney Small suggested that the Board president could be asked simply to refer all transportation-related matters to one existing committee, and Ald. John Stewart asked that the measure be sent to the Legislation & Rules Committee for a "defined function" of the new committee.

For example, Stewart said, "Do taxicabs belong to transportation?" They are now handled by the Consumer Affairs & Licenses Committee.

Stewart saw the probability of overlap and confusion among committees such as Street Traffic, City Planning and CAL.

A motion to send the proposal to the I&R Committee failed by a 9-15 vote.

The measure was passed by a 15-9 vote.

In other business the Board voted to extend until Oct. 1 strict enforcement of the fairly new sign ordinance. Amendments are expected from the Planning Department.

The appointment of William Hendrickson as the third member of the Board of Assessors was approved. The action brings the board up to full strength for the first time since March.

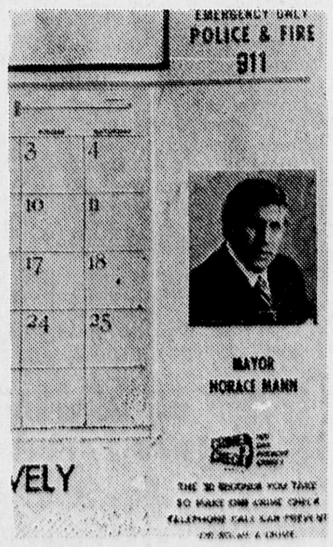

The Board approved a recommendation by the Legislation & Rules Committee that the restriction on number of terms to be served by members of the School Committee be the subject of a ballot question this November. The four-term limit in the city charter was upheld by the voters two years ago.

Free parking in municipal metered parking lots for citizens over age 65 was approved 22-2, with Ald. Wendell Bauckman and Robert Stiller opposed.

An increase in dog fines from $15 per offense of letting dogs run loose to $15 for the first offense and $25 per offense thereafter was defeated on a 12-12 vote.

Another effort to streamline business of the Board was defeated, as a rules amendment offered by Ald. Robert Tennant was voted down 19-5. Tennant wanted all proposed legislation to be

Number of potential candidates reaches 78

By CYNTHIA BLACK
of the Graphic staff

Less than one month remains before the filing deadline for candidates in the fall city elections.

As of this week, there are nine people with nomination papers for mayor, 51 with papers for aldermanic races and 18 contemplating School Committee seats.

Newton city elections are non-partisan. In races where there are more than twice as many candidates as their are seats, preliminary elections will be held in October.

Preliminary races are shaping up for mayor, alderman-at-large in Wards 6 and 8, ward alderman in Wards 1 and 3, and School Committee in Wards 1, and 2, and possibly 3.

In order to officially become a candidate, the people that now have nomination papers must have them signed by the required number of registered Newton voters and return them for certification to the Newton Election Commission no later than 5 p.m. on Aug. 2.

Once certified, the "candidate" actually becomes a candidate.

It is expected that not all people now holding nomination papers will file; some may not have enough certified signatures to qualify.

Candidates for mayor must gather 400 signatures. Candidates for alderman-at-large and School Committee need 150. Candidates for ward alderman need 50.

Mayor

The total of nine people with nomination papers for mayor has remained unchanged for several weeks.

Serious contenders for the four-year mayoral job include the incumbent, Theodore D. Mann; Ald. Eliot Cohen, chairman of the aldermanic Land Use Committee; Ald. Richard Bullwinkle, vice chairman of the aldermanic Finance Committee; and State Rep. Peter F. Harrington, a former aldermen.

The other potential candidates are: Ald. James Miller of Newton Upper Falls, completing his first term on the Board of Aldermen; David J. Berkley of Newtonville, whose base of support appears to be the Nonantum community; John F. Holden, 13 Emerson St.; Jerald Barisano, 26 Maple Pk., and Sanchia Thayer, 71 Avalon Rd.

The aldermen

Aldermanic races to date show the incumbents facing little opposition, and action centered in the wards where vacancies are occurring.

In Ward 1 both incumbent aldermen-at-large, Robert Gaynor and Joseph McDonnell, have taken out nomination papers and have no opponents yet. In contrast, the Ward 1 ward alderman seat being vacated by Ald. Andrew Magni has six potential candidates.

They are: Joseph L. Bradley, 15 Maple Ave.; Patricia Ciccone, 56 Lothrop St.,; Guido Cetrone, 41 West St.,; Anthony Gentile, 28 Lincoln Rd.; Joseph DePasquale, 24 Jones Ct.; and Theresa O'Halloran, 8 Jackson Terrace.

In Ward 2 incumbent aldermen-at-large, Edward Richmond and Terry Morris have their nomination papers and face no opponents. Incumbent Ward Ald. Thomas Concannon has a potential

Brathwaite of Waban runs for alderman-at-large in W5

Leon A. Brathwaite, 52 Rokeby Rd., Waban, has announced his candidacy for alderman-at-large from Ward 5.

In making his decision to seek elected office, Brathwaite said he considered the demands of the position and what he believes to be the needs of the city.

"Newton is a complex and sophisticated city," Brathwaite stated, "with an enormous diversity of residents, businesses, industries and resources, human, natural, and physical. My experience as an administrator in industry and over a dozen years of active service in civic affairs has given me clear insights into effecting creative solutions to the types of complex issues to be resolved in Newton.

"Newton is entering a period of transition. Steeply-rising property values and taxes, a population that is experiencing clear-cut age shifts, increasing pressures on open space and wetlands, need for housing diversity, demands for energy and resource conservation are but a few of the challenges facing our city.

"We can let these issues slide and let our children come to grips with them in the future, or we can aggressively pursue them now before solutions might be beyond our grasp," the candidate said.

"Effective planning has always been unpopular, since it represents the resolution of conflict. Newton's conflicts cannot wait until tomorrow. The issues never end; they only become more difficult to intelligently solve. We must act now to derive maximum value from city, state, regional and federal funds and programs. Newton is a community of people and we must assure that their needs are anticipated and met," he said.

Leon Brathwaite

Brathwaite is a personnel administrator with Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation. Before joining Stone & Webster, he held positions with H. P. Hood, Inc., and Norris Industries. He is treasurer of Boston Youth Motivation, Inc., and a member of the New England Society of Personnel Management. He was recently named "Black Achiever in Business" by the YMCA.

Brathwaite's civic commitments include being a member of the board and treasurer of Newton Fair Housing and Equal Rights, member of the board of the Boston Chapter of the NAACP, and a member of the Brockton Mayors Civil Rights Committee. He is also secretary of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Council of Churches, president of the Episcopal Churchmen and a member of the Episcopal Ecumenical Commission.

He received his basic education in the Engineering Department of Northeastern University, and has completed additional courses at Chamberlain and MIT, plus numerous short management courses and seminars.

Brathwaite's wife, Brenda, has been a teacher in the Newton school system for nine years, and currently teaches English-Reading at Meadowbrook Junior High School.

St. Mary of Carmine festival starts July 12

The St. Mary of Carmine Society annual festival will start July 12 with a carnival at Hawthorne Park. On July 15 the annual Tridium and Novena will be held at Our Lady's Church at 7:30 p.m. On Saturday, July 16, at Hawthorne Park, there will be a band concert by the Italian Colonial Band from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m.

An Italian mass will be celebrated Sunday, July 17, at Our Lady's at 7:30 a.m. and again at 2 p.m., at which time the highlight of the Festival, the Saint Mary of Carmine Procession will form up and wend its way down Adams St. and through Nonantum.

The festival comes to a close with another band concert at 8 p.m. at Hawthorne Park followed by a candlelight procession back to Our Lady's Church for the benediction.

Society President Tony Gentile and Procession Chairman Nunzio Leone have put much time and effort, along with many others, into making this the grandest festival yet.

Judicial Council to study juvenile juries

Because of the persistent efforts of two Newton youths, the Massachusetts Judicial Council has been requested to investigate the establishment of advisory juries, made up of young persons, in the juvenile courts.

For four years, Ralph Sherman and Jeffrey Rubin, now students at Newton South High, have been using their right of petition to get the legislature to adopt a bill to create juvenile juries.

These juries would sit at the trial of a juvenile who requested such a jury trial. With the help of their representative, David J. Mofenson, House Chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, the legislature passed and Governor Dukakis signed into law a resolve asking the Judicial Council to make recommendations and proposals concerning juvenile juries in its 1977 annual report.

"When we talk about jury by one's peers," said Mofenson, "we should mean one's peers. Legislation based on this resolve will be a substantive step forward."

The Sherman-Rubin legislation, which became the Judicial Council Resolve, would provide for a trial by jury in juvenile cases, if the child subject to a complaint requests a jury trial. This jury would be composed of lists of children, ages 15 through 17, furnished by the clerk of the juvenile clerk or principal of the public high school in the city or town in which the child resides. Jury duty would be for no longer than 10 days.

Ralph Sherman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Sherman, of 28 Kenmore Street, Newton. Jeffrey Rubin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rubin of 1504 Centre Street, Newton.

Blumenreich aldermanic candidate in Ward 6

Gene A. Blumenreich, 34, of 20 Burr Rd., Newton Centre, has announced his candidacy for alderman-at-large from Ward 6.

Blumenreich, who headed Newton's Emergency Medical Service Committee, is credited with having saved the city at least $250,000 per year in the implementation of a new ambulance service. He recommended expanded training of police officers and transfer of the vehicles to the fire department in a system which will cost far less than projected.

Blumenrich said he decided to run for alderman-at-large because, "I am convinced that city government, even in periods of fiscal austerity, can still provide excellent service and improve the quality of our daily life. This means, however, that our leaders must be innovative, willing to analyze problems and set priorities."

As chairman of the Ambulance Committee, he was primarily responsible for the training of 36 police recruits in extensive emergency medical procedures and assisting the city in the introduction and sponsorship of cardiopulmonary resuscitation courses to the general public at practically no cost to the City.

"Thanks to these courses," said Blumenreich "we were able to make a significant improvement in the quality of health care in Newton."

Blumenreich was educated at Harvard Law School and the University of Virginia. He and his wife, Peggy, are the parents of Megan, 9; Stephen 6; and Kate 3. A partner in the Boston law firm of Fine & Ambrogne, Blumenreich has long been involved in community activities. From 1970 to 1975, he served as a director and general counsel to the Cambridgeport Problem Center, one of the first multi-disciplinary service centers in the country. He helped design the center's then combination of legal, medical and social service approaches in dealing with the problems of its adolescent population. This combined approach has now been adopted by many multi-service agencies including the Newton-Wellesley Multi-Service Center.

Gene Blumenreich

He was a director and general counsel of the Lupus Erythematosus Foundation, an educational and fundraising charitable corporation for this little-known, but widespread, disease. He also played a role in bringing together representatives of similar foundations across the country and helped in forming a national foundation.

Blumenreich said that one of his major interests in the aldermanic position is in the review and formation of the City's budget.

"A budget," he explained "merely indicates how an organization uses money to perform its functions. All too often, the programs of agencies or department are forgotten when the budget is reviewed. The public suffers when needed programs are insufficiently funded while programs no longer useful continue to be funded out of habit."

As treasurer of the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Mental Health Area Board, he was responsible for establishing budget procedures for local mental health agencies, opening the budget process to citizens.

"After this was accomplished, we found and have been able to deal with some serious, but previously undetected, defects in the way we were providing mental health service to the community."

Blumenreich is a director of Town Bank and Trust Company, Brookline, and a member of its executive committee and also serves as a director of several corporations involved in printing, manufacturing, finance, chemical research and development and other business pursuits in the New England Area.

In addition to serving as chairman of the Ambulance Committee, he has also served the city as a member of the Mayor's Health Advisory Committee.

As a result of his comprehensive approach on the ambulance committee and the many areas of social concerns on which he has worked, Blumenreich reports that he has received offers of support from many diverse elements.

Tenneco given safety award

The Newton Upper Falls plant of Tenneco Chemicals, Inc., which is its polymers and plastics division, was one of the seven chemical plants in the state given a safety award by the the Manufacturing Chemists Association.

The certificate of safety is for having operated in 1976 without a disabling injury.

The safety certificate program was started 27 years ago by the Manufacturing Chemists Association's Safety and Fire Protection Committee.

Consumer group thanks Drinan for work on sugar negotiations

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Newton) has introduced a resolution calling for the President to initiate a mutual moratorium on nuclear weapons testing by the United States and the Soviet Union.

Drinan's resolution, which has now won the sponsorship of 19 other members of the House, also urges the President to submit to the U.S.S.R. and all other nations a proposal for a permanent treaty to ban all nuclear explosions.

"Our national security would never be jeopardized under my proposal," Drinan said, "because in the event of a Soviet refusal to comply with the moratorium, we could simply resume testing ourselves. The U.S.S.R. would then bear full responsibility for the continued escalation of the nuclear arms race."

Drinan said his resolution pursued the same strategy employed successfully by President Kennedy in achieving the 1963 limited nuclear test ban. At that time, Kennedy stated his intention to halt immediately all nuclear testing in the atmosphere and his expectation that the Soviet Union would follow suit.

"Once again it is in our national interest to initiate a nuclear testing moratorium," Drinan said. "It will be a crucial first step toward halting the nuclear weapons build-up that is imperiling world peace. It will also provide momentum for a successful resolution of the Salt II talks."

The Massachusetts lawmaker said his resolution would implement the goals set by President Carter, who in his first press conference as chief executive, said, "I would like to proceed quickly and aggressively with a comprehensive test ban treaty. I am in favor of eliminating the testing of all nuclear devices, instantly and completely."

Noting that his own resolution is identical to one introduced in the Senate by Senator Kennedy, Drinan said Congress "could make a lasting contribution to world peace by endorsing a nuclear test ban."

Drinan calls for nuclear testing moratorium

The president of the nationally-recognized Consumer Federation of America has issued a letter of commendation to Congressman Robert Drinan (D-Mass.) for Drinan's successful efforts to gain consumer representation at the recent international negotiations between sugar producing and consuming nations in Geneva.

Lee Richardson, one of three returning consumer representatives in the American delegation to the Geneva conference wrote Drinan, "I am pleased that your effort to gain consumer representation on the U.S. delegation to Geneva made such an impact on the State Department."

The international sugar conference in Geneva terminated last May 27 with no new agreement on the stabilization of international sugar prices. However, Cong. Drinan remained optimistic about the resumption of negotiations in September of this year.

"We intend to ensure continued consumer representation in the American delegation and continued consumer impact on major decisions about price ceilings on sugar," Drinan said.

"When we realize that each one cent increase in the wholesale price of a pound of sugar costs American consumers more than $200 million in added food costs," Drinan added, "we can appreciate the significant impact a new International Sugar Agreement will have on American sugar consumers."

In early March of this year the Massachusetts lawmaker introduced a measure to amend the Trade Act of 1974 by requiring the International Trade Commission to examine and report on the impact on domestic sugar prices if import quotas are imposed.

Drinan also initiated an effort to keep sugar prices at a reasonable level by appealing successfully to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance for consumer representation at the recent Geneva sugar negotiations.

Last week Drinan spoke out on behalf of consumers by opposing on the House floor the Carter Administration's proposed $240 million federal subsidy to the sugar industry.

Small charges Center set up to support mayor

Ald. Sidney Small, a principal supporter and advisor of mayoral candidate Ald. Eliot Cohen, this week charged that analyses of Board of Aldermen attendance and actions by a political group, Center, have been planned between incumbent Mayor Theodore Mann and the cochairman of Center.

Center consists of five people, with no formal membership group.

Small said Tuesday that in his opinion Center was established to discredit the Board of Aldermen generally, and especially those members who are running for mayor. Besides Cohen, Ald. Richard Bullwinkle and James Miller have announced their candidacies for mayor.

Small was stung by Center's first report, on the number of roll calls missed by each alderman. Small missed more roll call votes than any alderman.

Small so far maintains that he is not a candidate for reelection to the Board, where he has served for 10 years.

Small said in a prepared statement, "It is strange that Cornell (Center cochairman A. Jefferson Cornell) chose the Board of Aldermen as his focus this particular election year. . . Perhaps Mr. Cornell is seeking political office once again and is using Center as his political vehicle for exposure."

"But where is he getting his funds? Is Center involved in the campaign for the mayor?" Small's statement continued.

Cornell has run for alderman and state representative.

Small suggested that Center's motive for its activity in relation to the Board of Aldermen is not what it has claimed — to whip up some interest in the aldermanic elections.

"The motive that they must have is to make the members of the Board of Aldermen look as bad as possible so that an incompetent mayor by contrast would look good," Small said.

"It should be noted that in most all of Mayor Mann's past campaigns one of his most ardent supporters has been Mr. Cornell."

Mayor Theodore Mann denies any connection between himself and the establishment of Center. "I did not set it up," he said, "and I am not involved and have not contributed to Center." more

"Mr. Small's allegations are not true, and I'm surprised at him. The information they have had published is public information. If people are hurt by the the truth, if the shoe fits, wear it." the mayor said.

Aldermen's actions ruled legal and valid

The suggestion by a political organization, Center, that 90 items acted on by the Board of Aldermen may not be valid has been pooh-poohed by two aldermen and the city solicitor.

Center in turn this week called Board President Joseph McDonnell's response to Center "rhetorical arrogance."

Ald. Mark White also refuted publicly Center's charges that absence of quorums at some committee meetings may have invalidated actions by the full Board.

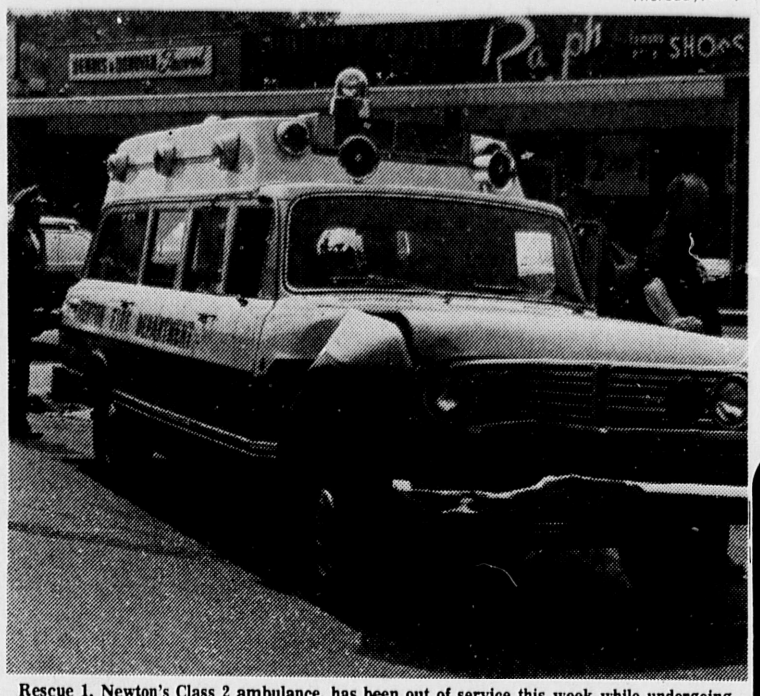

The gist of all responses to Center was that acceptance of committee reports by the Board, and the failure of any alderman to object to the lack of a quorum, constitute a waiver or suspension of the rules that require a quorum of a committee to make a recommendation.

However, City Solicitor Howard Levine said in his written opinion to McDonnell that it would be better in the future to adhere more formally to the rules and orders of the Board or amend them to provide for committee action without a quorum.

All the participants in the defense of the Board of Aldermen pointed out that the legal and binding action is that taken by the Board of Aldermen, not that taken by its committees.

Center, whose main stated purpose is to draw public attention the the election of the aldermen this fall — a race it feels will be obscured by the more politically charged contests for mayor and School Committee — said recently it plans to continue research into the matter and "hopes to present additional evidence . . . in the near future."

Although McDonnell feels an explicit waiver of the rules is not necessary, he did ask for votes to suspend the rules Tuesday night at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen when it was voting on a matter reported with a 3-1 committee vote.

Car flips in one of four accidents

A 24-year-old Newton man was injured and arrested after his car skidded on its wheels and roof toppling two street signs before coming to a stop in front of a brick wall on Washington Street early Sunday morning.

John J. Koehler of 1821 Washington St., Auburndale, was one of four persons injured in traffic accidents this weekend.

Koeller was cited by police for operating under the influence of liquor, operating to endanger, and speeding. He was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital for a bleeding cut, according to police records.

Koehler was travelling east on Washington Street in a 1973 Volvo when it hit a traffic island near Beacon Street, flipped on its roof, skidded across the westbound lane, and uprighted itself when it hit the curb' according to police reports.

The car stopped in front of a stone wall at 2055 Washington St., Newton Lower Falls.

Koehler told police a yellow Camaro cut in front of him, causing him to lose control of the car.

Police noted approximately 100 feet of skid marks on the pavement.

A West Roxbury teenager was treated and released from Newton-Wellesley Hospital following a head-on collision caused by a bee stinging a driver on Dedham Street Friday.

At 8:25 p.m. Paul A. Waters, III, 18, of 24 Rotherwood Rd., Newton Centre, was stung in the face by a bee as he was going south on Dedham Street near Sharpe Road.

The 1974 Chevrolet he was driving collided with a car of the same make and year driven by John D. Sheehan of 272 Grove St., Auburndale.

Elizabeth Rourke, 16, of 57 Graytield Ave., West Roxbury, was a passenger in Sheehan's car and received minor injuries.

Waters was cited by Officer Tyrone D. Powell for impeded operation.

Francis Dunton, 11, of 36 Green St., Newton, was treated and released from Newton-Wellesley Hospital after the car she was riding in was hit in the side by a motorcycle in King's Department Store parking lot Sunday.

John J. Fleming, 20, of 30 Everett Ave., Watertown, was driving the 1975 Honda cycle and was cited for operating without a license, according to police.

The owner of the cycle, Richard Rizzo of 126 Palfrey St., Watertown, was cited for allowing an improper person to operate a motor vehicle, according to police records.

On Monday, July 4, at 2:20 a.m. David A. Kingsley of Lakeview Gardens, Natick, was driving a 1975 Fiat when it hit a tree on Commonwealth Aveneue near Auburn Street.

Kingsley, 50, was treated and released from Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

CETA will hire 1000 jobless

The Newton Area CETA program has more than $10 million in federal funding to hire persons unemployed for more than 15 weeks and is desperately looking for qualified applicants.

Applicants are being sought for the current 300 openings, and up to 700 other jobs should be available by Aug. 30.

Richard Moynihan, director of the program under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) office in Waltham, has encouraged previous applicants for CETA jobs to renew their applications, which is a brief process.

Newton Mayor Theodore Mann, chairman of the Newton Area CETA program, was upset at federal and state authorities for not giving adequate guidance for the use of the $10 million.

However, he said at a press conference Friday that he was pleased the area got the money.

Unemployment in the 10-town area covered by this CETA subgrantee program ranges currently from 6.8 to 7.2 percent' but to be eligible for the current jobs people must not have had any income within the past 15 weeks.

To help find those unemployed people CETA will have two motor homes traveling through Newton, Waltham, Brookline, Bedford, Dover, Lexington, Lincoln, Needham, Wellesley, and Weston.

The vans will be around the area starting on Monday, July 11, but the CETA office had not confirmed the locations by Thursday morning. .

The first round of job openings comes from the granting of $2 million to public and nonprofit agencies that have found suitable work for skilled and unskilled CETA workers to perform.

In Newton there are 11 such projects, but one of them is held up because of the federal Davis-Bacon act which requires construction done with federal funds must pay workers the prevailing union wage.

State Secretary of Economic Development and Manpower Affairs Howard Smith said Thursday that Mayor Mann and CETA administrators will have to try to reach an agreement with local trade unions before construction projects funded by CETA begin.

Unions and the CETA personnel would have to agree on exactly what work in each project is covered by the Davis-Bacon act, what percentage of the total project that work involves, and whether or not that project would ever be done with other federal money in the future that would pay the prevailing wage' according to Secretary Smith.

If the two parties agree that there is construction work covered by Davis-Bacon and there is no likelihood that the work would be done without CETA money, then some compromise would be worked out.

This might invlove having unemployed union workers supervise the CETA workers, or have the union perform the construction work and the CETA workers do the rest' Smith said' depending on the type of project.

Smith also said he thinks the deadline for commitment of the $10 million for the Newton area will be extended, allowing that money to be used in the area beyond Aug. 30.

The Newton project that definitely falls under the Davis-Bacon restrictions is the winterization project for the Department of Housing Services.

Projects that have completed all stages of administrative approval in Newton include $49'330 for the Newton Free Library to train adults with limited reading skills' $8,463 to the Newton Community Service Centers for a drop-in center, $48,463 to the Newton Fire Department for updating its file system of alarm boxes, and $45,610 to Mt. Ida Junior College to improve sports areas and paths in conjunction with the Robert Gould Shaw Center.

Persons wanting to apply for a CETA job should contact the office at 141 Moody St., Waltham, 02154, 894-5924.

Ms. Reisman to sing in Mandala

Sharon F. Reisman of West Newton has been invited to be a participant in the Mandala Folk Dance Group this summer.

This summer the group, organized in 1965, will be dancing for Summerthing.

In addition, on Saturday, July 9, at the Countryside School, they will perform as part of the Arts in the Park programs offered by the Newton Recreation Department.

Sharon Reisman has been active with the New England Folk Festival Association, the MIT Folk Dance Group, and the Oberlin College Folk Dance Group. She recently graduated from Oberlin College where she majored in psychology.

Discount program supplement mailed

A supplement to the Newton Senior Citizens Discount Program directory of participating merchants has been mailed directly to the home of each senior citizen in Newton with the June issue of the Golden Times.

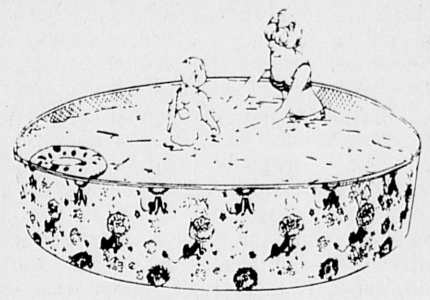

The supplement includes new participating merchants, corrections from the January, 1977, directory and businesses no longer participating in the discount program.

The discount supplement and the Golden Times were prepared by the Newton Council on Aging and the Department of Human Services.

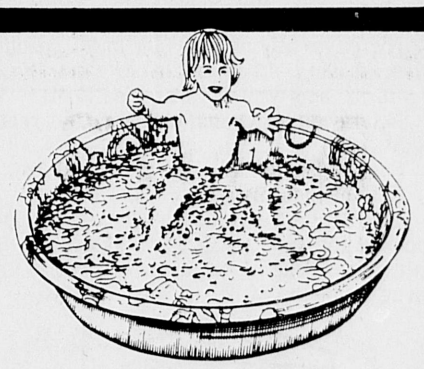

Mayor Theodore Mann urges senior citizens to take advantage of the discounts offered by the participating merchants.

Any Newton senior citizen who did not receive a copy of the June issue of the Golden Times and discount supplement should contact the Department of Human Services at 244-4700, ext. 266.

Drug use rises despite tough laws

Enforcement of criminal laws for possession of marijuana has definately decreased in recent years. Part of the reason is that such prohibitions are virtually impossible to enforce—as Americans should have learned during their experience with the 18th Amendment—but it is also because of doubts over the possible ill effects of marijuana and how much government should interfere in what may be personal matters.

Can or should government work overtime trying to keep people from injuring themselves?

Four years ago New York State enacted a very tough anti-drug law to try to stem the rising traffic in illegal drugs, particularly in New York City. The law included the death penalty for repeated pushers. It mandated prison terms. A considerable amount of money was spent in trying to enforce the law.

A committee of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York has studied the resulted.. The conclusion is that heroin use was as widespread in New York City in 1976 as it was before the law was passed. The illegal use of soft drugs such as marijuana has increased. There is, of course, no way to determine whether the increases would have been greater without the tough law.

"Marijuana taken on a regular basis, like alcohol and tobacco, is a very dangerous substance," reports Gabriel Nahas, a research professor in Columbia University's anesthesia department. Since alcohol is restricted only for minors—and not very effectively—and tobacco merely gets a warning label, is there really much sense in massive attempts to penalize the users of marijuana or even of the hard drugs?

The New York committee also reported that drug abuse of all kinds "is deeply rooted in deeper social maladies . . . is part of a wider complex of problems that includes family break-down, unemployment, poor income and education, feeble institutional structures, and loss of hope."

There is really nothing new in the conclusion. A very straight-Puritan poet three centuries ago wrote in Paradise Lost:

So farewell hope, and, with hope, farewell fear,
Farewell remorse; all good to me is lost.
Evil, be thou my good.

John Milton realized that the loss of hope opened the way to all sorts of despairing remedies. Tough laws are no answer to the drug problems of Americans.

Carter the engineer bombed B-1

Commentary by Joseph Kraft

President Carter's bold decision to kill the B-1 reflects the full interplay of forces working in Washington today. It demonstrates the importance of personality in and around the presidency, and the relative weakness of institutions and lobbies when facing complex technical choices. And it underlines again the urgency of reaching a new arms control accord with the Soviet Union.

The personal experience of Mr. Carter himself played the dominant role. For once the unfamiliarity with most policy issues which causes him to embrace conflicting goals was switched off. The technical expertise of the former engineer was in full play.

Carter was able, as no previous President, to plunge into the full details of the B-1 as a weapons system and to compare it against competing systems. Unlike previous Presidents he was not constrained by the "When in doubt, hesitate" logic. He did not, in uncertainty, take the easy decision that would have aroused only minimal controversy — the decision to buy a few of the supersonic bombers. Instead he saw clearly, and took the hard decision to kill the program entirely.

Two associates seem to have played leading roles in his decision. There was the strong and pervasisve influence of the director of the Office of Management and Budget, Bert Lance. Mr. Lance argued powerfully that the heavy cost of the B-1 would compromise the President's hope of reaching a balanced budget by the end of his first term.

Equally important was the evolving role played by Secretary of Defense Harold Brown. He believed the B-1 was a technically good aircraft. But he discovered that much the same kinds of capability could be achieved at lower cost by a cruise missile fired by a B-52 or some other standoff platform. So the case he made for the B-1 was as a kind of second-choice back-up insurance for the cruise missile. When faced with a choice between the two, he apparently came out against the bomber.

The split between Mr. Lance and Dr. Brown reflected the basic weakness of the Congress, and the lobbies of the so-called military-industrial complex. They too were divided. The B-1 had its adherents in the Air Force, in certain sectors of labor and industry, notably Rockwell which had the B-1 contract, and of course in the Congress.

But the cost of the plane, and the availability of a cheaper substitute built a strong opposition. Defense-minded Democrats such as Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington preferred the cruise missile and standoff bomber to the B-1.

The Navy and the Army had a vested interest in rapid development of the cruise missile which can be used on the sea and on land as well as in the air.

The House vote to support continued production of the B-1 was significant chiefly because of the size of the opposition. One hundred and seventy-eight Congressmen voted to kill the bomber — an enormous number for burying a weapons system as distinct from a blind, across-the-board cut in military spending. Even if the B-1 finally clears the Senate, which is highly doubtful, President Carter would have no trouble picking up the extra 60 votes in the House necessary to block funding for the bomber if its proponents fight to the bitter end.

Lastly, there is the one unfortunate result of the B-1 decision — its impact on arms control. The U.S. is now fully committed to developing the cruise missile. It is small, easy to hide, and capable of carrying nuclear as well as conventional warheads. Verification of range and destructive power present very hard problems for those seeking to write arms control agreements limiting the cruise missile.

A new arms control agreement with Russia, which was the priority item on the agenda even before the B-1 decision, now acquires even greater urgency. The arms race is hotting up in ways that could get out of control. The fact needs to be driven home to the Russians who seem not to understand the President, and that is one reason why it makes sense to hold an informal, get-acquainted summit meeting at an early date.

The uranium price conspiracy

Commentary by Gus Tyler

NEW YORK — In a matter of two years — between 1972 and 1974 — the price of uranium rose sevenfold from $6 to $42 a ton. The jump had nothing at all to do with the revered law of supply and demand. The increase was artificially imposed by a worldwide cartel — an organized monopoly that established the extortionary price by fiat.

All this was more or less of a secret until very recently. About a year ago, the Australian branch of Friends of the Earth put out a document in which they insisted that there was such a cartel that was holding meetings to set prices, to carve up world markets, and to do this while hiding the machinations. But very little mind was paid to this expose' by these Down-Under Naderites.

But now the House of Representatives Interstate and Foreign. Commerce subcommittee has come up with new evidence drawn from top executives of Gulf Oil. The cartel, it appears, held secret meetings in Paris and Johannesburg. The participants came from Canada, France, Australia, South Africa, and an English-based mining company called Rio Tinto Zinc.

Just how much this price conspiracy will cost American consumers is in dispute. Gulf Oil says it is a negligible sum. Irwin Landes, chairman of the New York State legislative committee that is digging into the operation of cartels, estimates that the cost to the citizens of his state alone will be about $1 billion in the next three years.

Whether it will cost us much or little, there is no doubt that somebody somewhere has been paying seven times as much as he normally should have been paying. And the reason is summed up in a word: cartel.

Gulf Oil says it is innocent. The Canadians pushed the giant company into the cartel. Our northern neighbor simply told Gulf that if the American company wished to continue mining uranium in Canada, the U.S. corporation would have to become a member of the cartel and would have to adhere to the rules of the club.

Rep. Albert Gore, D.-Tenn., scoffed at this excuse. "Your argument," he told the Gulf executive, "is that Gulf is some kind of corporate Patty Hearst, forced to act against your will."

The hearings have outraged the Canadian government. They insist that they are not the prime culprits. Instead they point the finger of guilt at the American corporations.

Canadian Finance Minister Donald Macdonald says that the American companies have been driving Canada and other uranium producers out of the world market by selling the precious metal at prices that were artificially low. Macdonald called these "predatory" tactics.

"We acted to protect ourselves from these predatory American tactics," he explained. "And now they're saying 'You are maintaining a cartel.'"

So now we know, from Macdonald himself, just why Canada did what it did. Its action to fix prices on uranium was purely defensive.

What does all this tell us about our vaunted system of free enterprise? It says that wherever possible, the biggies — whether governments or corporations — will try to protect themselves against the dangers of free enterprise by forming oligopolies, monopolies, cartels and other devices for fixing prices. And, of course, to continue to preserve the myth of free enterprise, it will conspire to keep the fix a secret.

Summertime and living seems easy

Commentary by Joseph Kraft

For once it's summertime and the living really is easy. No war, impeachment, election or other crisis imposes barriers to the enjoyment of sun and surf.

But we now savor an unbought ease, the product of luck more than design. The Carter administration, if it wants to preserve the sunny outlook, will have to perform far more effectively in the second half of this year than it did in the first.

At home the source of all good news comes on the economic front. The recovery from the recession of 1975 continues in a relatively strong way. Production is up, and unemployment has dipped below the 7 per cent mark for the first time in months.

Moreover, the inflation which seemed to threaten during the first quarter of this year is not gaining force rapidly. In May the consumer price index advanced at a 6 per cent annual rate – which was below the figure for three of the four previous months.

But how come the recovery is not generating a new inflation? Certainly not because President Carter has lived up to campaign promises to make a direct attack on prices and wages. On the contrary the administration has consistently backed away from battle with labor and business on that front.

It has not yet even named a new director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability – a critical post in dealing with inflation. Though a fine economist, Barry Bosworth of the Bookings Institution, is scheduled for the job, his appointment is hung up pending reorganization of the President's Executive Office. If — as is at least possible — the Council were to be pushed out of the President's office, the move would be a death blow to an already feeble effort.

So far the weak performance has been obscured by developments on the fuel and food fronts which, now as in much of the recent past, have been decisive for price behavior. The great 12 per cent inflation of 1974, for example, seems to have been largely generated by the quadrupling of oil prices in the previous year and the Russian grain shortage of the year before.

This year, fortunately, bumper crops here and in Russia assure a grain surplus. Two big new oil sources — the North Sea and the North Slope in Alaska — are coming onstream. Accordingly, fuel and food costs are expected to rise by only 7 per cent this year, for an overall rise of an estimated 6.7 per cent in consumer prices. But nobody can reasonably expect good harvests and new oil sources in coming years.

On the international side, the central fact is that President Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger turned over to the Carter administration a world at peace, with good prospects for further easing of tensions. The road to an arms accord had been opened by the Vladivostok summit with Secretary General Brezhnev.

Middle East prospects had been enormously improved by the outcome of the Lebanese civil war. Relations with the allies had been knitted up in the economic summits at Rambouillet and Puerto Rico. By support of majority rule in Rhodesia, the U.S. had been decoupled from white supremacists in Africa without becoming too deeply engaged in that continent's turbulent internal affairs.

Mr. Carter, in a kind of zero-based foreign policy, has tried to do everything differently. With predictable results.

His new disarmament package, and his emphasis on human rights, have soured relations with Russia. By explicitly putting at the top of the Near East agenda the issue which ought to be left implicit and to the end-the issue of a Palestinian homeland – he has put the U.S. on collision course with Israel, and compromised this country's role as an honest broker. By insisting on internal reforms, as well as by the rash statements from United Nations Ambassador Andy Young, the administration has plunged far more deeply than necessary into African and Third World affairs.

No one who has watched the performance in foreign policy can have solid confidence in the capacity of the Carter administration to deal with a serious crisis. The saving grace, what makes it easy to head for the beaches and the mountains now, is that thanks in large measure to Secretary Kissinger, the Carter administration has so far not experienced a foreign policy crisis.

Should PTAs supply heaters?

(Editor's note: The following letter was read to the School Committee and a copy was given to the Graphic.)

I would like to ask the School Committee to give consideration to developing an explicit policy with regard to parent and PTA involvement in the school programs.

As a taxpayer, parent, and member of the PTA, I feel quite unsure of what are the respective obligations and expectations for parent participation. Specifically, what are permissible expenditures and contributions for parents to make to any individual school?

I would urge you to consider this with regard to distinguishing the following examples:

1. Can parents make physical improvements to the schools? If they can legitimately build recreational equipment and paint the buildings, and build resource rooms, can they also provide ventilation equipment, and if so, can they, ought they also, if necessary provide heating equipment?

2. If parents can provide certain kinds of physical equipment, books, projectors, resource rooms, can they also provide manpower? If they can provide personnel can this include science and math instructors, as well as library aides and musical accompanists?

3. If the parents in particular schools are unsatisfied with the program in that school, ought they to supplement it with resources and programs purchased from their own funds or ought they to bring their demands to the School Department and the School Committee? Would it be permissable for me to solicit an endowment or gift for an individual Newton school?

I would like the Committee to understand that I have no interest in engaging in useless polemics. I am really not trying to be argumentative. But I do have a sincere and indeed compelling need to know what Newton's policy is.

Moreover, I assure you that I do not consider this an easy problem.

I agree that one never wants to thwart initiative, penalize the children or deny them the benefits of additional resources.

Yet there are aspects of this issue which involve serious considerations of what constitutes equal educational opportunity, how one measures equity, how much a school system provides in terms of educating its children as against what the parents of those children provide.

And, it seems to me that it will require analysis of a Thomist sophistication in order to distinguish these examples. I hazard the observation that it is just these kinds of distinctions which have been the basis for some of this country's best and worst law.

But I must urge you, nevertheless, to attempt some resolution.

At present, individual actions are creating precedents for a policy you may not wish to endorse. Moreover, in the absence of an explicitly enunciated policy, the distinctions between permissable and impermissable involvement can easily be perceived as arbitrary.

If you not articulate some rule, the Newton School system is threatened with becoming Balkanized into more than 20 semipublic-semiprivate systems, each providing a quality and style of education according to the human, intellectual, and financial resources of the families in each school.

Lastly, if the school system assumes responsibility to provide quality education, then you must provide the resources, for all children equally, that are necessary for that education. You cannot rely upon parents' funds to do it.

If the School Committee is to set policy for the Newton schools, I urge you, please to attempt some more creative efforts in this direction.

Thank you.

System failed

To the Editor:

After reading the article on the recent School Committee action in which they appointed four new principals to the Newton schools, I wish to express my concern with the "management" of our existing system.

It seems to me that any organization must provide, within its structure, for succession of people in leadership positions.

The hiring of four principals from outside the system is an admission of failure on the part of the personnel deapartment or the superintendent of the Newton school system to hire and train teachers or other administrative people to succeed to openings.

I find it very difficult to believe that in a school system with the size and reputation of Newton's, there are not capable, competent people here that should be promoted to these positions.

Obviously, the counter-argument can be advanced that it is necessary to bring "new blood" to the system in order to provide stimulation. However, the prevailing attitude at the present time is that the stress in education should be on the basic approach; and therefore, innovation today would mean a stress on the development of basic skills.

I do not feel that we should be tinkering with the approach to education with innovation; but' rather, we should be stressing the traditional approaches. The School Committee, with the exception of Committeeman LeConti, is to be criticized for supporting an administration which has failed to provide for a depth of personnel so that when openings occur within the system, there are not sufficient people to fill them.

Statements on the Mideast

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to President Carter by State Sen. Jack Backman (D-Newton-Brookline) and a copy given to the Newton Graphic).

My Dear Mr. President:

It was with dismay that I listened to a representative of the State Department, Hodding Carter III, enunciate United States policy in the Middle East. Specifically, Mr. Carter stated that all territory held by Israel on all fronts as a result of the Six Day War is subject to return.

This statement is in contravention of two previous statements issued by you personally. One of your statements was that there shall be no "pre-conditions" on any negotiations between Israel and her Arab neighbors.

Yet we find you, through the State Department, setting as a pre-condition the return of land.

These matters should be determined directly by Israel and the Arabs as part of a permanent peace settlement.

Second, you have supported United Nations Security Council resolutions 242 and 338 which call for direct negotiations between Israel and the Arab countries.

Support of these two United Nations resolutions gives further emphasis that the parties themselves in face-to-face negotiations must make territorial decisions.

The recent State Department statement stresses what Israel should give, but makes no mention of the necessity for the Arab nations to even recognize Israel's right to exist as an independent Jewish state.

I would urge you also to support both your personal pledge for real peace (open borders, travel' tourism and trade) and that of the Democratic Party in keeping non-belligerent nations out of the Middle East situation and allowing the parties to meet and discuss in face-to-face negotiations a just and lasting peace.

To date, Israel has been forced into four wars to protect its postage stamp land of less than 10,000 square miles among more than 5 million square miles of Arab land. Israel has also been faced with a continued economic warfare, the Arab boycott.

If there is to be peace in the Middle East, let the Arab states recognize the right of Israel to exist as a Jewish state and sign peace treaties with Israel. Let you, as President, and the United States, as leader in world peace and human rights, provide the type of assistance that will promote and foster peace in the Middle East and insure the right of the Jewish people to their historic homeland.

State Sen. Jack Backman,

Property taxes

To the Editor:

Massachusetts residents pay he highest property taxes of any state in the nation.

One of the chief reasons for the Commonwealth's high property tax rates is the imposition of state-mandated programs and services upon Massachusetts cities and towns. Over the past 20 years, the legislature has successfully thwarted every attempt to pass legislation prohibiting the state from passing costs on to local municipalities.

Stopping state-mandated costs is essential if any Massachusetts city or town intends to successfully stabilize local property taxes; but to do so, will involve the unified efforts of all Massachusetts residents.

In the coming summer months I will campaign to bring about a constitutuional amendment preventing the state legislature from imposing costs on local communities. A concerted, comprehensive effort will have to be made to make the proposed amendment a reality, and I actively seek the advice and support of all of you.

The spiralling increases in local property taxes may finally stop if enough Massachusetts residents take the time to sign official petitions required to initiate the consititutional amendment process.

A unified effort is certain to provide relief for all.

James Michael Connolly,
Boston City Council

Proper priorities

To the Editor:

While I am pleased that the irregularities in Newton's retirement fund have been discovered, it is difficult to comprehend this is the first time a review has been made of this fund by Mayor Mann's management team.

Good administrative techniques require periodic reviews of these matters. After all, Newton bureaucracy is not as large as that of the state or federal government, and should be manageable if the mayor was on top of the situation.

Again, proper priorities come into play.

Rather than attend conferences and ceremonial affairs that do nothing to bring good government to the city, the mayor should be staying home making sure the city is properly managed.

The ultimate responsibility for good government is his alone.

Communicating

To the Editor:

As you and your readers know for many months I have been prodding the Newton School Committee to improve and increase communications it has with taxpayers.

I asked and suggested at meeting after meeting. There was no response.

Finally, on May 23, I made a formal, written proposal to the Committee. It centered on five proposals:

—Initiate monthly open meetings designed to allow taxpayers the chance to address the Committee.

—Provide 10 minutes for citizens to participate during the discussion of each docket item.

—Produce a regularly-scheduled radio program about the schools.

—Publish a citywide periodical report of school activities and issues.

—Utilize a parliamentarian at all Committee meetings.

Of the many people who have commented on my proposal, none has ever said it was impractical or unreasonable. Why then does the School Committee refuse to respond?

Yes, Mr. Mandell has given me his personal imprimatur for me to do something on my own, which I am.

What about the rest of the members? Has it ever been discussed by them? Is it because they see some inherent problems? If so, I'll try to correct them.

Does it seem like too much work? If so, I'll be glad to sit on the Committee and take total responsibility for getting the job done.

Or is it the fact that I am a candidate for election to the Committee? And, heaven forbid, that a challenger's good ideas be recognized in public!.

This is typical political behavior which has caused so much animosity in the city. No one talks to the people. Candidates and incumbents are all playing a coy game of political timing and talking.

The schools are no place for avenging political losses or building political pressure groups. This proposal, like my political style, is open and up front.

Let's stop the snobbery, the snickering and the political maneuvering. The taxpayers need and deserve this attention. If you don't agree, then do it for the kids' sakes.

My plan for improving communication is a practical and sound proposal.

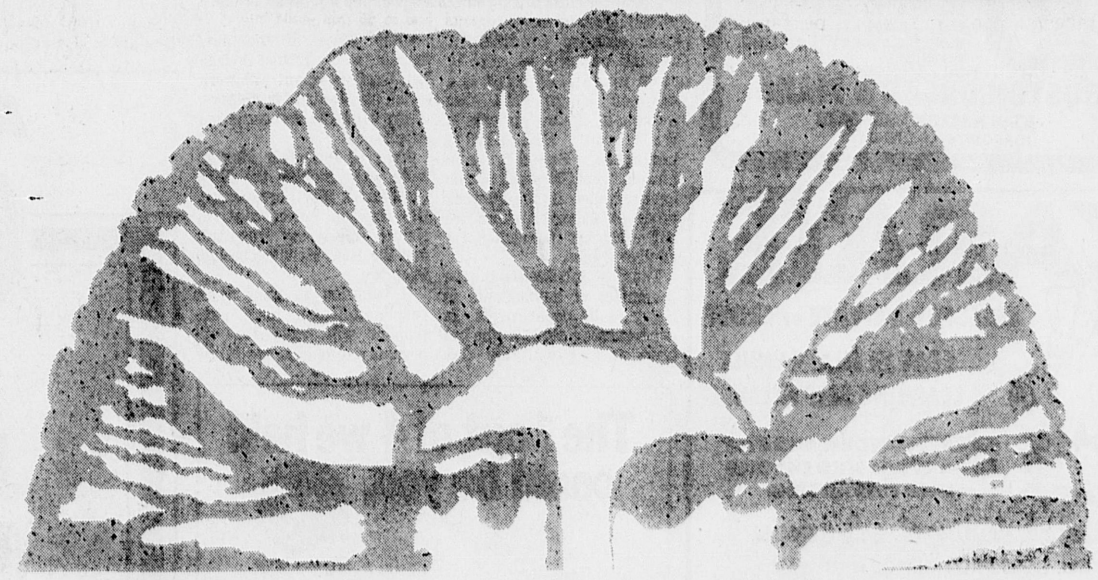

So I ask again, School Committee, what are you waiting for?

Newtonville

Advanced first aid course starts Tuesday

The Newton Chapter of the American National Red Cross will offer an Advanced First Aid and Emergency care course beginning July 12.

The course will be held at the Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville, beginning Tuesday, from 7 to 10 p.m.

A charge of $3 will be made for the text and supplies. No prior first aid training is required for this course, but participants must be at least 15 years of age.

The course is designed to provide the functional first aid capabilities required of special groups such as police officers, firefighters, ski patrol members and others who may be required to provide the initial emergency care necessary to sustain life until the victim of sudden illness or accident is cared for by qualified medical personnel.

Preregistration is mandatory and may be accomplished by calling the Chapter House at 527-6000.

Summer work by students covering a range of activities

The Summer Youth Work Experience Program got underway Monday as people between the ages of 14 and 21 took up their posts at a variety of work sites around the city, ranging from Kinder Kamp, a day camp center for children of working parents, to the chemistry department of Boston College.

Under the direction of the Newton Area Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), over 35 job sites are available for close to 200 young people from economically-disadvantaged families in Newton who will be able to earn up to $800 over the summer. Youths are also working at similar projects in Waltham, Brookline, Lexington, Bedford, and Lincoln. Over 500 young people have enrolled in the 10-week program. However, there are still a number of openings for eligible youths.

The City Hall itself will have a number of participants in many of its departments. In one instance a student who has been working with the City Planning Department during the past year under the Youth Work Experience Program will be attending the Boston Architectural Center Design Workshop for high school students.

Another project to be undertaken by the young people will be putting a new face on Pierce School, which will become a day care center in the fall. This project group, under the direction of a CETA supervisor, will also be sprucing up a number of other schools in the city.

While some of the participants in the Boston College Lab Dept. program will work as lab assistants to professors, others will work in records and supplies.

Some of the other Newton work sites include the EDC Plowshares Day Care Center, the Newton police station, Newton-Wellesley Hospital, and the EDC Follow Through Program.

In addition to their work responsibilities, each participant will have the opportunity to choose one of the many auxillary programs scheduled.

For those who would like to know more about specific fields of work, specialized field trips have been planned. For instance, someone who is interested in entering the manufacturing area would be able to visit a number of such companies in the Boston area, such as the Polaroid Film Division, as well as places where training is provided such as the Sylvania Technical School.

Some may choose the Bystander Emergency Aid program and learn what to do until the ambulance comes. Others may choose to enter skills training classes, like touch typing, while still others may want to participate in the Outward Bound wilderness type program, or participate in a number of cultural events offered in the Boston area.

For further information on enrollment requirements, contact Riki Ninomiya or Janice Fitzgerald, who will be overseeing the Newton portion of the program, at the Newton Area CETA office, 103 Moody St., Waltham, 899-7800.

another prisoner, who claimed he was asleep when McGonagle escaped, police said.

McGonagle was given breakfast at 7:50 a.m. and was taken to be photographed at 8 a.m. His attempts at escape were not noticed at those times, so police think he carefully collected the metal filings and put them into his pocket.

McGonagle was still at large Thursday morning and being sought by state police.

The prisoner first was identified as Robert O'Shea of Dorchester, age 21, but later information from the state police major crime unit identified him as McGonagle.

He is wanted by authorities for violation of probation, armed robbery, drug violations, and obstruction of justice before a Congressional legislative committee, according to police. His criminal record goes back to 1962.

He is considered to be armed and dangerous, but Newton police do not expect him to be still in Newton.

Four police officers and four firefighters will be freed to be put back into regular service.

A side issue of the release of the police officers back into regular service, which should occur by July, 1978, may be the reduction in number of police vacancies.

The mayor's office and others expect at least the seven vacancies in the police department to be filled by some of the 12 female police officers whose salaries are being paid by a federal grant until 1978.

It has not been made clear whether there will still be enough vacancies, after the central dispatch center, to absorb the female officers.

Some of the estimated savings depend on such items as 700 square feet of space being made available at police headquarters by the installation of the central dispatch center at fire headquarters.

The material prepared for the aldermen puts a value of $6 per square foot on the space and projects an annual saving of $4200 by recovering the space.

At least one alderman is concerned that the combining of fire and police dispatching is the first step toward consolidation of the fire and police departments into a department of public safety, with a commissioner over it.

The central dispatch first came to light at the time of budget review in March. It was explained by Police Chief William Quinn and his assistant, Timothy Coogan, with few questions from the aldermen.

Since then, the matter was approved by the aldermanic Public Health & Safety Committee and, two weeks ago, by the Finance Committee.

The vote to return the central dispatch to the Finance Committee, initiated by Ald. John Stewart, was 21-3. Ald. Susan Schur, Terry Morris and Mark White were opposed.

to the predominance of male characters in the books, citing, "Of Mice and Men," "The Catcher in the Rye," and "The Devil and Daniel Webster."

Director Glenn said, "The white male characters you cite are not models of triumphant male chauvanism."

In response to the charge of the lack of minority authors and role models, Glenn said the School Department is working on that in connection with Metco staff to arrange for a more multi-ethnic curriculum.

The School Committee will have to make a formal response to the complaint at its meeting July 19.

Candidates

challenger in Elaine Gentile of 16 Broadway.

Michael Tye of 10 Estabrook Rd. has taken out nomination papers for alderman-at-large in Ward 3. He would challenge incumbents Ald. Matthew Jefferson and Robert Tennant, both of whom have their nomination papers.

The vacancy for Ward 3 ward alderman, created by Bullwinkle, has produced seven potential candidates.

They are: David A. Flynn, 47 Davis Ave.; Anthony Salvucci, 23 Eddy St.; Ronald J. Brown, 144 Cherry St.; Paul Daley, 94 Prospect St.; Richard Chiampa, 242 Adams Ave.; Nancy Donahue, 40 Russell Rd.; and Dominick Mauro, 25 Oak Ave.

In Ward 4 both incumbent at-large aldermen have their nomination papers. Ald. John Stewart and Ald. Donald Budge face a possible challenge from Frederick Dalicandro, 299 Auburndale Ave. Incumbent Ward Ald. Carol Ann Shea has her nomination papers and may be challenged by Louis Pellegrine Jr.

Both at-large seats in Ward 5 are up for grabs. Miller, the mayoral candidate, holds one and Ald. Sidney Small, involved in Eliot Cohen's bid for mayor, has said he will not run again.

Candidates for these vacant seats include Leon Brathwaite II, 52 Rokeby Rd.; Paul Coletti, 34 Columbia Ave.; and Robert Davine.

Ward 5 Ward Ald. Susan Schur is running again and may be opposed by Peter J. Rowland, 29 Manchester Rd.

Ald. Joan Saklad is leaving her Ward 6 alderman-at-large seat and the vacancy has produced a potential of five candidates in addition to the other incumbent, Ald. Ethel Sheehan.

The five potential candidates are: Rodney Barker, 49 Woodcliff Rd.; Frederic Sternburg, 76 Garland Rd.; Gene Blumenreich, 20 Burr Rd.; Dennis Anastasia, 189 Langley Rd.; and Vincent Farina, 24 Manamet Rd. Ward Ald. Ernest Dietz also has his nomination papers.

In Ward 7 incumbent Aldermen-at-large Domenic Taglienti and Mark White have their nomination papers. So does George Peter, 185 Hobart Rd. Ward Ald. David Cohen may be challenged by Samuel Fishlyn of 10 Madoc St.

The vacancy created by Eliot Cohen for at-large alderman in Ward 8 has produced four potential candidates. The other incumbent, Ald. Wendell Bauckman, has his nomination papers.

The four new candidates are: Samuel Kardon, 80 Oak Hill St.; Cynthia Creem, 15 Esty Farm Rd.; Howard Passman, 89 Dorcar Rd.; and Jerold Wise, 241 Greenwood St.

In the ward race incumbent Robert Stiller faces a challenge from Robert Katz of 35 Marvin Ln.

Several of the people considering running for aldermen this year have been candidates before. Among them are Salvucci and Daley in Ward 3, Davine in Ward 5, Barker and Sternburg in Ward 6, Creem in Ward 8.

School Committee

School Committee races come close to eclipsing the mayoral election this year because of the upset election last time that put four incumbents out of office.

However, two School Committee members are running unopposed so far and the races attracting the greatest interest are in Wards 1 and 2.

In Ward 1 the incumbent, Henry Delicata, has his nomination papers after some speculation that he might not run again. There are three other people in that race with nomination papers: Howard Spergel, 14 Holland St.; William Maloney, 15 Hibbard Rd.; and Joan Marie Martin, 173 Pearl St.

In Ward 2 there are four people with nomination papers, including incumbent Edward Prince. The other three are: Kathy Jones, 1087 Commonwealth Ave.; R. Dennis Becker, 63 Elm Rd.; and Brian Vallely, 92 Farwell St.

Incumbent School Committeeman Michael LeConti has not yet taken out nomination papers in Ward 3. There are two candidates right now, Nancy Mann, 145 Fairway Dr.; and Gregory Buck, 174 Valentine St.

In Ward 4 veteran School Committeeman Manuel Beckwith may face Frank Brocklesby of 45 Murray Rd.

Ward 5's Honora Kaplan and Ward 6's Robert Cohen have no opponents as of this week.

In Ward 7 incumbent Paul Ash faces a challenge from Sandra Fleishman of 65 Stuart Rd.

School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell has Robert Ricles of 495 Parker St. as his potential opposition in Ward 8.

Board

submitted to the appropriate department head for comment before being submitted formally to the Board.

Tennant hoped to lessen the number of whimsical and impractical measures submitted to the Board and expected that a negative opinion from a department head might discourage some legislation.

Several aldermen bridled at Tennant's suggestion, considering it a license for censoring proposed legislation. Others said it was not practical and would only lead to more paperwork than exists now.

A total of of $100,000 was approved for schools, $90,000 as an amendment to the nine-school capital and repairs bonded project, and a $10,900 transfer of money from the Lincoln-Eliot School to be transferred to use for other schools.

The "scenic roads" selected by the Conservation Commission and approved by the City Planning Committee were forwarded to the Legislation & Rules Committee for final work.

The scenic-roads designation protects streets against widening and trees and walls on the street against removal without good cause and a public hearing.

Register now for 'Project Healthy'

The Newton Health Department is sponsoring "Project Healthy," a health education program on aging, to be presented in six sessions during the last three weeks in July in cooperation with the Massachusetts Department of Elder Affairs.

The program will include presentation of preventive health measures and health information on various aspects of aging. The effects of diet, exercises, emotions, disease and other factors on the daily lives of elders will be discussed. Speakers will include a nurse specialist in adult health, public health nurses, nutritionist, physical therapist, occupational therapist, pharmacist and social workers.

The program sessions will be held at the First Baptist Church, 848 Beacon St., Newton Centre, on Mondays and Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to noon. The dates of the sessions are as follows: July 11, 13, 18, 20, 25 and 27. Parking is provided in the rear of the church.

Interested persons of all ages are eligible to attend, but individuals age 55 and over are especially invited. Attendance at all six sessions is desirable and will be acknowledged by a certificate of attendance to be presented on the last day by a representative of the Massachusetts Department of Elder Affairs. Individuals may register by telephoning the Newton Health Department, 244-4700, Ext. 241 before July 11.

Enrollment for the series is limited to 50 people. Transportation will be provided by the Newton Lions Club. Arrangements for transportation may be made by calling the Health Department.

Assistant director named

Lawrence H. Weiner of Barrington, R.I., has been named by the School Committee to be assistant director of pupil personnel services and special education, a position created recently by the reorganization of special education services.

Weiner, 43, as been director of special education for the past two years in Swansea, Mass., and held the same position for 10 years prior to that in the Barrington, R.I., public schools.

He has an A.B. degree from Boston University, an M.A. degree from Syracuse University in psychology that he earned in 1957, and in 1961 he received his Ph.D. from Syracuse in educational administration, pupil personnel, and special education.

He was a research assistant at Syracuse working with children with learning disabilities and worked as a school psychologist in Batavia, N.Y., for three years.

Wiener replaces acting administrative assistant for special education Peter Mackie, who will return to his counseling position at Newton North in the fall.

Weiner will work with Director of Special Education and Pupil Personnel Services John Cullinane.

Local man raises most money for MARC

Edson Trumbull of West Newton was honored for the fifth consecutive year for having raised more money than any other participant in the annual Ride-a-Bike for the Retarded. In six years Trumbull has raised $7288 for the mentally retarded citizens of Massachusetts.

The previous four years Trumbull was rewarded with a 10-speed bicycle, but this year as a special tribute for his tremendous efforts he was the recipient of a Ride-a-Bike plaque.

Trumbull, a manager at the Kennedy's stores of New England, collected $1308 by riding in the Tewksbury ride on May 1. His sponsors are all fellow associates at Kennedy's and are so mentioned on the plaque.

Over 30,000 people participated in 138 rides held around the state.

Over $1.1 million so far has been raised for the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens over the past six years through the annual bike ride.

The money is used to the advantage of the 160,000 mentally retarded citizens of Massachusetts in the areas of legislation, education, legal and personal advocacy, and recreation.

TRAVEL TRAILS

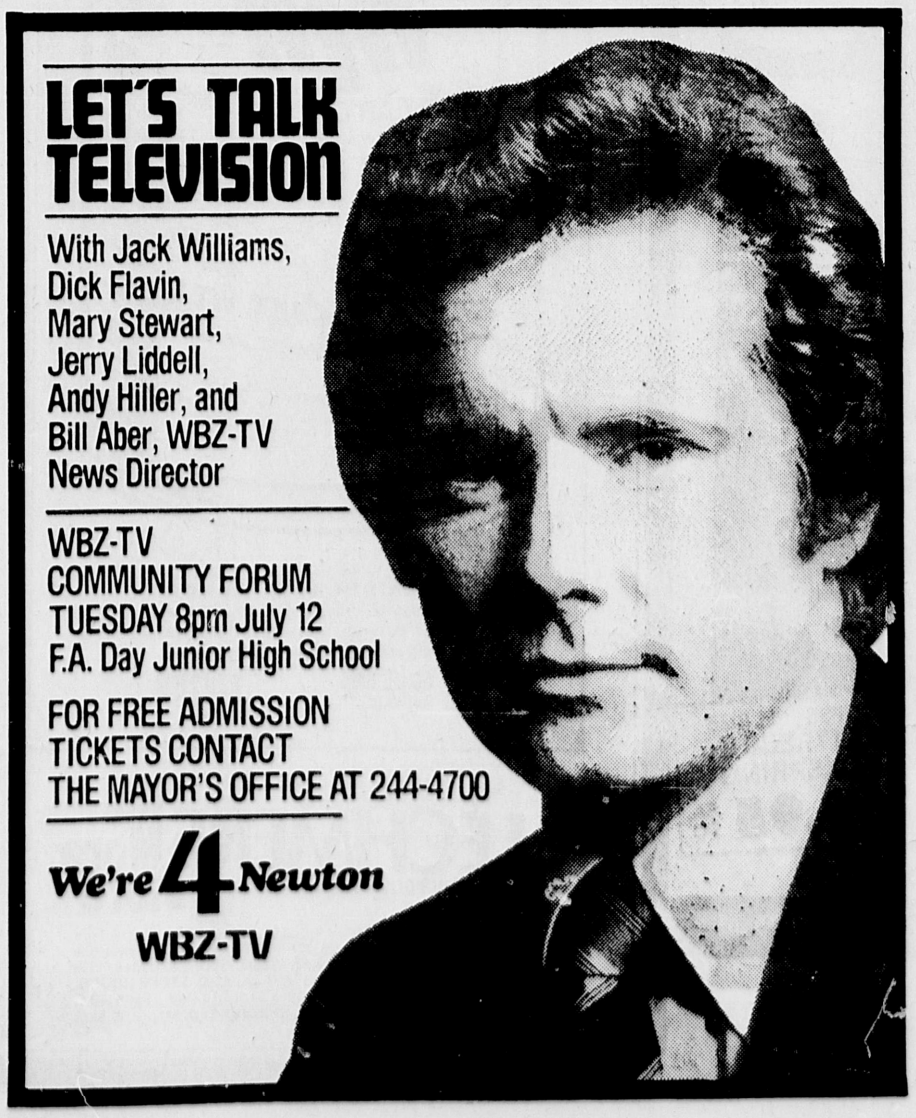

By Josephine Arria

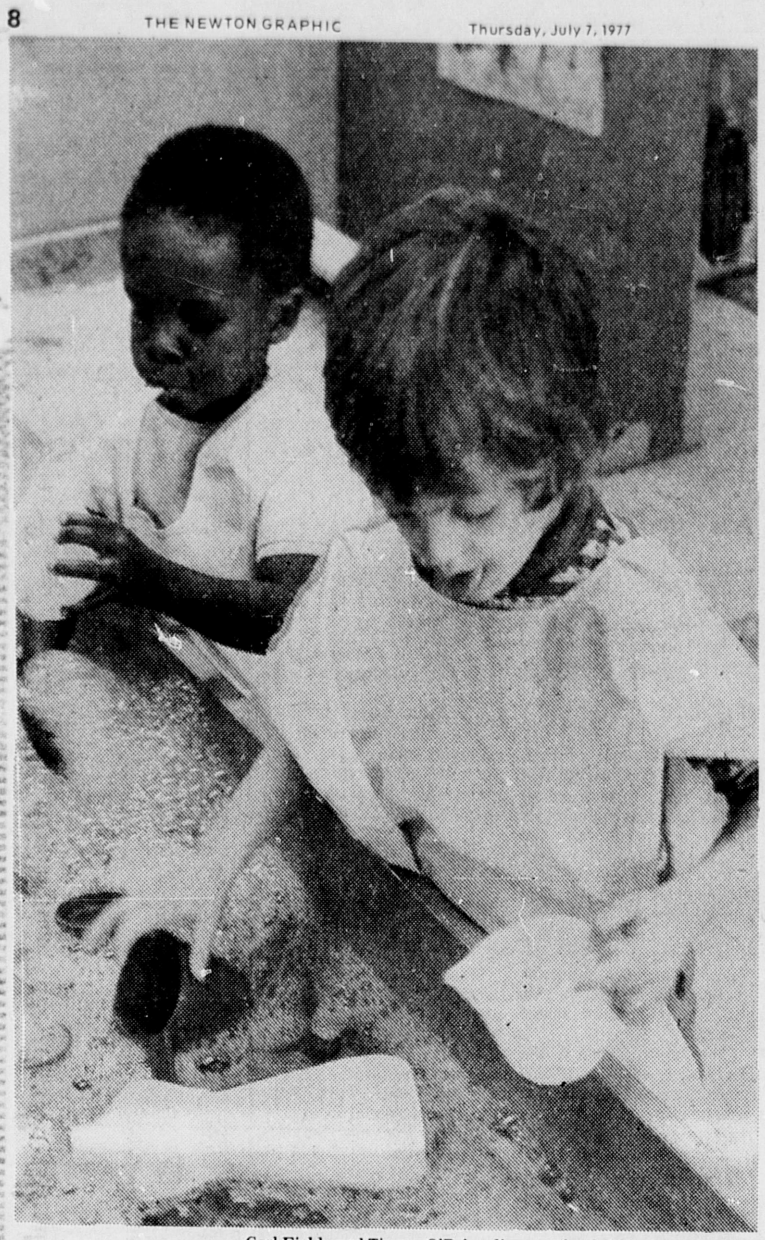

It is not true that Trinidad invented the Caribbean. However it is true that this incredible island did present the Caribbean with the limbo dancer, the Calypso singer, the Steel-band, and many other innovations that have been accepted as typically West Indian. But the Trinidadians themselves lay claim only to possession of one of the most enchanting and progressive islands in the entire archipelago. The British influence is evident as you explore Trinidad but it isn't dominant. No place in the hemisphere can match Trinidad for the variety of races that have lent their many cultures to form a great community. — Africans, Chinese, East Indians, Mid-Eastern, Europeans — all Trinidadians today.

Cohen wants to debate mayor

Ald. Eliot Cohen, a candidate for mayor, this week again challenged Mayor Theodore Mann to a debate.

"I said last spring that I was willing to debate the issues confronting our city in the 13 villages of our community or such other places and times to be arranged," Cohen said. "Ted Mann is unwilling to do the same. When the first opportunity arose, Teddy Mann was missing."

Cohen was referring to a forum for mayoral candidates sponsored by the Ward 7 Democratic Committee which the mayor did not attend.

Mayor Mann this week replied to the charge: "There will be adequate opportunity to debate as soon as we know who all the candidates are and I will be present on all occasions."

Currently, nine people have nomination papers for the office of mayor. In order to officially become a candidate for the office of mayor, the people must file their nomination papers and have 400 signatures on them validated as coming from registered voters of Newton.

Deadline for filing is Aug. 2.

Cohen originally offered to debate the mayor when he officially announced his candidacy. He said this week the mayor is attempting to avoid a face-to-face confrontation because he "will have difficulty defending his mismanagement machine."

"The voters and taxpayers of Newton are entitled to an accounting. The mayor should not be allowed to hide," Cohen said.

"Teddy has run the city by press releases and cannot be permitted to conduct this capaign in the same fashion," he said.

Library provides free computer time

The Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, is providing an opportunity for people to gain free access to a "time— shared" computer in connection with a special computer program at Babson College, Wellesley.

People will be able to create their own programs, play simulation games, or learn from 800 already programmed units.

The computer hook-up will provide interested people with opportunities to acquire the valuable technical experience involved in learning how to operate a computer.

Essentially the method consists of a "typewriter" terminal placed in the library with a telephone hook-up between it and the computer in Babson College.

The circulation desk, 527-7700, will take reservations from individuals who want to use the computer. There is no charge for use of the computer.

An audio tape prepared by Babson, as well as clearly marked instructions for using the computer will be available near the console. Use of the computer was arranged with the cooperation of Edgar Canty, director of academic computer sciences at Babson.

The length of time allotted to an individual for computer time will depend on demand.

Planning a trip? It is best to plan the roads that you will be taking in detail. Highways in strnage metropolitan areas can be identified by road signs of bewildering variety. To avoid getting lost, or having to make split-second decisions, plan your route in advance and know the roads by both their names and numbers. Automobile clubs provide free prerouted maps to members or customers. Or, if you prefer, comprehensive road atlasses can be purchased, so that you can do your own planning.

Why drug labels tell more now

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — "Have you read any good labels lately?" is a public service message the Food and Drug Administration is using to encourage consumers of drugs and medicines to read before they swallow.

There is a lot of new information on them, partly because a group of 250 experts have, for five years, been reviewing all over-the-counter drugs marketed in the United States.

There are as many as 500,000 such drugs, according to Dr. John H. Moxley III, who just retired as chairman of the group, which has never been formally named and goes simply as the FDA study group on over-the-counter drugs.

Moxley, talked about the work in his his office at the University of California School of Medicine, where he is dean.

"I am convinced," he said, "that when you and I go into a drugstore or supermarket to buy over-the-counter medicine it is much more properly labeled, safer, and more effective than it was five years ago."

He said pharmaceutical manufacturers had representation on the 17 review panels of experts in the project. In most cases, he said, they quietly reformulated their products, changed the advertising, or removed them from the market.

"A number of the more popular medications for colds, headaches and upset stomachs have been quietly reformulated, and their advertising changed."

That action was taken, he said, because the drug industry became aware of the direction the review panels were taking and "brought the majority of their products into line with what they anticipated the new standards would be."

Alka Seltzer changed its advertising, Pepto Bismol changed its formulation, antibiotics were taken out of face soap — these are the kind of changes that have taken place by the hundreds.

"The whole point of the study," Moxley explained, "is truth in advertising." The safety of the drugs wasn't much in question, he said, because most had been used for many years.

"Our chief concern was that people were spending literally billions of dollars a year on patent medicines that no one had ever looked at to see if they were effective or if they were properly labeled."

"What we really questioned: Are they (consumers) getting what they're paying for?"

Moxley, for one, was not interested in imposing more regulations. "I like as little regulation as possible," he said. "Present the facts, and let the consumers make their own judgments."

Though there are hundreds of thousands of nonprescription drugs, all are based on basically 200 active ingredients, according to Moxley, and that's why the study group was divided into 17 different panels, each studying certain ingredients.

The panels consisted of medical experts, consumers, manufacturers, and others, and each had a professional staff.

It may be another year before the review is completed, and the recommendations accepted by the FDA.

"The major impact of our study," Moxley said, "has been to give consumers the assurance that what they are buying has been judged by an impartial group of scientists to be both safe and effective.

Also, he said, it has "forced drug advertisments to be more realistic so that the consumer can expect a greater 'truth in packaging' from drug manufacturers."

Game Lodge Closed In Danger Area

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The Chobe game lodge in the far north of Botswana has been temporarily closed for security reasons, a spokesman for the hotel owners reported.

Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor were remarried there, after their first split and before the final breakup.

The main access road to the lodge runs near the troubled Rhodesia-Botswana border and the spokeman said the owners believed it was inadvisable for tourists to travel this way.

Child abuse

By CAROLE FISCHBERG

"Beating a child is the ultimate evil," says Dr. Scott Guth, staff psychiatrist in the Newton-Wellesley-Weston-Needham Unit of Medfield State Hospital and expert on treating violent families.

"What's more, the parents who do it know that. They are not without a conscience. Imagine the guilt you would have if you did the worst thing in the world."

Guth sees many abusive parents in his private practice. Although he is constantly aware that child abuse is something so incredibly awful that it is difficult to conceptualize it," he remains committed to working with violent families and attempting to interrupt the generaltional cycle through which abused children grow up to be abusing adults.

Guth believes that abusive behavior stems from the rage felt by parents whose own dependency needs are unmet while they are being asked to give to their child.

"Most of us can get our anger under control, or find someone to take care of us while we can take care of the child," he says. "Parents whose control breaks down are those whose dependency needs are great because they were deprived themselves as children. Their rage about not getting what they need is displaced onto the child. Sometimes the child is expected to take care of the parent."

Families who are isolated-either geographically or emotionally- are at greater risk of becoming abusing parents because they are unable to find other adults to give to them. Their rage builds until they can no longer control it, and a small incident or bit of misbehavior may set off an attack on the child.

Control over anger may also break down as a result of alcohol use. Many of the violent families seen by Guth have patterns of excessive alcohol use by one or more parents. Sometimes the alcoholic parent will directly assault a child; in other cases he may attack his spouse, who then beats the child in misdirected retaliation.

Treatment with violent parents involves a great deal of giving and nurturing on the part of the therapist, says Guth.

"Emotionally deprived people never learn how to get what they need. They accumulate insults; they feel very bad about themselves and can't see the options open to them. They are emotionally tonedeaf."

Guth tries to help parents learn how to get their needs met and how to give to each other. He feels that every attempt should be made to keep the child in the home.

"You take a four-year-old from his mother, his father, his family, his milieu - and that's no small insult," he points out. However, situations in which a child is known to have been abused need extremely closed and careful supervision in addition to skilled treatment.

The Department of Public Welfare, mandated by law to investigate and supervise violent families, has recently announced its staffing is totally inadequate to do this. A Welfare spokesman said there have been three deaths in recent months of children whose families had been reported to the Department but who were not being supervised by a worker because of lack of staff.

Carole Fischberg is Director of Community Education at the Newton-Wellesley-Weston-Needham Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center.

Being beautiful is a business

Photos and story by ELEANOR SIEGEL

Child fashion models and entertainers seem to have a mystique about them, even at the age of five. Perhaps it is because being beautiful and charming is their business. They have worked long and hard at the smile, the song and dance routine which are carried off with seeming ease.

Usually working along with them are their parents. Two such parents are Elaine Arno and Barbara Qualter, both of Dedham, whose daughters, Rori, 5, and Karen, 8, are professional models. Rori Arno is also a professional entertainer.

Rori, a Shirley Temple look-alike, began her career when her mother, a former model and dancer, enrolled her in dancing school at the age of two. Elaine Arno's career ended when Rori was born; however, her youngster exhibited "exceptional" talent.

Today Rori has a repertoire of songs and dances choreographed for her and works two nights a week either modeling or dancing and singing. Her mother works her schedule so that she is out only two evenings, but even at a careful pace that means there are some days Rori must sleep while other children are playing.

Arno says Rori doesn't mind this because "she understands she is a professional dancer and she likes to be in shows...she also knows that when the other children are sleeping, she is awake."

Much of Rori's understanding comes from the fact that she gets an incredible amount of positive reinforcement from her mother who spends at least two hours daily practicing with the child. During that time all attention is focused on Rori who must learn not only dance routines, but songs and must rehearse at all times with a microphone so she learns to handle it properly onstage. "It's hard," admits Arno, "but we do it."

They do it and they do it. Rehearsing becomes a way of life. Qualter said that although Karen does not rehearse as much as Rori, even if the mother and daughter are out shopping she will caution Karen to "walk right" and remind her to "pronounce her words more carefully."

As a result of the discipline in their lives, the children have developed an extraordinary amount of patience which stands them in good stead when they enter beauty pageants. For then they must sit quietly for hours, perhaps even all day.

To be able to do this, the mothers say the children must develope inner motivation, "they must want it for themselves." They must want it enough to put demands upon themselves, for entering a pageant means that daily practice is increased to at least four hours.

The parents and the children make a tremendous committment to the pageant. For some parents it is an emotional involvement and if the child should lose, parents have been known to break down and cry.

"Winners" like Rori and Karen come through. Occasionally they do so despite physical discomfort. Arno recalled seeing one child cut her lip and when it came time to go onstage, wipe her lip and smile . "This was a professional...one who had discipline," said Arno admiringly.

In return for hours of toil, Rori gets "kisses and love" from her mother, Elaine.

Rori Arno of Dedham began her professional career at the age of two.

Professional model Karen Qualter has a paper route and prefers dungarees to dresses.

Karen and her sister, Debbie, share a joke while mom, Barbara Qualter watches.

Rori herself has that same kind of determination. Arno remembered taking Rori to a show one evening and saying she felt Rori should go home, but the four year old insisted upon performing. She sang and danced and when she came off, she proudly told her mother, "I didn't even cough," explaining that she was able to withhold the cough. Upon returning home, Rori's temperature was 101 degrees.

Entering a pageant is an economic committment and often these parents run the risk of encountering people "who will take advantage of you." Being taken advantage of can be costly.

Each child must have their own portfolio which is expensive; however, often that is a minor expense compared to the cost of the photographs. Qualter, for example, said three eight by 10 photographs cost roughly $170. The expense led Arno to learn to become highly proficient with a camera.

Costs also mount because these children have agents, who take 10 percent, plus lessons in dramatics, dancing and even how to perform in T.V. commercials. There is also the cost of clothing and costumes.

Some schools charge for simply notifying parents about the existence of a pageant and some pageants require cash sponsors. In addition, the parents must pay for their tickets to see if their child wins.

The winners receive trophies, but sometimes they also incur the wrath of "jealous" parents. The competition is intense and Arno said that Rori has "been threatened three times." Also, on one occasion, a mother refused to let her daughter to talk to Rori.

Despite this, both girls have an impressive list of pageant credentials. Karen won a trophy and a special award in the United States Modeling Pageant at the Statler Hilton. The award was for "Most Photogenic." She also won the "Best Personality" award in the Yankee Pageant.

Rori won the Massachusetts "Miss Talent America," won the "Miss Personality" award at the Yankee Show and won the title "Miss Hemisphere Model."

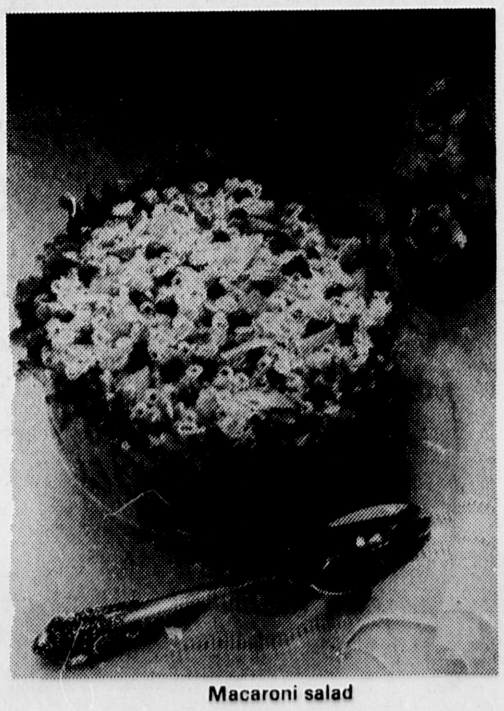

For their hours of work, their reward, says Arno, is "self appreciation for doing a good job...how many bows they have taken, happiness, kisses and love."

Their professionalism is easily evidenced. Although Karen said she preferred to wear dungarees, she was cooperative about changing into a dress for photographs, and was agreeable during the entire picture-taking session.

When asked to entertain, Rori, at first, demurred. But with a tape recorder microphone in her hand, she responded to her mother's soft command... "now pull yourself together."

She did, and transformed, she began to sing 'On the Good Ship Lollipop," and dance with flawless timing.

Macaroni salad

Question: I wonder if you can help me find an interesting recipe for Chicken Salad?

Ms. H. L., Norwood

Answer: This Scrumptious Chicken Salad would be a beautiful buffet brightener for a summertime patio party. Prepare it in the cool of the morning and let the flavors mellow and blend during the day.

Dainty Macaroni rings, flavorful chunks of chicken, juicy pineapple tidbits and plump sweet peas make this salad a rainbow of color. It's a main dish attraction . . . all that needs to be added is a bread, beverage and luscious dessert.

SCRUMPTIOUS CHICKEN SALAD

1½ cups uncooked macaroni rings
1½ cups cut-up cooked chicken
Two-thirds cup finely chooped ce,ery
One 17-oz. can young tender sweet peas, rained
One 13¾-oz. can pineapple tidbits, drained
¼ cup slivered almonds
2 tablespoons diced pimiento
1 to 1¼ cups mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1-¼ teaspoons seasoned salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cook macaroni rings according to package directions; rinse and drain. In a large bowl, combine macaroni, chicken, celery, peas, pineapple, almonds and pimiento, Combine remaining ingredients in a small bowl; gently stir into chicken mixture. Cover and chill several hours. If desired, garnish with paprika, fresh parsley or almonds at serving time. Serves 6.

Qustion: A Massachusetts cook recently won a cook-off at Faneuil Hall and I would like to have her winning recipe.'

Mr. M.N., Westwood

Answer: Here is the winning chicken recipe:

CHICKEN CHASSEUR

½ cup flour
2 teaspoons salt, divided
½ teaspoon black pepper, divided
1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
¼ cup Mazola corn oil, divided
2 tablespoons chopped green onion
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ pound mushrooms, sliced
½ cup dry white wine
1 teaspoon Ac'cent flavor enhancer
1 teaspoon dried tarragon
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

In a shallow bowl, stir together flour, 1 teaspoon of the salt and ¼ teaspoon of the pepper. Coat chicken. Heat 3 tablespoons of the corn oil in fry pan over medium heat. Add chicken. Brown on all sides. Remove chicken to warm dish. Add remaining 1 tablespoon corn oil to fry pan. Add green onion, garlic and mushrooms. Cook 3 minutes over low heat. Add wine; stir until most of the liquid evaporates and the particles are dissolved. Return chicken to fly pan. Sprinkle flavor enhancer, remaining 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and tarragon on chicken. Cook over low heat, covered, about 35 minutes or until fork can be inserted with ease. Sprinkle with parsley.

Question: This summer by children are at home and I love to bake with them. Do you have any good recipes to bake with children?

Mrs. K. P., Dedham

Answer: The Painted Daisy Cookies are delicious and lots of fun. Get out your paint brushes and cookie sheets and get to work.

PAINTED DAISY COOKIES

Yield: 18 large cookies

Cookies:
1½ cups all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon each baking powder, soda and nutmeg
½ cup (1 stick) butter
1 egg
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon each vanilla and grated lemon peel
Decoration:
1 egg yolk
¼ teaspoon water
Food color
Semi-sweet chocolate pieces
Sugar

Combine flour, baking powder, soda and nutmeg. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Beat egg, add sugar gradually, beating well. Stir in vanilla and lemon peel. Blend egg mixture into flour mixture, beating to form dough. Cover and chill. Roll out dough on a lightly floured surface to ¼-inch thickness. Cut out cookies with a floured 3½-inch round cookie cutter. Transfer with wide spatula to lightly buttered cookie sheets. Bake in preheated 375 degree F. oven 6 to 8 minutes. Cool before painting To decorate, lightly beat egg yolk; add water. Divide egg into custard cups and add desired food colors. Dip chocolate pieces in egg yolk; place in center of cookies. Paint on flower petals with small paint brushes; sprinkle with sugar.

Weddings

Temple Shalom ceremony unites Susie Gladstone and Mr. Schub

Miss Susie Gladstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Gladstone of Newton Centre became the bride of Mr. Barry Alan Schub of Kingston, Pa., on Sunday, June 19. Rabbi Murray Rothman performed the noon ceremony at Temple Shalom of Newton and a reception there followed.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jacqueline Gladstone of Reston, Va.; Miss Beth Johnson of Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Chantal Rouanet of Paris; Miss Leslie Kivitz of Huntingdon Valley, Pa.; and Miss Madelene Fleischer of New York City.

Mr. Michael Rifkin of Kingston, Pa., Mr. Robert A. Gladstone of Reston, Va., and Dr. Gerald C. Gladstone of Pittsburgh, Pa., were ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Schub were both graduated from Brown University in 1976. The bride is in an M.S.W. program at Boston University, and the groom is studying for an M.B.A. at Babson Institute.

After a wedding trip to California, they will make their home at 175 Freeman St., Brookline.

Mrs. Barry A. Schub

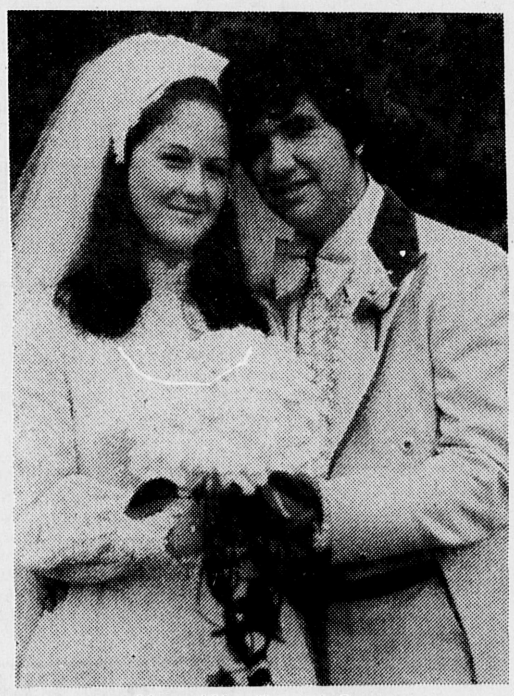

Elissa Marsh and Mr. Grunes are married at Temple Reyim

Miss Elissa Marsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Marsh of Newton Centre, was married to Mr. Kenneth Grunes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sampson Grunes of West Newton, on June 12 at Temple Reyim. Rabbi Philip Kieval performed the ceremony and a reception followed at the temple. Ellen Marsh of Montreal and Newton was maid of honor for her cousin. Bridesmaids were Toby Boyer of West Newton, Nancy Green of Providence, R.I., Faith Hasim of Brookline, Susan Loitherstein of Newton Centre, Sue Mande of Westport, Conn., and Julie Grunes, sister of the groom. Louis Grunes of Auburndale was best man for his brother.

Ushers were David Cutler and David Sandler of Newtonville, Larry Groipen of Newton Centre, and Mitchell and Paul Marsh' brothers of the bride

The bride and groom were both graduated from Newton High School in 1973. Mrs. Grunes received her B.A., cum laude, from Brandeis and Mr. Grunes received the B.S. degree cum laude from the University of Massachusetts. He is currently completing his studies for a master's degree at Boston College Graduate School of Management.

The couple went to Bermuda on their wedding trip and are now living in Waltham.

Historic Foundation will conduct summer walking tours of Boston

Walking tours of Boston's waterfront, Quincy Market, Back Bay and North End, as well as a special children's tour based on the book "Make Way for Ducklings", will be sponsored this summer by the Historic Neighborhoods Foundation, 1 Exeter St., Boston.

Linda Braun, teacher and educational consultant, has designed the "Ducklings" tour especially for children aged 6 to 12, to teach them about the history and architecture of Beacon Hill and the Public Garden as they recreate the fictional trip taken by Mrs. Mallard and her ducklings.

The "Ducklings" tour will be offered daily Tuesday through Friday all summer and through the fall, weather permitting. The one-hour tour includes tickets for a Swan Boat ride.

The tour costs $2.50 for children and $1.50 for adults, who may bring no moe more than two children each. Groups will be limited to about 15 per guide. Departure times and place, reservations and group rates are available on request.

Quincy Market and Waterfront tours will be conducted Thursday through Sunday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. for $2.50 per person. Tours at other times of the week are available by reservation at regular or group rates.

Tours of the North End last about one hour and leave from the Foundation stand at Quincy Market near the glass flower market. They start at 1 p.m. on Saturdays and 6:30 P.M. on Wednesdays. The charge is $2.50 per person.

Two-hour tours of the Back Bay leave Trinity Church steps at noon on Wednesdays. They ov offer a comprehensive view of the history and architecture of the area, and may include visits to the interiors of selected buildings.

Back Bay tours cost $5 per person, or $4 to members of the New England Chapter, Victorian Society in America. Group rates are $4 per person for 10 or more.

Tour leaders, who are trained in Boston history and architecture, include Roberta Leviton of Newton, who is completing work for a master's degree in city planning at the Harvard School of Design. She will be leading tours of Quincy Market and the waterfront on Thursdays and Saturdays.

All tours will continue into the fall, weather permitting. Membership is invited in the Historic Neighborhood Foundation, whose brochures are available at all Boston 200 information booths.

For reservations and more information about tours, call 262-1860.

Women office workers invited to "9 to 5" meeting

All women office workers living or working in Newton are invited to the July general meeting of 9 to 5, the Boston area organization for women office workers. Feature of the meeting, which will be held at the Paulist Center, 5 Park St., Boston at 5:45 p.m. on July 11, will be a discussion of whether the Carter administration can make a difference for working women.

In issuing the invitation to the meeting, Carole Bull of 700 Beacon St., Newton Centre, says, "Our goal is to see the 200,000 women office workers in Boston gain the rights and respect they are entitled to."

9 to 5 meets monthly to plan programs and strategies which include pressuring government agencies to enforce the law, pressuring companies to change unfair policies and helping members right wrongs on the job.

Remember the Cowsills?

They rose high, fell far, now plan comeback

WEST WARWICK, R.I. (UPI) — It was the American dream.

A mother, her five sons and one daughter sang together in their living room, practiced constantly, and ended up with three gold records and a slew of television appearances.

The Cowsills were America's number one singing family.

Their first big song — "The Rain, the Park and Other Things" — hit the top of the charts in 1967. The next two years brought five albums and other hits, including "Indian Lake," "We Can Fly," and "Hair."

The kids started out in Newport, playing dates in a local hotel in 1965. They lived in neighboring Middletown. Their father, retired from the Navy after a career as an enlisted man, became the manager.

The Cowsills had their own TV special in 1968 and made guest appearances on such shows as Ed Sullivan, Johnny Carson and Dean Martin.

The money rolled in — and right back out — as the family bought a 23-room mansion in ritzy Newport, as well as land elsewhere in Rhode Island and in California. The family also took an apartment in New York.

But the bubble burst.

Since 1970, a fall in the group's popularity has been matched only by a fall in the family's bank account. In the last two years, parents William and Barbara Cowsill have each had to file in court for bankruptcy.

They sought to rid themselves of an accumulated $445,730 in debts to hotels, recording studios, credit card companies, lawyers, agents and airlines — among other concerns.

All the real estate, of course, has been sold or repossessed.

Today, Mrs. Cowsill lives in a garden apartment in West Warwick where she works nights in a local nursing home.

She very calmly insists she's not bitter. "It was poor business management. It happens to the best of us. You just have to pick yourself up by your boot straps. It was a wonderful thing and I enjoyed it thoroughly."

She also said disbanding the group was really best for her family. "These were children and they needed room to grow."

Mrs. Cowsill said her husband has gone back to sea. He is home two weeks every month and works the balance of the time on offshore drilling rigs in such faraway places as Egypt and Turkey.

Of her children, Mrs. Cowsill said, "They've just been busy growing up." The youngest, Susan, is now 18. The oldest, Bob, is 27 and has just finished his pre-medical undergraduate education.

Although the group has not played publicly for some time now, Mrs. Cowsill said America has not heard the last of her children.

"It's all just in the infancy stage now," she said, "but you're going to see some big things happening."

According to the Cowsills' new manager, Jonathan Myer, of North Hollywood, Calif., "the time is right" for a comeback. He said Susan and three brothers — Bob, Paul, 25, and John, 21 — have signed on with Elektra-Asylum records and "they'll essentially start where they left off."

"Of course, it's not in the same context as it was before," he said. "Now they're a contemporary group whose members just all happen to be brothers and sisters."

But there is always "a certain amount of interest in family-oriented groups," he said.

And, according to Mrs. Cowsill, her children are excited with the prospect of making a comeback. "It's more fun for them now. It's not a life-death thing with them. They couldn't appreciate what was happening then."

Not that they don't remember: "They sang 'Indian Lake' to me on the phone from California this past Mother's Day."

"Dick and Jane" syndrome in vocational courses

High school vocational courses at best are not blocking girls from enrolling in traditional male fields such as auto mechanics or welding. But a recent nationwide study indicates there still is a long way to go to overcome the "Dickand-Jane" syndrome.

The study of the 1974-75 school year was made by Pennsylvania State University's Institute for Research on Human Resources. It's aim: to determine what "pacesetter" vocational schools are doing to encourage girls' entry into nontraditional fields, and how their tactics could be used elsewhere.

"We contacted all the state education departments and the U.S. Office of Education, looking for schools really making efforts to enroll women in these courses," says research assistant Lynne Kaltreider.

"We did not come up with any, so we ended up going to schools where girls were enrolling in programs where there were more boys than girls."

Ms. Kaltreider said the programs were generally in areas such as printing, television arts and industrial chemistry, not "hard" male subjects like auto body or metalwork.

The study indicated most guidance counselors believed they should not influence students' course choices, but they tended to do so by action or inaction.

In one school, counselors rejected five girls who applied for auto mechanics because "one girl might be disruptive."

The research finally focused on 11 schools in which a handful of girls were in male vocational programs. These schools "at least didn't discourage girls. We didn't think that was typical of all schools."

Even in the 11, stereotypes persisted. Asked what differences they perceived between boys and girls in their classes, teachers' responses included: "Females are neater, they don't curse, but cause sexual attraction problems," and "Males are more mechanically inclined."

Ms. Kaltreider said schools and counselors "need to go out of their way to tell parents and girls these (male) classes are available."

U.S. Department of Labor Statistics show the average woman will work outside the home 20-25 years.

An increasing number of w o m e n are heads of households, she said.

The Office of Education says 20,000 more technicians are needed annually, but fewer than half that number are graduating from training programs.

"The options are there in the technical fields that are traditionally male," Ms. Kaltreider said. "It's not a dead end."

Girls "ought to recognize these are better-paying jobs with better chances for advancement. They shouldn't feel locked into traditional areas."

She also said parents, students, counselors, teachers and administrators need to be involved.

"Counselors are in a position to open the gates or keep them closed. They should be bringing these job areas up to girls and encouraging them to enter.

"Teachers need to stop and think about whether they are treating students differently on the basis of sex. Career displays should be examined to make sure they are not stereotyped."

She said several schools found changing the names of traditionally male or female courses made it easier for both sexes to cross over. Vocational agriculture, for example, was renamed environmental occupation; bookkeeping was renamed accounting.

Other recommendations based on the study include a mandatory home economics-shop course in junior high to expose boys and girls to both areas.

"Once exposed, they may feel freer about making a choice later that isn't stereotyped," Ms. Kaltreider said.

"We were not out to prove sex discrimination when we undertook the study," said project director Jacob Kaufman, head of the institute.

"We tried to find what practices were in effect, and what could be done to improve it. There is no question the schools could do a lot more."

Kaufman said schools often need to be prodded. He said, "You penalize, you reward" by using federal funds. Peer and parental pressure are important in the course choices girls make, he added.

"The schools say they can't solve everything. A lot don't know what to do, so they don't do anything."

Drycleaners Guild to help consumer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A reader in Michigan says:

"I am no longer able to buy sticky pants hangers from our local cleaners. Will you please tell me where I can buy them? If they are not available, is there a product on the market so I can make my own?"

We were not exactly sure what you were talking about. So we asked the Guild of Professional Drycleaners in Philadelphia. A group spokesman thinks you must mean hangers with cardboard strips coated with a tacky material to prevent pants from slipping off.

The drycleaning spokesman said no shortage exists, and that type still is used. But they are not normally sold at retail. Usually they come with your cleaning.

He has promised to contact you to find out what you're interested in and to see if the group can help.

Do-it-yourself car repair, family budgeting, adult physical fitness, fireplaces and chimneys and myths about vitamins are among the subjects of free or low-cost government booklets most in demand from consumers.

The Consumer Information Center issues free catalogs several times a year saying what is available. It expects to distribute about 20 million of the publications this year, compared with 10 million last year.

Another question has arisen about the $500 vacuum cleaner that uses a water tank to pick up dirt.

One consumer in Ogden, Utah, praised the appliance as being beneficial to persons with allergies. Now we have a complaint from West Linn, Ore., about a sales tactic used to peddle the device.

The Oregon consumer says she came home one day to find a small card on her porch telling her the card might be worth a gift, depending on the color of little dot in a "magic square" in the corner of the card. The gifts listed were a case of canned soup; an eight to 10-pound turkey; or a three-pound canned ham. The card said "keep me by your fone."

Several days later, she wrote, she got a telephone call saying she had won something, provided she watched a demonstration of the sweeper.

"I am elderly and on limited income so I stopped him in his demonstration," she writes of the salesman's visit.

He left but the prize, the soup, never showed up.

"No more demonstrations," she added.

- Alan Altschuler named MIT department head

Alan A. Altshuler, professor of political science and urban studies and planning at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been appointed head of the Department of Political Science, effective July 1.

Altshuler received his B.A. degree from Cornell University in 1957, and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees, both in political science, from the University of Chicago in 1959 and 1961.

He taught at Swarthmore College and Cornell University before becoming an associate professor of political science at M.I.T. in 1966. He became professor in 1969.

In 1969-70, Dr. Altshuler served as chairman of Massachusetts Governor Francis E. Sargent's Task Force on Transportation, a committee formed to advise the governor on major transportation projects in the Greater Boston area. On the advice of this Task Force, Governor Sargent halted work on the planned expressways for Greater Boston and ordered a comprehensive planning effort to develop a new transportation plan for Eastern Massachusetts.

Altshuler then served as director of this comprehensive planning study, known as the Boston Transportation Planning Review, until he became Secretary of Transportation and Construction in 1971, a post he held until 1975.

As secretary, he continued to have overall responsibility for the Planning Review, which produced a new plan emphasizing mass transit rather than highway development for the region.

In July of 1974, Altshuler was named by Time magazine as one of the 200 outstanding young American leaders.

In January of 1975, he rejoined the M.I.T. faculty as professor in the Departments of Political Science and Urban Studies and Planning.

Alan Altschuler

Professor Altshuler is the author of two books and more than 25 articles and reports on transportation and other public policy issues. He is currently nearing completion of a book, to be published by the M.I.T. Press in 1978, tentatively titled "Politics, Innovation, and Urban Transportation Policy."

Crafts award

Third place in the "Fiber Crafts" division was won by Cheri Berman Newton, at the Second Annual Arts and Crafts Fair held last week by H. E. Harris & Co., Inc. of Boston.

Miss Berman, a secretary and correspondent with the Harris company, entered a macrame cafe curtain in the competition, in which winners were decided by employee balloting.

'Easy' reading at the library

Just in time for summer reading plans the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner has a new collection of "Easy Reads For Teens."

The titles are for teenagers 13 to 18 who have comparatively low reading levels, and should be of interest to students, parents, teachers and reading specialists.

Books selected for the list were tested for reading difficulty and assigned a grade level according to the widely used Fry Readability Formula. This grading device uses sentence length and number of word syllables as the major criteria for determining reading difficulty.

New titles in the collection on loan through the Eastern Massachusetts Regional Library System include: "Sea and Earth: The Life of Rachel Carson," "Mystery In Marrakech," "Winter In Wartime," "The Fabulous Riverboat" and "The Otis Redding Story." It is hoped the collection will promote reading interests and skills among teenagers with below average reading skills.

The books are located on the first floor of the Main Library near the Reader's Adviser Desk. For more information call the Reader's Adviser, 527-7700.

DeCordova presents 3 acts for children

In an effort to make Boston-based children's theater groups more accessible to suburban audiences, the DeCordova Museum is bringing three outstanding theater companies to its amphitheater to appear Saturday mornings starting July 9 at 10 a.m.

Productions will appeal primarily to children from ages 4-12 and all will be participatory events, encouraging children to become actively involved with the cast members.

Shakespeare & Co. will present "Comedy for Kids" which will include scenes from Winnie the Pooh, Snoopy and the Red Baron, and a touch of Shakespeare on July 9.

The Next Move Theatre Company will move in July 16 with an improvised, musical, and sometimes surrealistic revue especially for children.

On July 23 the Just Around the Corner Company presents a highly visual and traditional Japanese folk tale, "Orashima," complete with a life size puppet.

Admission for the children's programs is $2 per child at the gate or $5 for a series ticket. Adults will be admitted free when accompanied by a child.

In the event of rain, the performances will be moved into a large tent. For more information or tickets call 259-8355.

Arts in the Parks will present the Cantilena Quintet July 12 at 7:45 p.m., in a special program of ethnic music. The music of England, France, Russia, Hungary, and Lithuania will be featured.

The free concert will be at the Jackson Homestead, 527 Wasnington St. In case of rain the concert will be held at Aquinas Junior College, Jackson Road, in back of the Jackson Homestead.

Satirical music sung Wednesday at museum

DeCordova Museum in Lincoln is offering its first series of evening concerts on Wednesdays called "Concerts Under the Stars."

Permanent outdoor stage lighting has been installed to make possible the three classical shows that all start at 8 p.m.

On July 13 the Greenwood Consort presents their rollicking evening of satirical music from the 1500s, "In Praise of Folly" with their new soprano soloist Susan Larson.

July 20 brings Sam Kirjian's new group, the Boston Repertory Ballet. They will dance the New England premiere of the pas de deux, "Adagietto," by the Argentine choreographer Oscar Arraiy.

Featured guest artists will be Bonnie Wyckoff and Anthony Williams of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet. The program also includes Kirkjian's very popular ballet, "Dancing Through the Years."

The Cambridge Symphonic Brass Ensemble, Claude White conductor, will fill the amphitheater on July 27 with the sounds of multiple brass choirs playing the music of Giovanni Gabrielli and other composers from the Italian Renaissance. This will be a rare opportunity to hear this very special music in a lo ely setting.

Series tickets are available at the DeCordova Museum for $9. Admission to individual performances will be $3.50 at the gate.

Concerts must be cancelled in the event of rain. Please call 259-8355 for additional information.

He is a graduate of the University of Vermont and a director of the Bradford Trust Company in Boston.

Dr. Krane cited for rheumatism research

A Waban arthritis specialist was among five doctors who received top honors when the International Geigy Rheumatism Prizes were announced and presented in San Francisco recently.

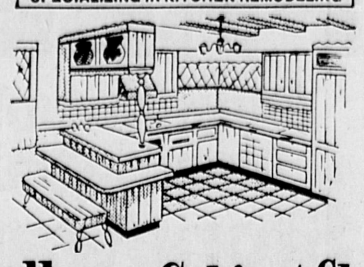

Steven Krane, M.D., of Harvard Medical School, Massachusetts General Hospital, and the Massachusetts Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, was cited for his research on enzymes involved in destroying tissues in joints affected by rheumatoid arthritis.

The award described his work as "an important contribution to the understanding of the pathological process in rheumatoid arthritis, offering new possibilities for therapy," according to the Arthritis Foundation, host of the International Congress of Rheumatology.

Krane has worked closely with Edward Harris Jr., M. D., of Dartmouth Hitchock Medical Center, Hanover, N.H., to perfect a method of growing synovial cells in tissue culture.

Such studies may yield drugs which can control the destruction of joints and body tissue involved in rheumatoid arthritis.

W. Averell Harriman: elder statesman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Age has slowed his step and made him hard of hearing, but at 84, W. Averell Harriman still advises presidents, testifies before Congress and gets his share of the society pages.

He is Washington's senior elder statesman. And now the Democrats are back in charge of the White House, Harriman is more popular than ever.

The former New York State governor and ambassador to Russia added a new cause to his interests — making sure senior citizens aren't put out to pasture just because they are past the age of retirement.

It was this concern that took Harriman to Capital Hill last month to join Col. Harlan Sanders, 86, of fried chicken fame, actress Ruth Gordon, 80, and Thomas (Tommy the Cork) Corcoran, 76, who helped write the New Deal, to testify before the House Select Committee on Aging.

"Above all, a man or woman should not be forced out of work at a given age unless they are unable to continue further," Harriman said in support of legislation to abolish compulsory retirement.

When Harriman recently attended a garden party to raise funds for the new Washington Journalism Review, a catty society columnist reported his wife had to tell him three times where he was and why.

But those close to him say that Harriman is far from senile and his mind is as sharp as ever. A severe hearing loss makes it appear he is sometimes confused, a friend said, and at 84 he is not as spry as he once was.

More often than not news reports about Harriman show up on the society page — often in connection with donations or loans of his fabulous collection of classical and modern paintings.

Harriman is also the elder statesman of the Democratic Party. He attended the Democratic National Convention in New York City last June and called a news conference to pledge his unqualified support for Jimmy Carter.

Carter didn't waste any time in putting Harriman to work. In September Harriman was sent to Russia to explain to Soviet Party boss Leonid Brezhnev what the American political process was all about.

Brezhnev was concerned about the anti-detente statements being hurled around by the candidates and Harriman explained to him that "campaigns are meant to attract the American voter and less throught is given to reaction abroad."

"I'm not sure I was able to persuade him that everything that was said was of no importance," Harriman said.

He said the Russian leader had a "lingering admiration" for Richard Nixon and did not understand why he had been forced to resign from the presidency.

Once Carter was elected, Harriman was back at his side again, flying to Plains to help the transition team form the new government.

Newton all stars top Waltham Connie Macks

By Richard Grossman

WALTHAM — The Newton National Division All Stars defeated the Waltham Connie Mack League All Stars last Thursday at Nipper Maher Park, 1-0. It was the first game of a two out of three series between the two leagues. The second game of the series will be held under the lights at Albermarle playground (8 p.m.) this Saturday. If a third game is necessary it will be held on the following Saturday at Albermarle.

Newton's squad was under the leadership of Rich 'Chick' Ciccone, the coach of Newton Center, the leading club in the National Division. Bill Keefe, coach of Artisan Metal, the leading team in Waltham's Connie Mack League, led the Waltham All Stars.

With most of his pitchers unavailable for work in the game, Ciccone went with Upper Falls' Don Ferrari through the entire game Ferrari gave up only three hits and three walks in the seven innings. He struck out two batters.

Coach Keefe started Bill Zierhoffer of the Chateau team of Waltham's league. He went two innings until he was lifted in favor of teammate Bill Hart. Hart worked three innings and was responsible for Newton's unearned run and was the losing pitcher. He gave up two hits, one walk, and struck out two. Dennis Mason finished the game, going two innings, allowing one hit, walking none and striking out two.

Newton's lone tally came in the top of the third when third baseman Jack Garabedian led off with a single. He was put out at second when pitcher Ferrari bounced to the pitcher. With the hit-and-run signal on, Newton Center's Eric DiMartino hit a single to right. Ferrari came into third standing and was waved home on an error by the right fielder who let DiMartino's hit get by him. Eric went to third on the error and tried to score on a passed ball, but catcher Rick Riordan fielded the ball and fired to Hart who tagged DiMartino out.

Waltham came up with an opportunity to even up the score in the bottom half of the third. Center fielder Tom Lorette walked, then moved to second on cather Riordan's sacrifice (Ferrari had thrown to second baseman DiMartino who was covering first). Lorette tried to grab third on the play but DiMartino whipped the ball over to Garabedian who put the tag on Lorette ending the threat.

Newton mentor 'Chick' Ciccone called it "a game of the pitchers and catchers. The fact that the pitchers were good is pretty obvious, just by looking at all the quality hitters they faced and the few hits allowed. What is really signicicant is the jobs the catchers did. Each team tried to steal twice - all four runners were caught. The arms of Phil Small (Newton catcher who threw out two Waltham baserunners) and the two Waltham catchers (Riordan and Brian McPherson who threw out one man apiece) certainly kept base runners on the defensive.

"With such skilled infields as both squads had, those kinds of things can change a game."

Newton All Stars - DiMartino 2-1; Jennings 3-0; Gentile 1-0; Small 3-0; D. Kelly 3-0; Donahue 2-0; D. DiAngelo 1-0; J. Garabedian 1-1; Ferrari 2-0; Tocci 1-1; McIntyre 1-0; Belivue 1-0. Total 21-3.

Waltham All Stars - Hopkins 3-0; Mara 2-1; Russo 3-1; MacLure 2-1; Rooney 2-1; McKenzie 3-0; Lorette 3-0; Riordan 1-0; McPhearson 1-1; Hart 0-0; Mason 1-0. Total 21-3.

'Center unbeaten at mid season

By RICH GROSSMAN

With the Newton Recreation Department's National Division baseball season half over, Newton Center remains the only undefeated team. Their 7-0-2 record with 16 points has them eight points ahead of second place Auburndale Sports Shop (3-3-2) and St. Bernard's (2-3-4). The only team that Newton Center hasn't faced to date is the Upper Falls Panthers. The Panthers have a 3-1-1 record and seven points however they have four games in hand on the Newton Center club. Newton Center will face the Panthers next Wednesday.

Last week's action saw Newton Center defeat Matthew's Club 7-2, Boys Club 13-3 and come from behind to tie Mosca Club 5-5.

Matthew's Club

Charlie Slack received the starting nod against Matthew's Club at the Cove on Monday night. Slack went the full six innings, gave up two unearned runs and yielded only four hits (all singles) and two walks. He registered six strikeouts, including the second inning when he struck out the side. At the plate the hurler was two for three and also drew a bases loaded walk, driving in the winning run.

Catcher Ralph Berry aided the cause, going one for two (with a walk) at the plate, stealing three bases and scoring twice.

Center fielder Dave Kelly was one for one (with a walk), scored twice, and stole three bases - including a theft of home in the fifth inning.

Boys Club

Against a 2-2-1 Boys Club team at West Newton Common on Tuesday night, Newton Center again had good mound work. Steve Rand picked up his fourth straight victory, making him 4-0-1. He allowed six hits, five walks, and two earned runs in six innings. He was two for four at bat and had three RBIs.

Rand's team started well with two runs in the top of the first. Leadoff man Andy Linn singled to left and was driven in by Eric DiMartino, who tripled to right. Ralph Berry followed with a single to center to drive in the second run.

Boys Club came back with a tally of their own in the bottom half of the inning. Mike Tocci led off with a triple to right and scordd on third baseman Bob Garabedian's single. Garabedian's leadoff triple followed by Dave Prince's sacrifice fly to right evened up the score in the bottom of the third.

Newton Center came up with five runs in the fourth inning on singles by Joel Dennis, Dave Kelly, and the pitcher Rand, and walks issued to Ed Consodine and Andy Linn.

Boys Club picked up one in the bottom of the fifth, but Newton Center closed the door in the sixth inning when they picked up six runs. Runs were scored on a walk, an error, a two run double by the center fielder Kelly, and a two run single by Rand.

Mosca Club

Wednesday night, Newton Center faced Mosca Club at Newton Highlands. Mosca Clu BURNED THE Center for five runs in the bottom of the first. A bases loaded triple by third baseman Mark Rubin accounted for three of these runs. Newton Center came back with single runs in the second through sixth innings to pull out with a tie.

Eric Fallon came in to relieve starter Koel Dennis with two out in the first and worked a total of 4 one-third innings, yielding only two hits and two walks. He struck out one and allowed no runs. Fallon was one for two at bat, hitting a single up the middle in the fourth, advancing to second on a ground out and scoring on a Steve Rand single. Rand pitched the final inning (and was the pitcher of record) when Fallon was lifted for a pinch hitter in the sixth.

Triple Play

Pitching in the fifth, Fallon got out of a jam in about the quickest way any pitcher can. With runners on first and second, pinch hitter Jeff Lilenthaller hit a line drive to second baseman Andy Linn. Lien stepped on second, putting out Ed Tomkins before he could get back to second and threw the ball to first baseman Dennis Fuller, catching Gary Stoloff off the bag for the third out.

Jamie Forsyth came in to run for pinch hitter Dave Bracken who reached on an error in the sixth and scored the tying run. Other scores for Newton Center were: Dave Kelly, Ed Consodine, Fallon and Fuller.

Rand came in from left field to pitch the last inning. With bases loaded and two outs, catcher Phil Small smacked a grounder up the middle which looked to be a sure single except that shortstop Eric DiMartino came up with the infield's second great play of the game. Eric made a diving stop and flipped the ball to second baseman Andy Linn to end the game.

"It is great to have a team like this because you can't keep them down," commented coah Rich 'Chick' Ciccone. "That is why we are undefeated through the first half of the season - the team just doesn't quit.

"We are playing good ball now and have to make sure that we continue through the second half of the season with this aggressive type play."

Newton Center - Slack 3-2; DiMartino 4-0; Venditti 4-0; Berry 2-1; Moriarity 2-0; Consodine 1-0; D. Kelly 2-1; Williams 1-0; Bracken 0-0; Fallon 1-0; Dennis 1-1; Riviere 1-0; Linn 2-1. Total 24-6

Business Briefs

Credit Union League elects Robert Finelli

Robert N. Finelli of 39 Melbourne Ave., Newtonville, has been elected to serve a two-year term as second vice president of the Credit Union League of Massachusetts Inc.

He is responsible for governing the 300 league-member credit unions across the state which together have combined assets of $1.2 billion.

Finelli is treasurer-manager of the Boston Gas Employees Credit Union, a position he has held since 1972. He joined Boston Gas in 1949, and was the assistant treasurer of the Employees Credit Union for 11 years. He has been a member of its board of directors for the past 16 years.

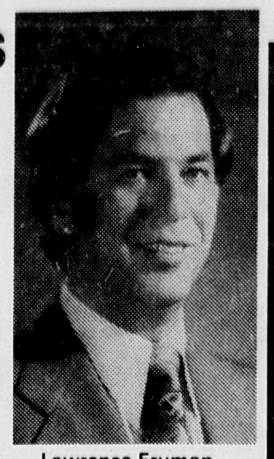

He is past treasurer and president of the Boston Gas Employees Association.

A lifelong resident of Newton, Finelli is a 1949 graduate of Our Lady's High School (now Newton Catholic), executive vice president and treasurer of Newton North Little League, and a member of American Legion Post 440 of Newton.

He and his wife, Rosemarie, have four children.

Five residents deliver dental research papers

Five Newton residents were among 41 Forsyth Dental Center researchers whose papers were presented at the annual general session of the American Association for Dental Research at MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev., recently.

The residents are Viantha Qureshi of 125 Lexington St., who co-authored the article "Specific Binding of Blood Group Reactive Salivary Mucins by Strains of S. Mutans and Other Oral Bacteria."

Dr. Ralph Lobene of 696 Walnut St., dean of Forsyth School for Dental Hygienists, wrote a paper on "The Effect of a Cetypridinium Chloride Mouthwash on Human Plaque and Gingivtis."

Frank J. Bunick of 169 Homer St. presented his paper on the "Studies on the Responses of Oral Streptococci to Fluoride."

Dr. Martin Taubman of 28 Otis St., Newtonville, presented an article entitled "Secretory Antibody Response to Particulate and Soluble Antigens."

Dr. Finn Brudevold of 284 Woodward St., Waban, wrote a paper entitled "Dental Fluorosis as Related to the Concentration of Floride in Teeth and Bone."

A total of 30 papers on dental research conducted at Forsyth, the largest private oral health research facility in the U.S., were given at the conclave. Forsyth is next to Boston Museum of Fine Arts in the Fenway.

Solar energy advisors to promote new industry

Secretary of Consumer Affairs Christine Sullivan has announced the formation of a Solar Energy Advisory Committee which will provide her with assistance in developing a solar industry in MYASSACHUSETTS.

The committee's membership includes educators, plumbers, legislators, union officials, contractors and bankers.

"The solar industry, developed with the cooperation of both government and the business community, could create 11,000 new jobs in Massachusetts by 1982," Sullivan said.

The topics discussed at the initial meeting of the advisory committee included the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's solar energy grant supplying $400 to 1,375 state residents to help pay the cost of solar domestic hot water systems in single family homes.

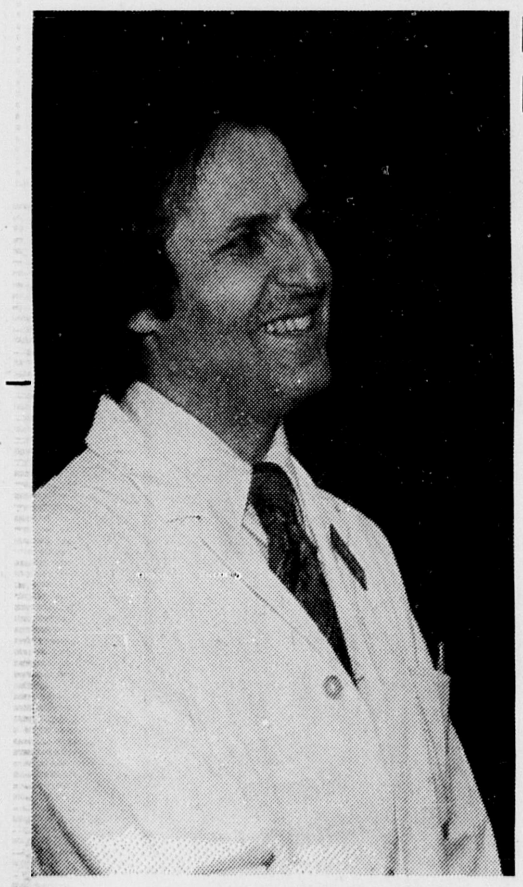

Sullivan told the committee her office, which is directing the state's HUD program, has already received more than 1,600 inquiries from persons interested in obtaining a grant.

At the meeting Sullivan also said she has established a Solar Action Office to administer the grant program and to promote a healthy solar industry.

Some of the new office's responsibilities will be to track down federal monies for solar energy, work with other state and local agencies involved with solar, and provide booklets for both homeowners and installers interested in this form of energy.

She encouraged homeowners and others interested in solar to contact the office for further information. The office has several publications available, including a pamphlet titled, "Why the Sun?"

The Solar Action Office is located in Room 1413, One Ashburton Place, Boston, 02108, phone 727-7755.

Dr. Kenneth Arndt of Newton has been named head of the dermatology department of Beth Israel Hospital. He has been the head of the outpatient clinic in dermatology at the hospital .

Boston teachers elect Krozy to top board

Arthur Krozy of Newton has been re-elected to the 17-member Executive Board of the Boston Teachers Union (BTU). Krozy teaches physical education and health education and civics at Mario Umana Harbor School of Science & Technology

More than one-third of all union members voted in the election, the largest ever, casting over 2,000 ballots at BTU's new Bayside Mall offices.

Krozy has also taught physical and health education at Boston English High and the Joseph H. Barnes School (as both a junior and middle school).

An active member of the BTU, Krozy will continue to serve as a delegate to the conventions of BTU's parent organizations, the Massachusetts Federation of Teachers and the American Federation of Teachers, and as a delegate to the Greater Boston Labor Council and the Massachusetts AFL-CIO.

In addition, he has been appointed to the board's Legal Subcommittee. Krozy is a member of the BTU Editorial Board, a union building representative, and a Grievance Committee member.

Krozy was first elected to the executive committee in 1970. He has served on the Negotiating Team and the Executive Board of the Greater Boston Labor Council.

Krozy is a member of his school's Faculty Senate and served on the New Barnes (now Umana Harbor School) Middle School Educational Planning Committee.

Krozy, who holds a B.S. in physical education from Boston University, has been a trustee of the Boston Teachers Union Health and Welfare Fund since its inception.

Campaign to let pets breathe in cars begins

Have you been frustrated by the sight of an animal panting for air in a hot closed car?

The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals offers a way to get your message across to irresponsible pet owners.

Many pet owners are not mindful of an animal's need for necessary ventilation, or else can't be bothered to leave the car windows open at least six inches to keep the car from becoming an oven.

The MSPCA will furnish to those who would like to help Hot Car Cards to place on the car windshields of offending pet owners.

If you would like to do something about it call the MSPCA at 522-5055, ext. 180, and request your Hot Car Cards (20 for each volunteer), or write the Public Information Office, MSPCA, 350 S. Huntington Ave., Jamaica Plain, 02130.

Rx for your pool's pH.

Arm & Hammer Baking Soda improves and maintains your pool's ideal pH without the use of harsh chemicals.

Every pool needs a chlorinating product. And every chlorinating product needs a partner to keep your pool's pH at the ideal level.

You can use harsh chemicals.

Or you can use 100% natural Arm & Hammer Baking Soda.

Arm & Hammer Baking Soda is a natural acid neutralizer and buffering agent which helps maintain pool pH at the ideal range of 7.8 to 8.2.

And an ideal pH helps prevent red, stinging eyes. It even helps keep pool water crystal clear.

Recommended Rx for pool pH: Add 1 lb. of Baking Soda per 10,000 gallons of water weekly if pH tests below 8.2. Add a chlorinating product as needed.

Try Arm & Hammer Baking Soda in your pool. It's the ideal solution to the ideal pH.

Sons of Italy grants scholarships

Nonantum Sons of Italy Lo ge No. 1069 recently held a scholarship awards night and presented three awards.

Recipients were Tina Cotoia and Antonio Caruso of Newton North High School and Debra Toomey of Newton Catholic High School.

Miss Cotoia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Cotoia of 18 Beech St., Newton, received a $400 scholarship. A letter recipient in basketball and softball at Newton North, she plans to major in physical education at Northeastern University. She was also honored by the Nonantum Woman,s Club, Newton YMCA Women's Auxiliary , Barry House at North and Chaffin Fund with scholarship.

Miss Toomey, also a recipient of a $400 scholarship, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Toomey of 20 Clinton St., Newton.

She is a member of the National Honor Society and studies both ballet and karate at the Newton YMCA.

Miss Toomey plans to attend Aquinas Jr. College and wants to become a medical assistant.

A special plaque for "excellence in Italian" and a cash award were given to Antonio Caruso. Maria Vellone, teacher of Italian, recommended him for the award. Caruso is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Caruso of 312 Cherry St., West Newton

Head table guests at the awards night were: Sister Anna Vincent Clark, principal of Newton Caltholic High School; and Norman Gaudet, housemaster, Adams House and Newton North an and chairman of the NNHS Scholarship Foundation.

Refreshments were served by members of the Fiore D'Italia Lodge.

Condominium control bill given House approval

Condominium control bill. given House approval 3-36T1

State Reps. Lois G. Pines and Peter Harrington of Newton have announced that the Massachusetts House of Representatives has given initial approval to House Bill 6263, a proposal to protect the consumer by regulating the sale of condominiums and the conversion of rental housing into condominiums.

Pines and Harrington have been fighting for protection of condominiums purchasers for the past four years.

According to Harrington, who is floor manager of the bill for the Joint Legislative Urban Affairs Committee, "The popularity of condominium living has increased dramatically in recent years. Unfortunately, abuse and fraud have experienced similar growth as well. Consumers have placed blind faith in state and federal regulations to protect their interests but those legal controls are presently nonexistent."

"Unscrupulous developers are well aware of this lack of regulations and have exploited the situation. Our proposals as embodied in House Bill 6263 are designed to close the loopholes. This is especially important because condominiums are the fastest— growing sector of the housing industry, involving the rights of millions," Pines stated.

The federal government estimates that one-half of the population will be living in condominiums within 20 years. A 1973 survey by the Department of Housing and Urban Development found that nearly half of all new housing units in 25 major metropolitan areas were condominiums.

The Newton lawmakers' efforts to establish a tough, comprehensive code have concentrated on two major issues — conversion and sales. Their concern regarding conversion centers on the need to protect tenants from the automatic loss of housing due to conversion from rental apartment to condominium.

House Bill 6263 would require that the owner of the property to be converted give tenants at least four months prior notice of his intention; that actual conversion cannot begin for at least four months after tenants have received such notice; and tenants would be notified of their exclusive right to purchase the unit within 120 days following receipt of such notice.

The proposed regulations controlling the sale of condominium units are far-reaching, reflecting the present lack of applicable statutes. Some of the major sections include:

— Requiring developers to file and update full disclosure statements with the Secretary of Consumer Affairs.

— Empowering both the secretary and the attorney general to prosecute unlawful practices and misleading claims.

— Providing potential buyers with the opportunity to review pertinent material concerning closing costs and financing before signing any purchase-and-sale agreement and giving a 10-day period of recession.

— Warranting the dwelling unit and common areas against faulty workmanship for one year; all sewage, plumbing, electrical and heating and cooling systems for two years; and habitability for three years.

— Prohibiting exclusive management contracts for longer than two years, recreational leases, "sweetheart deals" and exclusive sales agreements with the developer.

—Extending the remedies of Massachusetts general laws (unfair and deceptive acts and practices) to condominium purchasers.

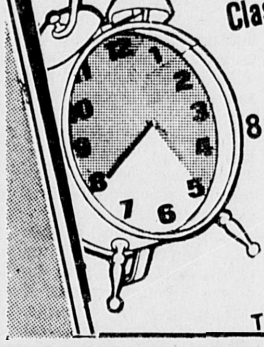

Pines said, "The home is the most expensive and important investment a person will ever make. The abuses which have characterized the condominium industry must be stopped."

"It is our belief that this legislation is a long-overdue first step in providing consumers with the rights and protection that are necessary to insure fair dealing in the condominium market," Harrington concluded.

WEEI Film Critic Leu Lawrence (standing center) chats with Mitzi Caiola (seated right) on a Boston Harbor cruise celebrating the recent premiere of the movie, "The Deep." Ms. Caiola of Newton was first prize winner in the radio station's "Day on the Deep" contest. She and three guests got to attend the June 16 premiere of the movie and dinner at the Mermaid Tavern in the Sheraton-Boston.

N-W patients enjoying 'every night at the movies'

Paul Newman, Anne Bancroft and Marlon Brando have been entertaining patients at Newton-Wellesley Hospital for the past several weeks.

The new entertainment system brings them to patients via movies, shown over a closed circuit in-house network

The first in New England to offer the movie service, Newton— Wellesley shows the films over television sets in the patients' rooms. The movies are actually videocassettes played on videoplayers.

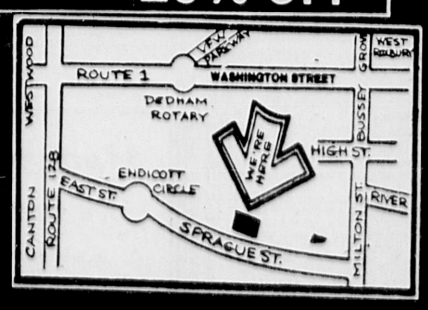

The movies, all rated G or GP, are shown four times a day, at noon, 3, 6, and 9 p.m. Seven different movies run consecutively, one each day, and the selection changes regularly. Since the average patient stay is only nine days, few patients see repeats.

The cost of the movies is included in the daily TV rental charge, and patients who rent TV's are given a schedule listing the movies and show times.

Michael S. Varadian, hospital assistant administrator, says the service was introduced to make the patients' stay more pleasant and "to combat the boredom and frustration often associated with recuperation."

The new entertainment has met with enthusiasm on the part of patients. According to Carol Downing, the hospital's television hostess, "They especially like the idea of being able to see a movie after visiting hours are over at 9 p.m."

Current movie showings include "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," "Winterhawk," "The Missouri Breaks," as well as others.

OBITUARIES

John Moore

The funeral of John N. Moore, will be held Friday (July 8) from the Martin E. Conroy Funeral Home, 439 Washington St., Newton, at 8 a.m. to Our Lady's Church for a 9 a.m. funeral mass.

Mr. Moore, 65, of 1B Wiltshire Rd., Newton, died Tuesday (July 6) at his home.

A resident of Newton for 43 years, Mr. Moore was a retired Middlesex & Boston Street Railway driver. He was a member of Our Lady's Holy Name Society and an associate member of American Legion Post No. 440 in Nonantum.

Husband of the late Catherine M. Moore, Mr. Moore is survived by his son, John J. of Newton; two daughters, Mrs. Maureen Daly of Newton and Mrs. Kathleen A. Gavini of Holliston; a sister, Mrs. Mary M. Lally; a brother Norman E. Moore and 10 grandchildren.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Bertha M. Fisher

Funeral services were held Wednesday (July 6) at the H.L. Young Funeral Home in Franklin, N.H., for Miss Bertha Mary Fisher, a resident of Newton for 45 years.

Miss Fisher, 100, formerly of 42 Pelham St., Newton Centre, died Sunday (July 3) in the Peabody Home, Franklin, where she had lived for the past four years.

Miss Fisher was a former Newton school teacher and had been a member of the Unitarian Society in West Newton and the West Newton Woman's Club. She would have been 101 in November.

She is survived by her sister, Mrs. Alexander Livingstone of Franklin; and several nieces, nephews and cousins.

Burial is in Pleasant Street Cemetery, Claremont, N.H.

Patrick J. Kelly

A funeral mass was celebrated Wednesday (July 6) in Our Lady's Church for Patrick J. Kelly.

Mr. Kelly, 88, of 20 Minot Pl., Newtonville, died Friday (July 1) at his home after a long illness. He was born in County Galway, Ireland, and had lived in Newton most of his life.

Mr. Kelly worked as a chauffeur for the City of Newton and retired 23 years ago. He was a World War I Army veteran and was a member of Our Lady's Holy Name Society and the Catholic Order of Foresters.

Mr. Kelly is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Kelly; four sons, John J. and Thomas E., both of Newton; Francis J. and Paul D., both of Waltham; two daughters, Marie C. of Newton and Mrs. Dorothy O'Rourke of Waltham.

Fred Frankel is ready to help you overcome your fears

Do you have a fear of flying? Do you suffer from other fears?

Perhaps Dr. Fred H. Frankel can help you.

Dr. Frankel of Waban is head of the clinic for therapeutic hypnosis at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston where he has found that hypnosis is "particularly useful as a treatment for patients with phobias of all types — if they are hypnotizeable."

And research shows that phobics are usually very hypnotizeable indeed.

Frankel is an expert on hypnosis and author of a book called "Hypnosis: Trance as a Coping Mechanism," published by Plenum, 1976.

He is emphatic in differentiating between legitimate and not-so-legitimate uses of hypnosis in a therapeutic setting and believes that in a non-therapeutic situation, hypnotism should be avoided.

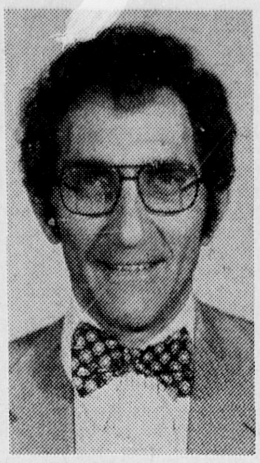

"The response to hypnosis is an interesting and highly personal event for those who can experience it. It involves a confidence and trust between hypnotist and subject which should be met with respect and consideration.

"Vulgarising the event and taking advantage of it by entertaining the public with hypnotized subjects acting in foolish or amusing ways is indefensible," said Frankel, who himself uses and teaches others to use hypnosis for more constructive purposes.

A member of the Beth Israel Psychiatry Department for nine years, Frankel is intent on demystifying hypnosis and on clarifying its uses as a tool in psychiatry, medicine, and dentistry.

He describes the ability to be hypnotized as a capacity to follow suggestions in how to perceive reality differently. The experience includes the development of altered perceptions of one's body or the outside world, as the result of ideas coming from another person.

He points out that in hypnosis an awareness of the true reality persists peripherally, and that the level of the experience itself can fluctuate.

Dr. Fred Frankel

"The idea that 'you are in my power' when I hypnotize you," says Dr. Frankel, "is less credible when you realize that people do not really lose touch with their environment, and can interrupt the proceedings at any time they might wish to."

"Hypnotism has received bad press," comments Dr. Frankel. "Literature and drama since the latter part of the nineteenth century have falsely represented its uses and powers. Even clinicians have been unrealistic in their enthusiasm for it, and some have used it as a panacea or cure-all. Obviously, nothing works as a panacea; hypnosis is no exception."

The Beth Israel psychiatrist explains that "Traditionally, hypnosis has been used successfully in two ways. The first is symptom removal.

"Some symptoms, whether of psychological or physiological origin, can be relieved through hypnosis, if the patient is hypnotizeable.

"The second major clinical use of hypnosis has been to help patients explore and uncover psychiatrically important material. When appropriate suggestions are made to them, they can often reveal past events and conflicts better when hypnotized than when in a normal state.'

He also said, "Hypnosis works well in helping people to stop smoking or lose weight. For weight control, it seems to be more effective when it is used as part of a comprehensive treatment program than when it is used alone."

In the treatment of phobias, Frankel ponders why almost all persons with phobias are responsive to hypnosis. "It could be that their ability to experience hypnosis is related in some way to their development of the phobia in this first instance.

"The events in hypnosis and in the experience of the phobia are not dissimilar. By having them become familiar with hypnosis and then self-hypnosis in the reassuring environment of the doctor's office, patients gain the confidence and the ability to control the phobic situation that was previously overwhelming to them."

It is not difficult to learn how to hypnotize people, according to Dr. Frankel.

"You have them relax, close their eyes or focus attention on something until, for example, a hand or finger feels lighter as the result of a suggestion, and then moves into an upright position.

"You then make suggestions that will intensify the experience.

"I think it very important that I not leave the impression that anyone should undertake to practice hypnosis. It is precisely because it is an easily acquired skill that the hypnotist should know what to do once the patient is hypnotized.

"For that he needs to have had formal instruction in the use of hypnosis in his special area of training.

"For instance, he should be a trained psychotherapist if he plans to use hypnosis as an aid to psychotherapy.

"Dentists and physicians who rightfully use hypnosis to relieve pain or anxiety are not equipped by virtue of their skills in hypnosis to treat people with emotional problems, unless they have had the additional training needed to treat such patients without hypnosis," he said.

Frankel, who earned a diploma in psychological medicine from Wit Wateis Rand University in South Afirca in 1952, estimated that 25 to 30 percent of the general population is not susceptable to hypnotism. Most people are hypnotizeable with 25 to 30 percent of the public very easily hypnotizeable.

He and other members of the department of psychiatry at the Hospital are now working with another Beth Israel physician, Herbert Benson, author of "Relaxation Response," who has done much work with meditation, to compare the experiences and the therapeutic effectiveness of the relaxation response with that of self-hypnosis aimed at relaxation.

"Hypnosis has been accepted as a legitimate part of treatment by the American Medical Association and the American Psychiatric Association for over 15 years," Frankel said.

Problems and potential dangers arise only when it is used for the wrong reasons or on its own for show purposes, as the stage hypnotist uses it. It is a valuable added tool for dentists, doctors, psychologists and psychiatrists."

The MLS Advantage

- Over 300 Different Companies
- Over 2400 Selling Agents
- Thousands of Listings to Choose From

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Figures released by the Multiple Listing Service of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board, show a gain of 30% in total sales of 56 cities and towns, served by the board in 1976. According to local Realtors, mortgage money is available and rates are lower then they have been in some time. MLS is the modern professional one stop-one office way to buy or sell your home. Through this facility listings are exchanged among Realtors, and buyers and sellers benefit from the cooperating efforts of the brokers. As a seller your home will have exposure to hundreds of brokers and yet the convenience of working with their own MLS office. Buyers have the advantage of working with one office and having access to all of the participating Realtors listings. Council I&M of the Boston Board is comprised of 16 towns with some 80 offices involved. In order to further promote MLS, this council meets every second and fourth Tuesday of the month at the Pancake House in Walpole. A business meeting is conducted and then the brokers discuss their listings or a particular type of property they might be looking for. Many sales are effected through these efforts.

The Green Thumb

By George Abraham

Cage Your Tomatoes — Animals aren't the only things kept in cages! Smart gardners are growing their tomatoes in cages for several reasons: Cages allow for upright growth, taking less space. They 're great for people who do not have space to allow the plants to sprawl on the ground. Caged plants grown on a wire corset, or cage, need no pruning or staking, and as an extra bonus the fruit is cleaner, freer from insects, slugs and diseases.

When fruit is allowed to rest on the soil or on a mulch, it may rot. Cagedplants get more air circulation wuich reduces disease. In case you're wondering, a tomato cage is nothing more than a cylinder of wire mesh that holds the stems of the tomatoes upright as they grow. We use concrete reinforcing wire with a 6-inch mesh because it is strong enough when formed into a cylinder to hold the plants, and at the same time the mesh is large enough to reach through to pick the tomatoes.

If you can afford galvanized fence since it does not rust out. However, however, the reinforcing wire fence will last a good many years. To make a cage, take a piece of mesh about 5 feet high and 6 feet long. Form the cage by bending the mesh into a cylinder and hooking the ends together tightly. When the 5-foot tall cage is positioned upright around the plant, it should be staked to keep it from being pushed over by the weight of the plant and fruit during strong winds. As the plant grows, it may occasionally be necessary to push branches inside the cage. Sometimes the plant may be excessively bushy and when this happens break off side branches that extend beyond the cage.

Tomatoes grown in cages are similar in size and production to those spread over the ground. You really don't have to worry about pruning (also called "suckering" of tomatoes) caged tomatoes. A variation of the staked and caged tomato is growing them on a straight wire fence, with a pole on each end to support the wire. This saves time by eliminating the job of making a cage for each plant. You simply set the plants in the ground at the base of the wire fence and train the plants upward. Fruit can be picked on both sides of the fence. Which ever method you use, it's still a good idea to apply a mulch around the caged plants or fenced ones, to conserve moisture.

If you believe in "suckering" tomatoes, don't be surprised if you get fewer fruit per plant; however, these are often larger. Plants that are pruned and staked take less space, meaning more plants can be growing in a smaller area, so overall production may not be reduced, but often increased.

Green Thumb Clinic — "The leaves in our gloxinias and violets are spindly. Why?"

Ans.— It's a sign of insufficient light. Move plants to a brighter window or use flourescent lights, if possible.

ASTROLOGY

Strength and Weaknesses

Q. I was born on January 31, 1952 at 9:58 p. m. in Lawrence, MA. What are my strengths and weaknesses, abilities, disposition and mental outlook. I am very much interested in the Moon's relevance in an individuals horoscope.

L. B.

A. Briefly the moon is indicative of the emotions, ancestral pattern, the instincts and the subconscious mind.

You have much going for you if you will only take advantage of it. You have the creative ability and imagination, can be just and honorable and have excellent mental potentials which can benefit through a formal education. You are somewhat of a philosopher and have an ability to grasp generalities and to keep the whole picture in your mind.

As Dale Carnegie said so well, you know how to "win friends and influence people" and the older you get the more evident this will become.

An obstacle to be overcome is a tendency at times to let your mind wander or to be easily distracted. You can and should develop the ability to concentrate on the matter at hand.

Also, as quoted in August Mare, "Story of My Life" "If you your lips would keep from slips, of five things have a care: To whom you speak, of whom you speak, And how, and when, and where." C

Finally the position and aspects to the planet Neptune in your horoscope cautions you to never let yourself be tempted to experiment with drugs. You do have will power and can avoid it.

—o—

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, MA 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

Volunteers honored for service

With the end of the school year one of the school's most important functions was to honor several members of the surrounding South Shore communities for their "Outstanding Volunteer Service." All made contribution to the overall St. Coletta Program.

Those receiving plaques were Patricia Mahoney, 146 Academy Street, Braintree, Sibohan Nolan, 113 Standish Avenue, North Quincy; Richard Crisafulli of 49 Fallon Circle, Braintree; Irene Gallagher, 96 Assabet Road, Quincy; Marie Gurley, 15 Fredericka Street, Dorchester; Rosemarie and Domenic Pasciucco, 10 Tower Avenue, Brant Rock, Marshfield.

Certificate of appreciation were also received by Geraldine Breen, 25 Lisle Street, Braintree; Gail Caprarella, 27 Elda Drive, Norwood; Evenly Valezania, 133 Whitter Road, Milton; Mary Sears, 106 Hollis Avenue, Braintree; Linda Simkus, 1492 Quincy Shore Drive, Quincy.

ARKLA chefs grill with gas

WELLESLEY — At 4 p.m. Friday, the 27th ARKLA Traveling Chef Wagon, piloted by Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Merton, will roll into the Grossman's parking lot on Washington Street.

ARKLA is the manufacturer of outdoor gas grilles and Mr. and Mrs. Merton have logged over 90,000 miles in their custom traveling chef wagon throughout the country, demonstrating outdoor gas grill cookery.

Since temperature can be regulated without having to adjust grate height or wetting down coals (as is the case with conventional grilles), the outdoor gas grille can be used to cook a complete meal from meats to bread, cookies and pies.

The public is invited to attend this cooking event from 4 to 7 p.m., Friday, at Grossman's in Wellesley.

Share the ride with a friend. It sure beats driving alone.

504 SL Sedan. With luxuries like a sunroof, tinted glass, four-wheel power assisted disc brakes, four-wheel independent suspension, electric front windows, and power-assisted rack and pinion steering as standard equipment.

504 SL Wagon. Unlike wagons that are merely squared-off sedans, this one was designed as a station wagon from the ground up, to carry 1290-pound loads but still handle like a compact sedan

504 GL Sedan. An economical (24 mpg highway, 17 mpg city*), compact-size sedan with the roominess and comforts of a full-size luxury car.

504 Diesel Sedan. It runs on fuel that's generally several cents per gallon cheaper than gasoline. And uses that fuel so efficiently, it gets 35 mpg on the highway, 27 mpg in the city.*

504 Diesel Wagon. The only diesel station wagon in America.

JFK limousine now at museum

The 21-foot-long Lincoln Continental limousine in which John F. Kennedy was riding when he was shot in Dallas is no longer part of the White House fleet. The vehicle, with 55,331 miles on the odometer, has been quietly shipped to Dearborn, Mich., where it will eventually go on display at the Henry Ford Museum.

After the Associated Press ferreted out the switch, museum official Donald Adams admitted that the car is slated to go on display there, but not for some years. "We've been keeping it rather quiet that we have it"' Adams told the wire service. "Due to the tragedy associated with the car, we feel it is not a good idea to exhibit it now. We don't want to capitalize on the tragedy of the situation."

The White House still has two other long limos in its garages, but President Carter usually opts for the less showy black sedans.

If the Kennedy Continental produced in early 1961 is to look to museum visitors as it did in Dallas on November 22, 1963, it will need extensive alterations. Then, it was a convertible, and Kennedy was riding with the top down. After the assassination, the soft top was replaced with a bulletproof "bubble" which lets dignitaries riding in the car be visible along parade routes, but still protected from assault. A new interior and more powerful engine were also added in that remodeling.

Hood ornaments

Avoiding an object in the roadway or momentary inattention can result in the right wheel dropping off the highway, causing a variation in the control of the car.

This happens more frequently at night because of approaching cars with glaring headlights, observes Haskell B. Shultz, driver education consultant.

A driver can condition his reflexes to the sensation of the car dropping off the roadway. He should practice maneuvering his front wheel off the highway, first slowly and then at increasing speeds to become accustomed to the experience, Shultz suggests. Then, if it should occur unexpectedly' he is less apt to panic and 4 is conditioned to control the situation, Shultz explained.

Firms jump on CB band wagon

The boom in citizen band radios, started by truckers and fueled by other drivers who enjoy talking to their "good buddies" as they roll along the highway, has been a bonanza for small manufacturers who turn out the sets. But now the fad has reached such a big dollar volume that large electronics companies are moving into the market.

The latest to announce such a move is Texas Instruments, Inc., the big producer of semiconductors. Unlike such companies as General Electric and Motorola, which are aiming at the moderate priced middle of the CB market, TI is going for the big spenders. Its units to hit the stores this fall, will sell for around $350. The big plus TI is offering is a set of pushbutton controls built into the microphone that will allow users to dial directly to any other CB unit, even turn on a radio not then in use.

TI thinks that, overall, the total sales of CB's and other "personal communications equipment" now around $1 billion a year in U.S. sales

Gas guzzlers

The talk about a "gas guzzler tax" isn't confined to Washington. The North Carolina legislature is considering a bill that would freeze automobile license fees at the present $15 a year for cars that average 18 miles or more per gallon of gas, but hike the tag prices on models less fuel efficient, to an eventual top of $50.

Safety

One keynote of the 1977 automobiles being turned out by U.S. manufacturers is the return of the hood ornaments, called "mascots" by real automobile buffs. A virtual fixture of all cars until 20 years ago, they fell out of favor because of the safety hazard of a sharp edge protruding from the front of the car. But with the current incarnations being mounted on springs, that particular problem is gone.

Insurance

From the Alleghenies to the Pacific Ocean, insurance rates for automobile liability and collision coverage have been rising pretty much like most other consumer costs. But along the east coast of the United States, rates have been zooming so in the past three years that they are becoming a real crisis for some families.

One solution is to cut down on the amount of coverage. Now policies with a $200 deductible are being sold in situations which typically would have called for the motorist to pay only the first $100 of any crash repairs on his own car.

Another solution is to use political levers to try to curb further rate increases. For instance, the insurance industry is under heat in New York, where consumerists are fighting a bid to up rates 59.5 per cent for drivers who are rated as high risks. New York has already granted two increases, totalling 33 per cent, over the most recent two years.

New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Florida are other states where insurance rates have been rising particularly steeply.

The higher rates are in direct response to rising costs for automobile repairs and for medical treatment for accident victims. Prices in both categories took off more dramatically with the end of federal price controls in April 1974. Says Hale C. Reed, vice president in charge of the auto insurance business at Travelers Corp., "None of us had foreseen such runaway inflation, and by the end of 1974, we were all losing money. What looked like a substantial profit for 1974 became a substantial deficit."

But the new opposition to rate rises is calling into question some basic practices in the industry. For instance, such costs of writing a policy as the salesman's commission and home office expenses are figured as a percentage of the basic rate, which means that a driver rated as a high risk may pay more than three times as much for these services as a low-risk motorist, and 4 yet there are no extra expenses in providing the services.

Unity?

Under the Law of Return in Israel, any Jew — even a convert — has the right to Israeli citizenship. But the nation's new prime minister may decide to put limits on this right for converts. In an effort to put together a coalition in Israel's parliament, he is reportedly planning to allow only those converted under Orthodox Jewish law to move in as citizens. The 63-year-old prime minister scored a stunning upset in May, when his Likud Party ended the Labor Party's 29-year rule in Israel. "Likud" is the Hebrew word for "unity." The Israeli leader is scheduled to visit the United States later this month.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is Israel's new prime minister?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Menahem Begin is Israel's new prime minister.

SHARING THE SALVATION ARMY IS CARING

One of the by-products of the new electronic dispensing equipment that is replacing the old-style pumps in service stations is that it is any easy task to change the prices on pump meters. This, predicts National Petroleum News Bulletin, a trade weekly, means that some stations will soon be charging different prices at different times of day, lowering the tag during the day, when many stations compete for business, and upping it at night, when fewer outlets are open.

Reagle Players set schedule

Rodgers and Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music," will open the Waltham Summer Theatre's ninth season on July 20 at 8 p.m. in the air-conditioned Robinson Auditorium, Waltham High School, 617 Lexington St. Other shows include a July 19 matinee and evening performances, July 23 and 24.

Completing the season will be Broadway's longest-running musical, "Fiddler on the Roof," Aug. 2 (matinee), and at 8 p.m. Aug. 3, 6 and 7.

Director-founder of the organization is Robert J. Eagle, director of drama for Waltham Public Schools. Noreen Diamond is the musical director. Daphne Lowell is choreographer.

Amish quilts from Ohio show distinctive designs

Amish quilts made in the Amish communities in Ohio are currently on exhibit at the Museum of Our National Heritage in Lexington. It is the first exhibit in this country devoted entirely to the quilts of the Ohio Amish.

The Amish borrowed the concept of the pieced quilt from their 'English' neighbors. Using scraps of dark, solid-colored cloth common in Amish clothing, Amish women began making quilts in their own distinctive style.

The plain quilts consist of a solid color with a contrasting border and intricate designs of meticulous quilting stitches. The patterns of Ohio Amish quilts are generally geometric variations of squares, diamonds, and rectangles.

Prized for their beauty, craftsmanship, originality, and brilliant use of color, these quilts are remarkable products for a plain people who prefer simplicity.

This collection of quilts is particularly interesting because many were collected directly from their Amish owners by Darwin Bearley of Akron, Ohio.

Many of the fines quilts were only used on the beds of the house on Sundays or on special occasions. Today, the Amish are surprised that people want the older, darker quilts.

After 1940, recognizing a source for income, the Amish began making more colorful and pastel-colored quilts to sell to the "English."

Not preoccupied with material possessions, the Amish feel their quilts are utilitarian objects to be used. It is not uncommon to find a new quilt top sewn right over an early quilt.

Bearley has collected these quilts for their outstanding quality and design.

Dating from about 1870 to the early 1900s, they display the form and patterns that were borrowed from outside the Amish communities.

The bold designs reflect the directness and strength of the Amish faith and the simplicity of their way of life.

The exhibit, including quilts and original photographs, will remain on display at the Museum of Our National Heritage through Sept. 26. Located at 33 Marrett Rd., Rte. 2A, Lexington, the museum is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sundays from noon to 5:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Condominum conversion bid upsets renters

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Seventy-eight-year-old Mary Crean and some 45 other tenants of 35 apartments on Norwood Avenue, Newton Centre, have been told to either buy their apartments or move out.

Mrs. Crean and the rest of the tenants, mainly elderly people, are the victims of the trend toward converting apartments to condominiums. None is protected with a lease.

The apartments, at 55-85 Norwood Ave., have been offered for sale as condominiums, but no formal notice to vacate has been sent the tenants, according to the apartments' owner, Felix Orlandella.

The tenants, many of whom are in their late seventies, are understandably upset and fearful of losing their homes. They are also upset with the tactics of the real estate agent, Robert Healey, who they feel has misrepresented the situation to them.

Healy, according to one tenant, told her that her apartment has been sold.

Felix Orlandella, Sr., in a telephone interview Wednesday said that he had heard reports about the agent's conduct and had "spoken to him about it."

Healey on Tuesday would not comment, when asked about tenants' complaints.

Tenants were notified last month that their apartments were to be converted to condominiums and were offered a chance to buy, Orlandella said, but none replied to the letter. Another letter is being sent this week, he said.

Orlandella said he has been losing $10,000-$15,000 a year on the property, and "I can can't keep doing that."

"I didn't want to squeeze them with rent," he said. According to the tenants'

More families per house given Land Use approval

An amendment to the zoning ordinances that can allow co version of single-family houses to two-families in Residence C zone and the conversion of two-family houses for oc upancy by three or more families was approved 5-1 by the Land Use Committee Monday night.

The amendment could allow the creation legal of 334 three-family houses and 198 two-family houses, according to tment data.

The proposal was offered by Ald. Terry Morris as an extension of a two-year-old ordinance that allows conversion of large houses on large lots in Residence A and B districts.

In Morris' new proposal, the conversion of single- to two-family houses would be allowed' with permission of the Board of Aldermen, in Residence C district, when the lot size is large enough to provide 10,000 square feet per housing unit. The current requirement for Residence C (single residence) is a 10,000-sq. ft. lot.

There are 198 lots in Residence C, mainly in Auburndale and Newton Highlands, that have 20,000 feet or more, according to the Planning Department. Presumably, if some lots contain 30,000 square feet, e house in Residence C could be converted to a three-family house; the proposed amendment is not clear on this point.

In Private Residence district, which includes most legal two-family houses, 334 lots of 10,000 square feet or more could be affected. Some of these are occupied by single-family houses and some by two-family houses.

The Planning Department notes that

Pension investigation yields nothing yet

State police detectives this week were in Newton, possibly interviewing people in connection with alteration of old payroll records made public two weeks ago.

Police Chief William Quinn said some information on the investigation may be available at the end of this week.

The altered records, which bear on the amount of pension that will be received by certain persons who are about to retire, were discovered by Comptroller Lawrence Marino.

Some time ago, Marino, a member of the Retirement Board, noticed that the typing of some names seemed strange, and it appeared that the paper had been erased and new names had been inserted.

Chief Quinn said that less than a dozen names are involved so far.

The new names typed in make it seem as if the individuals were employed by the city before 1939. Persons employed by the city before that date stand to collect

More closings going into effect Friday on Commonwealth Ave.

More 45-day trial closings of the Commonwealth Avenue "carriage road" will go into effect July 15, by vote of the Traffic Commission.

In Chestnut Hill, the carriage road will be temporarily closed by barricade at the westerly side of the Manet Road intersection. In addition, the carriage road will be closed at the easterly side of Manet Road between the small island and the sidewalk.

In Newton Centre, the carriage road will be temporarily closed by barricade at the westerly side of the Beaumont Avenue and Lowell Avenue intersections. It will be necessary to remove the one-way restriction on the carriage road between Beaumont Avenue and Lowell Avenue. In addition, all carriage road traffic exiting at the Lowell Avenue and the Valentine Street intersections will be required to make a right turn only onto Lowell Avenue or Valentine Street.

In Auburndale, the carriage road will be temporarily closed at the far side of the Melrose Street intersection, requiring all carriage road traffic to merge onto the two-way side of Commonwealth Avenue at this median opening. This location is the most appropriate median opening for the diversion of carriage road traffic.

It will be necessary to place the traffic signals on lashing operation and to designate this median opening one-way southbound. Access to homes just west of the proposed barricade will require removal of the one-way carriage lane designation between Melrose Street and the next median opening at Higgins Street.

At the conclusion of the trial closings, if the closings ar made permanent by vote of the Board of Aldermen, a large part of the carriage road as it cuts across the city will have been closed. The largest portions open to through traffic will be from the Boston line westward to Manet Road and Valentine Street westward to Washington Street.

The accident rate at major intersections on the carriage road has been excessive, according to Traffic Planner David Tannozzini.

The ultimate goal of the Planning Department is to create a bikeway on the carriage road.

All intersections will need reconstruction. The first to be reconstructed will be at Commonwealth Avenue and Centre Streets, which may be done next year.

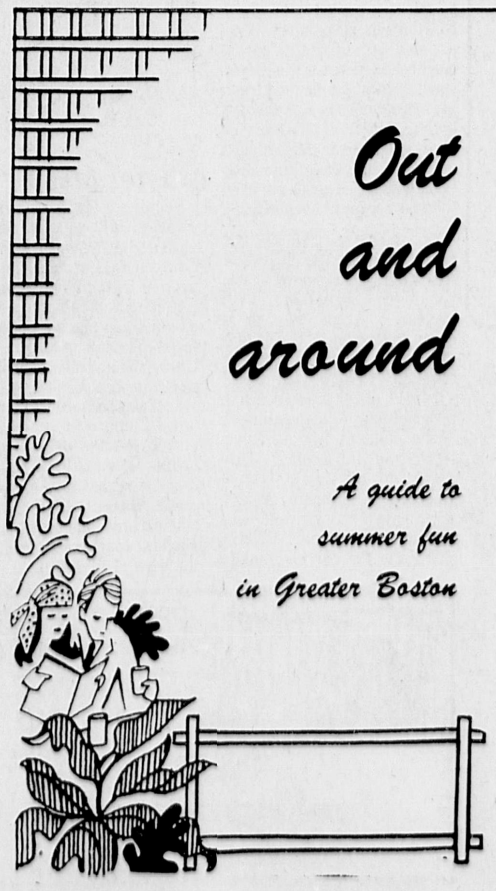

'Down time' for CDC

Questions about what will happen to the four police officers replaced by civilian employees to operate the proposed new police-fire communications system have helped bring the financing to a dead stop.

The new central dispatch center (CDC) will cost $665,000 beyond a $312,000 federal grant already received and spent for radio equipment.

High summer. Vacations, lazy days, outdoor pleasures.

For those of you between vacations, and those of you spending your time at home, we thought we'd prepare a guide to some of the activities taking place in the area that might serve as a nice day or evening outing.

There will be, during July and August, a variety of concerts, exhibits, plays, movies, and dance exhibitions in nearby communities.

In Newton, of course, are the Arts in the Parks events and daily activities of the Recreation Department which are regular features of the paper.

The ones we mention here are nearby; the communities of Lexington, Framingham, Cambridge and Boston. Most are free and open to the general public. Some are specifically designed for children.

Michael James, designer and teacher of quiltmaking, will be at the Museum of Our National Heritage on Sunday, July 17, from 1 - 4 p.m., to demonstrate quiltmaking techniques. This demonstration is presented by the Museum in connection with the current exhibit, "Ohio Amish Quilts," on display through Sept. 26.

James, a former artist and printmaker, has gained national recognition for his outstanding quilt designs. In addition to making quilts, he teaches quiltmaking at The DeCordova Museum School, The University of Rhode Island, and The Massachusetts College of Art. He has written many articles on the historical and contemporary aspects of the quilter's art for "Quilter's Newsletter Magazine." His new book, "The Quiltmaker's Handbook," will be published next spring.

The Museum of Our National Heritage, located at 33 Marrett Road, Rt. 2A, in Lexington, Mass., is open Monday through Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, from 12:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is free to all exhibits and events.

McLean offers evening clinics for problem drinkers

An evening clinic for people with drinking problems opened at McLean Hospital, Belmont, in late June.

Designed for people who have problems coping with their drinking but who do not need inpatient care, the new service operates Monday through Friday.

It offers both evaluation and treatment including: group therapy, family and patient educational groups, AA meetings, and antabuse therapy.

The program is administered through McLean's Appleton Treatment Center for Alcoholism. Any family member or employer seeking assistance in bringing a problem drinker into treatment, or any individual interested in more information about the program, should call 855-3361.

Newton firefighters buy bus for city

The Newton Firefighters' Association has made a gift of a full-size bus to Newton's Recreation Department.

According to association president Richard Ciccone, the firefighters raised $3200 by selling tickets to a basketball game against the All-American Chicks, a team of college girls. That amount plus another $800 in the treasury enabled the association to buy a surplus bus from the MBTA.

When the firefighters began thinking about what their fundraising efforts could do for the city, they agreed that the money should be spent for the elderly and for youth.

They learned that the Recreation Department's bus was on its last legs, so to speak, and settled on getting a "new" bus. The old bus will be kept as a back-up vehicle.

The bus is used for transporting the elderly to doctors' offices and recreational events and for youth to take them to special events during the summer. more

The Finance Committee voted last week to recommend to the Board of Aldermen acceptance of the gift of the bus.

Mayor Theodore Mann this week experessed his gratitude to members of the Newton Fire Department "for their civic-mindedness" in giving the bus to the city.

SIMMER DOWN

The oil that circulates through an engine performs four important functions. Its primary task is to provide a slippery film between fast moving parts in order to reduce friction that can cause excessive wear or even binding. The oil also acts as a sealant in the cylinders, placing a fluid bond between the pistons and the cylinder walls. In its other two functions, oil serves as a coolant, absorbing and carrying away some of the engine heat, and as a cleanser, picking up such contaminants as water, gasoline, dirt and metal particles.

Building permit fees too low, official says

Builders and property owners should start paying for electrical, plumbing, gasfitting and other permits, Building Commissione Allan Fraser thinks, and has submitted a proposed fee schedule to the Board of Aldermen.

But the normally money-conscious Finance Committee was somewhat put off by Fraser's estimate that the city could easily take in $105'000 a year more than it does in permits.

"I don't know that we should be making that kind of bread," FinCom Chairman Sidney Small commented.

Fraser said Newton is one of only four communities in the state that do not charge anything for plumbing, gas, and electrical permits and for elevator inspections.

And in Fraser's opinion, based on a regional survey of permit charges in surrounding communities, Newton should be charging between three and eight times as much as it does now for building permits.

Inspections by the Building Department of the new Chestnut Hill Gardens buildings now under construction could cost $24,000, Fraser said, but the actual fees collected are $3000.

Fraser's fee schedule, based on $3 per thousand dollars of project cost, would result in $25,000 in fees. The project cost is figured at more than $8 million.

On an average house, whose project cost might be $30,000, the builder would pay $90 in building fees.

Examples of other proposed fees are: electrical service change in a house, $10 per 100 amps; gas and plumbing fees, $5 for one to five appliances or fixtures.

Fraser would double the permit fee when work was started without the proper permit.

The question of setting up permit fees may be viewed as a philosophical one. One one hand, why should there not be fees, which are modest in relation to the cost of the work? But, Fraser admits' some people might ask, in light of the tax rate, why should the city add any further cost?

The Finance Committee is holding the matter for further information from Fraser and further philosophical discussion

76 apartments get committee OK

After a few neighbors of the project chose the type of roof and color of stain for exposed wood features of the buildings, the Land Use Committee voted Monday night to grant permissive use for 56 apartments at 2350 Commonwealth Ave.

Developer Michael Iodice was also given approval for 20 townhouses at Commonwealth Avenue and Woodbine Street, across from his present development.

The Land Use Committee has been working with the developers and the neighborhood for more than two years to find an acceptable use for the two parcels of land.

The former owner of the land, the Perini Corporation, tried unsuccessfully to get permission for an office building on the south side of Commonwealth Avenue, but neighborhood opposition scotched that plan.

The apartments now planned for the site were first petitioned at 72 units in the three-building south-side complex and 25 in the townhouse complex on the north side.

Iodice has agreed to abide by the new "10 percent ordinance" requiring developers to lease 10 percent of their new apartments to the Housing Services Commission for occupancy by low-income tenants.

Iodice will lease four apartments in the new complex and four in another development on Grove Street to the HSC.

The vote in favor of the 56 apartments was 3-0, with Ald. Chairman Eliot Cohen, Carol Ann Shea and Ethel Sheehan in favor and David Cohen and Thomas Concannon abstaining.

All five aldermen voted in favor of the townhouses.

The recommendation will be before the Board of Aldermen for a final vote July 25.

Asbestos danger to be evaluated

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) and State Sen. Robert E. McCarthy (D-East Bridgewater), cochairmen of the Special Legislative Commission on Asbestos, were successful in inserting in the budget $50,000 to analyze and evaluate potential asbestos contamination in several hundred public schools across the Commonwealth.

The testing will concentrate on those schools built in the late 1950s through the early seventies with sprayed-on asbestos used as a fireproofing material.

The evaluation is one of the few new programs included in this year's budget.

The commission, in existence since June, 1976, was established at Pines's request after dangerous levels of asbestos fibers were discovered in several educational institutions across the state. It is the first commission of its kind in the nation.

Medical evidence has established a link between the long-term inhalation of airborne asbestos fibers and respiratory and cardiac problems, as well as cancer. A popular fireproofing and insulating material during the 1950's and '60's, sprayed-on asbestos has been found to deteriorate with age, and fibers become detached and circulate in the air. In 1973 The Environmental Protection Agency prohibited the use of sprayed-on asbestos as a building material.

In addition to the Environmental Protection Agency's prohibition, the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has issued regulations to protect asbestos workers.

Public hearing Friday on Title I provisions

A public hearing on education of the disadvantaged child will be conducted by the National Advisory Council on the Education of Disadvantaged Children in three New England cities Friday, July 15 from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Massachusetts location is John F. Kennedy Federal Building, Government Center, Room 2003A, Boston.

The purpose of the hearing is to obtain comments and suggestions on the reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary School Act (ESEA) Title I and other significant portions of the Title. These recommendations will be used to formulate testimony by the Council before the House Subcommittee on Elementary, Secondary and Vocational Education.

The issues under discussion include:

—Funding procedures.
—Administrative requirements and practices.
—Parental Involvement.
—Program coordination and concentration.
—State operated programs.
—Local program services.
—Additional issues.

Written statements from those who cannot attend but want their opinions heard should be sent to: NACEDC, 425 13th St., NW, Suite 1012, Washington, D. C. 20004.

Monday is Ecology Day

Monday, July 18, is Ecology Day in Newton.

Over 400 children will be participating in Ecology Day by picking up litter in all of Newton's 28 playground areas as well as adjacent parks. Each child will be wearing a special hat and collecting trash in garbage bags being provided by McDonald's of Newton. For their good deeds McDonald's will also be presenting each child with a Be Our Guest card for a free order of French fries.

According to the proclamation, "The citizens of Newton have responded to this (ecology) problem with definitive action through a clean up program," and Mayor Mann called upon the people of Newton "to join with me in support of this worthwhile program and to commend our city's children who are participating in Ecology Day along with the City of Newton Recreation Department and McDonald's of Newton who advanced the goals of the programs for our community with hard work, dedication and concerted action."

The citywide clean up will begin at 9 a.m. for the North side of Newton and a 1 p.m. for the South side. A sanitation truck provided by the Newton Recreation Department will be collecting the refuse from all the areas beginning at 11:15 a.m. Each clean up will last for three hours.

Master class

Robert Koff, concert violinist, will give a master class at the Walnut Hill Music Camp in Natick, July 14 at 1:30 p.m. in Eliot Living Room.

Koff, of Lexington, is a violinist and teacher currently artist-in-residence at Brandeis University and chairman of the music department there.

Koff was formerly a member of the Juillard String Quartet.

The Walnut Hill Music Camp, now in its third summer, is located on the campus of the Walnut Hill School in Natick and is open to string players and pianists between the ages of 10 and 18.

Stanton Ave. apartment house for elderly all set for last vote

With a sigh of relief the Land Use Committee unanimously approved a 124-apartment project for Stanton Avenue, Auburndale, more than four years after such a development was proposed.

A "life care center" first was proposed for elderly residents in 1973. The building would have housed more than 200 relatively well-to-do old people who would have bought an apartment and then paid a monthly maintenance charge. Financing failed.

That proposal was succeeded by a straight apartment house proposal, which was approved but could not get financed after community support evaporated because of problems related to future management of the project.

The original developers, Arthur Ullian and Dr. Edwin Guiney, then offered the land for sale, and Jewish Community Housing for the Elderly, an organization of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies, stepped in. Their proposal uses essentially the same site plan and building plan as the Ullian-Guiney proposal, with improvements in landscaping and a slight decrease in size of the building.

The building is in the form of a triskele. It will be 50 feet above the ground at its highest point, but lower than previously, the architect said, because the grade will be lowered before building.

The three legs of the building have been shortened slightly, and some internal changes made in the community spaces in the building.

There will be 39 parking spaces provided for the 124 apartments. The building will contain 106 one-bedroom apartments, 13 one-bedroom apartments equipped for handicapped persons, and five two-bedroom apartments (one for a resident manager).

The new developers have financed the project through HUD by a direct loan.

One hundred of the apartments will be subsidized by HUD (Section 8) Those tenants will pay up to 25 percent of their income, which may be up to $11,000.

Twelve apartments8will be rented at probably market price, which according to lawyer Rudolph Kass will be $403 for a onebedroom and $485 for a two-bedroom apartment.

In accordance with Newton's new "10 percent ordinance," 12 of the apartments will be leased to the Newton Housing Services Commission for its low-income-housing program.

No age eligibility was given by Kass at the public hearing that preceded the Land Use Committee action, but he said that 15 percent of the city's population is between 62 and 74 years old' so 62 may be the eligible age.

The Land Use Committee approval is conditioned on the developers' acceding to Planning Department recommendations on redesign of the parking lot, underground installation of utility lines and approval of drainage by the city engineer.

The full Board of Aldermen will vote on approval July 25.

Other business of the committee was shorter than expected, after two of the petitions to be presented in public hearing were withdrawn.

The Newton Centre Neighborhood Association withdrew its request for rezoning of five parcels of land on the west side of Centre Street between Crescent and Norwood avenues from Business B to Residence D.

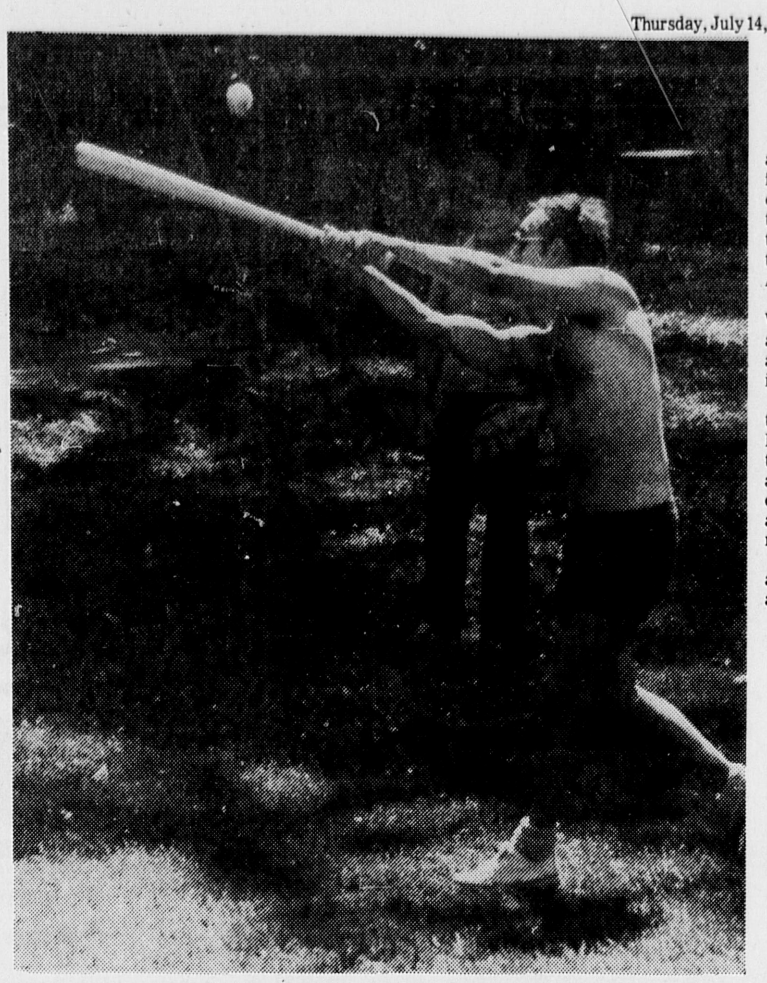

A petition to build a retaining wall within the floodplain at 40 Kingswood Rd., Auburndale, was found to be not properly before the Board and was with drawn.

The Land Use Committee withheld action on a petition by Ald. Mark White to restrict "exhibitions" for which admission is charged by requiring permissive use from the Board.

White's proposed ordinance amendment was aimed at such events as one recently conducted by the Junior League of Boston in a mansion on Waverley Avenue, where an estimated 20,000 persons went to see decorators' rooms.

The traffic caused hardships to residents, and White wants some regulation over such activities.

The Land Use Committee is unsure whether a license procedure might not be better, and in any case needs the advice of the city solicitor.

Mayor announces campaign debates

Mayor Theodore D. Mann announced this week that the first of several mayoralty candidates' nights to debate the issues will be sponsored by the Newton Conservators to take place sometime in mid—August.

The mayor will also be on WNTN radio July 26 at 10:30 a.m. to discuss his candidacy and answer questions phoned in by listeners.

Mann said he looks forward to participating with the League of Women Voters in their candidates' night "as an additional opportunity to discuss the record of achievement of this administration."

Mann continued, "Meetings and coffee hours are being arranged throughout the city so that I will be available to any voter who wishes to meet with me. Arrangements may be made by calling the Mann for Mayor Headquarters at 965-4848 or by visiting the headquarters, located at 634 Commonwealth Ave., Newton Centre."

TRAVEL TRAILS
By Josephine Arria

The land of tulips and dikes is titled both "the Netherlands" and "Holland" on maps for English-speaking readers . . . Which is correct? . . . "The Netherlands" tech nically . . . In Dutch this word means "the lower countries" and has been applied to the seven provinces united under that title since the 1579 Treaty of Utrecht . . . During the 17th Century, the Southern Provinces enjoyed their golden age of commerce . . . The ships which sailed from Dutch ports to foreign shores during this era all hailed from the province of Holland . . . So the impression spread that all Dutchmen came from Holland and the Dutch being businesslike have simply adopted the name which is now used far more often than the "Netherlands." . . .

Insurance bills assist three groups of drivers

State Rep. Peter F. Harrington (D-Newton), a member of the Joint Committee on Insurance, said this week that the insurance bills passed last week by the legislature guarantee a substantial rebate for three groups of Newton drivers: those drivers under the age of 25; drivers who this year were charged more than 25 percent above last year's premium for the same policy; and all clean risk drivers (those drivers without an at-fault accident or conviction of a moving violation since Nov. 1, 1976), who are placed in the high risk pool.

Harrington emphasized that this legislation (Chapter 365 of the Acts of 1977) provides $55 million in auto insurance rebates to more than 800,000 Massachusetts motorists and olaces a 25 percent cap on 1977 insurance rates. The legislation contains a so-called anti-recoupment clause, which, Harrington explained, prohibits the auto insurance companies from trying to recoup the $55 million which they will pay out this year by raising their rates in 1978.

The Newton representative cited the insurance committee's study of the bill's constitutionality. The report asserted the bill is not confiscatory and thus not unconstitutional. Legislation passed in previous sessions required a roll back in prices and were ruled unconstitutional by the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

The legislative study noted that when the facility rate, the rate charged for those in the high risk pool, was placed at the 80 percent level rather than at 50 percent, the insurance companies gained about $27 million in unexpected profits. In addition, Harrington said, the study revealed the insurance companies would have made an additional $26 million this year in excess profits, if actions were not taken. These two amounts provide the bulk of money that is scheduled by the legislature to be rebated to motorists.

One significant safeguard made by the legislature, Harrington explained is the severability clause. If one provision of the act is held unconstitutional by the courts, those provisions not ruled upon would still remain in effect, thus preventing the entire chapter from being jeopardized by any single ruling.

Finance Committee

Small balks at sale of former NJC building

Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small, displeased with the prospect of a $20,000 sale price for a former Newton Junior College building, wants to find out whether the city can get a variance to allow use of the building for business and professional purposes.

The Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council has offered $20,000 for the property known as Walnut Hall at 430 Walnut St. and wants to use it as regional headquarters.

The first recommendation of the committee that suggested uses for surplus municipal buildings was professional offices, Planning Director Charles Thomas told the Finance Committee Thursday night, but the "core committee," which reviewed the first committee's report, recommended conversion to a two-family house.

The building contains 12,000 square feet of gross floor area. A two-story moderate-size house might have 3500 square feet.

No municipal department or agency needs the building, according to Ald. Terry Morris, who was a member of the core committee.

The building is in the midst of Residence B district, but is only 1000 feet from the edge of the Newtonville business zone, a Planning Department memorandum says.

Small feels the property should be a "good, taxpaying property," and wants the city the to look into either getting a variance at the Zoning Board of Appeals or rezoning the property before offering it for sale or lease as surplus.

The FinCom approved a request for $6500 for appraisals of the Novitiate property on Winchester Street for possible acquisition by the city for a municipal park.

The 65-acre piece of land will be appraised for total or partial acquisition. Some members of the Board of Aldermen want to reserve the 15 acres around the existing buildings for housing or other purposes; the Newton Conservators, a private group are plugging for the whole parcel; the Conservation Commission wants only the part along the river.

The Finance Committee and the Public Works Committee will meet jointly July 21 to consider authorization for a $1.2 million bond issue for public works equipment.

Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson asked for $3 million early this year for replacement of and additions to the city's aged and inadequate equipment, but Mayor Theodore Mann cut the request to $1.25 million.

Many aldermen, especially Wendell Bauckman, are extremely concerned about the condition of public works vehicles and equipment and feel that maintenance and updating have been neglected too long.

Cohen labels Center 'guns for hire'

Ald. Eliot Cohen, a candidate for mayor, this week issued a statement regarding the group called Center.

"I did not wish to get involved in the Ald. Small-Mayor Mann Center controversy. However, the mayor, by implication, has interjected my name. Since the mayor has cried 'cheap politics' let us look at the facts," said Cohen.

According to Cohen, "Center is a so-called self-appointed group of supposedly concerned citizens which has, by its own admission, only five directors and no membership." Cohen asked: "Since when do five people speak for the citizens and taxpayers of Newton? These five people are using the worst type of political tactics against the Board of Aldermen and these are smear, innuendo and guilt-by-omission. This kind of unethical 'big-city' machine politics should not be tolerated," said Cohen.

a"jeff Cornell is a Mann supporter. Last winter I spoke with Mr. Cornell and he told me he would be helping in the re-election campaign of Teddy Mann," Cohen stated.

He continued: "The people of Newton have a right to know that Jeff Cornell is a Mann supporter. Center consists of a few such Mann supporters who intentionally fail to publicly identify themselves as such. In my opinion these 'guns for hire' should not be permitted to represent that they speak for the people of Newton."

Cohen went on to say: "This front organization has the Board of Aldermen as its target. Its intent is to take attention away from the mayoralty campaign and cast aspersions upon the Board of Aldermen. Incidental thereto, at the apparent direction of the mayor, Center will be attempting to discredit Eliot Cohen. In so doing Center clouds the real issue of the weakness of the incumbent Mayor."

Cohen stated: "There are important issues to be discussed in this campaign which effect the future of our city. Federal funds, effective and efficient city services, land conservation and management of city government; these are the real and legitimate concerns of the citizens of Newton which need to be addressed. I intend to address these issues. I have asked twice and shall continue to ask where and when Ted Mann is going to debate and respond to these issues," concluded Cohen.

Mann has denied any connection with Center.

Fury-less

..."It is a tale...full of sound and fury, signifying nothing." Shakespeare

For the past few weeks a political "group" has been touting a "controversy" over alleged "illegal" votes of Newton's aldermen.

Undoubtedly the "controversy" has already received too much publicity, but we feel it's time for a final comment on the subject.

First, let's stop referring to Center as a "group." Center is either a duet, a quartet, or, at best, a quintet. We think our references, and everyone else's, to Center being a political group are misleading in a city filled with political groups that can boast substantial memberships.

The Center duet unveiled itself several months ago and vowed to study the Board of Aldermen and choose its own aldermanic candidates.

The reasoning was that with all the attention likely to be devoted to the mayoral and School Committee races, the Board of Aldermen would be elected in virtual obscurity.

Center then proceeded to produce two valuable surveys; one on Board attendance and one on attendance at committee meetings. Both were substantiated by documentation.

We do not question the duet's ability to gather facts. Interpretation is their downfall.

What did Center find when it reviewed aldermanic attendance? It found that, by and large, attendance was very good; and even when not so good, not bad.

It is disappointing, we are sure, for headhunters to return from their labors minus any heads.

Recently Center rocked this community to its very bedrock with the revelation that some committees recommended action to the Board of Aldermen without the presence of a quorum.

The insinuations that our aldermen are acting illegally have not only angered the aldermen, but illustrate, finally, that there simply are no real aldermanic issues to be discussed unless we're willing to manufacture them out of thin air.

Every piece of legsislation enacted in this city is voted on by the Board of Aldermen and NEVER has it voted without a quorum.

The normal purpose of committees at any legislative level is to provide a way to divide matters and have them studied by less than the total membership for recommendations to that body.

The distillation and summarization of material presented to a legislative body is beneficial to both the public and the legislators themselves.

In Newton's case, extremely detailed committee reports are made available to all 24 aldermen on the work of each committee. Often, too, aldermen that are not members of a particular committee attend its meeting because of an item on the agenda. While they cannot vote, they do increase representation at the meetings.

All committee reports also indicate who was present and what the votes were.

Center, in its frenzy to create an issue and focus attention on itself, has caused the wasting of valuable time on the parts of the city solicitor and several aldermen.

The quintet is trying to create an issue where none exists. Perhaps you, our readers, have already detected the silliness of the entire matter.

If not, we hope this editorial puts you on to their game. We have serious decisions to make as voters and should not be wasting our time trifling with trivialities.

Perspectives

Is the Postal Service really necessary?

Commentary by Gus Tyler

NEW YORK — The postal service as we know it may soon be a museum piece, made obsolete by startling changes in our means of communication. We just won't need the mails; and those of us who do will be in trouble.

At the core of the communications revolution are novel ways for business to handle its transactions. For many years, the mails were a primary vehicle for carrying on commerce. Even today, 47 per cent of the postal service's income comes from handling bills, payments, and orders.

But increasingly the mails are no longer necessary for such transmission of messages and money. The modern way is to use electronic devices.

At present, for instance, the U.S. Treasury Dept. sends out 400 to 500 million pieces of mail every year. Within a few years, the department expects to remove the bulk of its checks from the mails and place them in electronic deposits. By this system, Washington for some sub-office, presses a button and a deposit is made in the books of some financial institution. No paper, no envelope, no stamp, no mail.

This is not some silly piece of science fiction. Right now, the federal government makes about 5 million payments a month by pushing buttons. In the future, this system will be expanded.

The government is the biggest but not the only user of this

Electronic Funds Transmission System (EFTS). Banks and other money changers have installed about 6,000 automated teller and cash machines. They can be found in the financial institutions and in airports, shopping centers, big office buildings.

Another 10,000 "terminals" — one of the operating ends of this magic method — are located in supermarkets and big retail establishments where, according to The Wall Street Journal, "more checks are cashed than in financial institutions."

If you wish, you can have your paycheck deposited in the bank of your choice by electronic prearrangement. And you may further arrange to have other items taken care of, like your regular insurance premium, your Christmas Club payment, your mortgage, and maybe even some of your utility bills if they are on a flat and recurrent basis.

The twin of the EFTS is the EMTS, a device for transmitting correspondence electronically. "The EMTS market man's dream," says the special committee of the letter carrier's union that deals with the electronic threat, "would be a receiver in everyone's home with an unattended answering service to receive messages 24 hours a day so that a customer upon awakening or a businessman going to work would find all his "mail' in a tray waiting for him."

Between EFTS and EMTS about two-thirds of the income of the two-way radio and TV will cut further into the mail business.

Some groups in our society will be hard hit. The individual who wishes to send a letter or the individual in some more remote part of our continent who is not close to a terminal but would like to receive mail will have to pay a high price for delivering since the great bulk of the profitable mail to sustain a nationwide system will be missing.

The many organizations in the United States who depend upon publications moving through the mails to keep their congregation, their membership, their fellow veterans, their companion believers informed will have to pay heavily for delivery, perhaps too heavily to survive.

Metric changover hits WAMmie!

WASHINGTON — WAM! has scored its first major victory, and it now looks as if the metric system is doomed in the United States.

WAM! — which as you know stands for We Ain't Metric!, and was founded by this column to combat the alien forces that are trying to cram the metric system down the gullets of the American people — is proud to announce this news to those of you who have not already heard it:

Signs on the nation's highways — which have been scheduled to be converted to metric speed limits beginning next year — will now remain miles-per-hour. There will be no kilometers. The WAM! organization and WAM! sympathizers are responsible for this.

More than 5,000 letters were sent to the Federal Highway Administration concerning the proposed changeover to metrics. Ninety-eight per cent of the letters were in opposition to metric speed limit signs, and finally William Cox, the Highway Administration's top man, threw in the towel. He said that the metric conversion plan has been abandoned, and he said that the reason was that the American people don't want it.

"We're not talking about a temporary thing, or a delay in going metric," said a Highway Administration spokesman. "We're talking about forever. There will be no metric."

It is gratifying to know that WAM! members have had such an immediate effect on the government. Membership in WAM!, of course, is free, and the only criterion for joining is a genuine hatred of the metric system.

But even more gratifying than the victory at the Federal Highway Administration is the news of what this victory bodes.

Sources inside the Department of Transportation (see, aren't I starting to sound like a real Washington columnist?) have confirmed that the public outcry against metric highway signs signals disaster for the metric system in the United States in any form — in grocery products, in weights and measures, in manufacturing — everything.

"We've got to face it," the sources said. "The people of America don't want the metric system. It's not going to happen here."

As founder of WAM!, I ventured to the Department of Transportation, identified myself, and asked to see the 5,000 letters. Before long a staggering file was produced and here, for your perusal, are some excerpts from the calm rational letters about the metric highway signs that your fellow WAM! members and sympathizers sent to the federal government.

WILLIAM L. ROBERTS, Auburn, Wash. – "This is one of the more stupid ideas the public is being blessed with."

MRS. ROY LEWIS, Muncie, Ind. – "I was born in America and the American system suits me just fine. If the other countries want a change, let them do the changing."

MR. AND MRS. L.G. HENRY, Andover, Kans. — "We think it is a ridiculous idea and a waste of money."

JOHN T. KNAGGE, Tuscon, Ariz. — "Is this a directive from some foreign dictator? I object to kneeling to Chinese, Greeks or any other foreign element that is in the process of undermining our United States government. The distress that you are intending to cram down the throats of the American people should be considered treason, and treated as such."

MRS. ALICE BROEHL, Wheaton, Ill. — "Why can't we retain some of our American Ways? This is an absurd idea."

DON GILBERT, Ainsworth, Neb. — "I know you people must have rocks in your heads. We have been very successful for 200 years, you people re trying to mess up our country, are the foreign countries paying you something to pass such ideas?"

WAYNE A. GRAY, Kansas City, Kans. — "This is undoubtedly the most ridiculous JOKE yet to be perpetrated against the common sense of the American people. This is so foolish the ordinary man wonders where your brains are."

MRS. MARJORIE N. EVARTS, Hamden, Conn. — "I think installing the metrick system is one of the most idiotic things the government can do. Have you gone completely crazy? Come to your senses!"

MRS. INEZ LAWRENCE, Abilene, Tex. — "Our people understand our system and are happy with it. Why upset the entire population? WHY? I think it is a CRIME for a few to bring this on our nation."

PAUL WORDELL, Old Saybrook, Conn. — "I like my country's system. Do not care if the whole world has the metric system. Why should we change for the whole world? The bastards give us nothing but grief and we are supposed to cater to them. Why can't we have something of our own for a change?"

So, WAM! members, as you can see, it is no wonder that the government has crumbled to its knees. The most vital thing now is not to let up. We have the metric system on the run. With continued pressure, it will soon be dead.

Make no mistake, McGee's in charge

By J.J. Smith, state columnist

There seems a calculated ploy by some political writers to portray gutsy Tommy McGee — blunt-talking, gruff Speaker of the Massachusetts House — as on his last legs both physically and politically. They're counting out the tough little ex-Marine prematurely.

With all the gnashing of teeth and wringing of hands over McGee's simple exercise of using existing House rules to outfox an obstrperous but small clique of troublemakers to enact the $4.26-billion budget, one would think that the Lynn lawmaker had dreamed up something new politically.

It was nothing new — simply a textbook example of using the rulebook to end senseless and non-profitable discussion which would not have changed the end result of the debate on the budget by a fraction. In any one of hundreds of town meetings, lodge or club meetings similar use of the rules is commonplace.

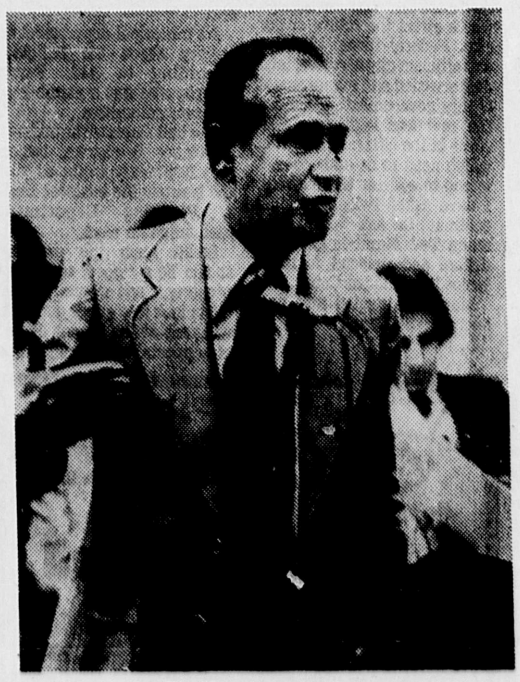

The gutsy move by McGee finally got the Commonwealth a budget, and more important, gave the lie to newspaper reports which had McGee on the skids. He's shown the critics that at 58 he's alive, well and in charge.

A strident minority, personified by renegade Democrat Thomas Colo, a petulant band of Republicans, and a handful of anti-abortionists were responsible for frenzied night sessions — and an intolerable five days into the new state year with the state still without a budget.

It was a time for strong leadership, and McGee provided it in full measure. First, he limited debate to six hours, a move virtually unprecedented. For one hour there was shrill, strident fury over this proposal, and an anti-leadership uprising appeared imminent. But then a rollcall vote backed McGee — 162 supporting the Speaker and just 56 opposed to a debate limit.

Then, amazingly, nobody wanted to talk budget, and three hours were frittered away by further attacks by the infuriated dissidents on the House leadership. Colo, in particular, made attacks personally against the Speaker hoping to provoke an action which would make Colo a martyr. McGee didn't bite.

Actual debate on the budget lasted just 90 minutes, and the budget was enacted. McGee called a brief recess, thus permitting the document to be taken to the Senate for enactment there and then delivered to the governor before dissidents could move for reconsideration.

McGee summed up his action simply and factually, "I didn't violate the rules. I utilized them, but I didn't violate them."

In any case, the end result would have been the same — simply because McGee had the votes, and knew he did.

McGee, of course, was in a near-fatal skiing accident last winter and was hospitalized for several seeks. He's still troubled by a lung problem associated with that mishap as well as an old knee injury that has flared up.

But, despite these vexing distresses, there's nothing disabled about McGee's guts or thinking as he demonstrated anew by out-smarting a group of dissidents who, themselves, delight in utilizing the rules for their own benefit. This time, however, they were out-foxed by a smaller, swifter adversary — something for which the Speaker should draw kudos and not complaints.

There are some who perceive the recent brouhahas in the House as a serious challenge to McGee's leadership. As the vote on the budget would indicate, such speculation appears premature. For one thing, most of those involved in the anti-abortion bloc normally are strong McGee adherents, and will be so again when this issue is resolved.

The angry mood in the House, understandably, stems mainly from the House cut (which will pit many House members against present colleagues in that branch) as well as by the group of professional dissidents as exemplified by Representative Colo.

McGee himself feels that the dissent has peaked, and it is hard to quarrel with that assessment from a guy who works 16 hours a day on the job and who has been a member of that branch since 1960.

Despite all the grumbling and threats of vengeance, one fact remains unchallenged — Speaker McGee played hardball within the rules. He won because he used them better and quicker than the opposition, and because the overwhelming majority were with him all the way.

It was a situation that called for strong leadership, and that's what the House got. Smart and strong leadership.

The man known as "the Little Speaker" continues to show he may be small in stature but a giant-killer when the situation calls for it.

Opinions

Hire the best

To the Editor:

This letter is written in response to the letter from Mark Feingold in the July 7 issue. Mr. Feingold criticized the School Committee for hiring "four principals from outside the system."

As the presidents of the Countryside PTA, we wish to point out that Countryside's new principal, Vincent Simone, has worked continuously for the Newton schools for the past 11 years and is a graduate of the Newton schools. Certainly he is no "outsider."

In addition, one of the other three permanent vacancies was filled by Nannette Cochran, a Newton teacher who had been on a leave of absence from Newton and is also no "outsider."

Mr. Feingold is perhaps unaware of the process by which principals were nominated. Of more than 325 applicants for the principal positions, only a very small number from outside Newton were interviewed by individual schools; approximately seven in the case of Countryside.

From within Newton there were 17 applicants for the elementary principalships and every one was interviewed by a faculty committee from each school with an opening.

It is clear, contrary to what Mr. Feingold assumes, that the selection process in fact leans strongly in favor of applicants from within the Newton system.

What disturbed us, however, about Mr. Feingold's letter was not that he was misinformed as to some of the facts; but, rather, we were disturbed by his attitude and even more by the attitude of Mr. LeConti as a School Committee member.

Newton should hire the best people it can find for every opening in the school system. The view that "outsiders" should be treated with suspicion, or simply disqualified, as Mr. LeConti's votes in opposition seem to imply, is parochial and alarming.

Mr. Feingold's argument that Newton doesn't need "new blood" anymore because now "the stress in education should be on the basic approach" is difficult to comprehend.

Whatever is taught in the schools and whatever approach is used, we should hire the best-qualified people, wherever they are to be found.

The Countryside community supported Vincent Simone because he is well-qualified for the job. Being an "insider" helped us know him, but it should never become a requirement for the job.

For the record

To the Editor:

In his letter that appeared in the July 7 issue of the Newton Graphic, Mark Feingold of West Newton stated: "The hiring of four principals from outside the system is an admission of failure on the part of the personnel department or the superintendent of the Newton school system to hire and train teachers or other administrative people to succeed to openings."

For the record: Two of the four principals recommended by the superintendent were staff members of the Newton schools at the time of their appointments; one was returning from a one-year leave to complete graduate training in administration. Also, both persons recommended for the acting principalships to be considered by the School Committee at its July 19 meeting are teachers in the school system. Again, one has been on sabbatical leave to complete graduate training in administration. more

Of the 20 principalships filled during the past eight years, that is during the tenure of this superintnendent, 14 have come from within the system and six from outside. Two of the six "outsiders" had been employed for several years in the Newton schools but were not employees at the time of appointment.

Nova Scotia invitation

To the Editor:

During 1978, the Town of Windsor, Nova Scotia, settled since 1685 and incorporated in 1878, celebrates its Centenary.

Among your readers may be former residents of the town or descendants of former residents. We would welcome hearing from them or their families, and their connections in Windsor.

July 23 to 29, 1978, has been set aside as "Old Home Week," the annual Sam Slick celebrations taking place during the last three days of that week.

We would welcome visitors to our town at any time throughout the year, but particularly during this last week in July.

Whether you come or not, please advise us of your whereabouts.

Voting record

To the Editor

Although we do not live in his district, we wish to call tt the attention of those residents of Newton who are represented by Joe DeNucci to his recent dismal recorded votes tallied in a C P PAX July newsletter entitled, "Massachusetts House Votes on Economic and Social Policy."

According to the newsletter, Rep. DeNucci voted against House Bill H3254 which was a strong anti-redlining measure that would ban any form of geographical discrimination by banks; this bilt would have helped eliminate the banks' policies of denying mortgages and home improvement loans within communities they label "deteriorating." Our three other representatives voted in favor of this bill.

An anti-abortion U. S. Constitutional Convention was supported by Mr. DeNucci (as well as Rep. Harrington), even though this convention could repeal and change all other parts of the constitution.

H 4906 that would allow doctors to provide birth-control material and information to minors, if requested by the minor and— or if referred by an outside medical or professional agency, without requiring parental consent, was opposed by him, but supported by our three other legislators.

Finally, he also opposed divorce reform that would have permitted a shorter length of waiting time than the current two years when there is "an irretrievable breakdown of the marriage." It would have made the no fault divorce concept more workable. This reform measure was supported by our Representatives Harrington, Mofenson and Pines.

We commend the seven positive human-rights votes, as epresentatives Mofenson and Pines and the six by Representative Harrington.

Notes from Nick

To the Editor:

The new garbage trucks are beautifully painted; and as a taxpayer, I think they are a waste of city money. I am willing to wager that in the winter the motor on top of the cab will freeze. Also the middle loading stinks.

If whoever is in charge is boking for points, they s ould buy new street sweepers and snow plows and trucks. If someone is trying to eliminate city jobs in Newton, they are succeeding.

The new library, which the people of Newton wish to have, is another Newton North High School fiasco. They say it will cost $4 million. I say it will cost over $10 million by the time different factions of people change the structure of the building. This raises the cost. I hope I'm wrong, but I doubt it.

It makes me laugh that the Fair Share people (the people-taxpayers) have to go out and get the tax money for the city. The responsibility should be where it belongs—with the lazy governor, mayor and aldermen.

I think the procedure of picking the order of names to be put on the ballot is illegal in Newton. Names are witten on cards and the cards are placed in a row and then put in an envelope. Then they are put in a jar. When all the names are in the jar, they are, in effect, stacked there. Because of the narrowness of the jar, when it's shaken the names can't really be moved around to make a legal turnover. Candidates should look into this for their own sakes.

I would personally like to thank the Zayre Corp., its senior vice president, junior vice president, and a few others for trying last Christmas to bring back the 1916 labor factories— 18 hours a day, seven days a week, and insufficient pay.

I believe that this is strictly for monetary gain on the part of the Zayre Corp.

Foresight

To the Editor:

Hooray for the foresight of the Newton School Committee in approving Aaron Fink's recommendations for school principals.

I realize we have an abundance of qualified people in our system, but there are times when we need new people with fresh ideas. Any system, whether it is business, government, etc., can become stagnant.

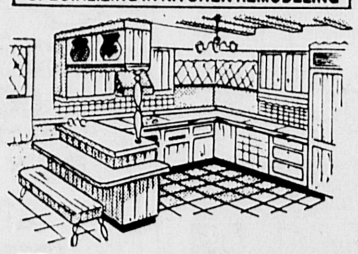

I do not see our system failing. I only see it becoming stronger and better in the future.

I applaud Aaron Fink's capable leadership and innovation in guiding the Newton School system.

Prudential Center will feature a triple billing of art festivals this summer. Heading the list will be the Sixth Annual Professional Art Show, July 21 - July 24.

Thousands of paintings, photographs, drawings, sculpture and speciality pieces will line the Prudential Center Shopping Arcades, Thursday, July 21, through Saturday, July 23, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., and on Sunday, July 24, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

More than 100 artists, representing areas all along the eastern seaboard, will display a wide variety of works at a range of prices that match the diversity of the show.

Later in the summer, the young people's version of this art mart will return for its second year at the Prudential Center. Children' Hour will fill the shopping arcades with specially crafted toys, dolls and games, Aug. 25 - 28.

Children's Hour will also be open Aug. 25 through 27, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., and on Sunday, Aug. 28, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The four-day show will be highlighted by artists exhibiting their works in progress, from sketching to candlemaking to leather making.

Summer Performances, a series of concerts, plays, art exhibits and films, will be presented free to the public by the University of Massachusetts-Boston at its Harbor Campus.

Concerts will be given outdoors on the campus plaza Wednesday evenings July 20 and 27 at 7:30 p.m.

The Cambridge Wind Ensemble on July 20 will perform works of Donizetti, Gounod and Mozart. The group's musical director, Merrill Shea, has been associated with the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Youth Concerts, and was the founder-director of the Mozart at Newport Festival.

On July 27 in a two-part program baritone Vincent Ricento and pianist Thomas Zajkowski will perform works of Cherubini, Faure, Debussy, Poulenc and Hahn and pianist John MacCombie will play works of Brahms, Chopin, and his own compositions.

MacCombie, professor of French at UMass-Boston, has received acclaim for his Boston recitals. Ricento has appeared with the Philadelphia Orchestra and on the operatic stage in principal baritone roles in the U.S., France and Austria.

Zajkowski recently presented a series of recitals in principal baritone roles in the U.S. cities and recorded the keyboard works of Cherubini in Europe.

The UMass-Boston Summer Performances will present an exhibit of paintings in watercolor, casein and pastel by Dorothy Paine Snow at the campus art gallery through July 27. She has exhibited widely in New England galleries, and has for many years been art instructor at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

On Monday, July 18, at 7:30 p.m., the New Wrinkle Theatre, a unique senior citizens group, will perform. Their repertoire of comedy, drama, romantic readings, original plays, singing and dancing in more than 50 radio, TV and live performances, has been acclaimed for its warmth and humor.

"Movin Up," a new play with music by Irma L. Askew, will have two performances, Monday, July 25, and Monday, Aug. 1, both at 12:30 p.m. The drama depicts the aspirations and courage of a young black woman from the South who travels North in search of a better way of life.

Contemporary and classic motion pictures, from "Odyssey:2001" to "Gone with the Wind," will be presented on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. (free to UMass-Boston students; others, $1.00).

Summer Performances is a presentation of the UMass-Boston Summer School and the Student Activities Committee. For information, call 287-1900, ext. 2180.

Housing

many of the single-family houses would not lend themselves to conversion.

Morris' point in proposing the amendment is to permit mtre housing units in Newton without any decrease in land area per unit and without destruction of existing housing.

But the amendment, if adopted, will also serve the purpose of legalizing some existing illegal apartments, the number of which has never been estimated on any rational basis.

(Building Commissioner Allan Fraser will present results of a spot check of zoning violations at the City Planning Comhittee meeting July 18; the survey was designed tt be a basis for estimates of the type and number of zoning violations in the city.)

One of the drawbacks to the proposal is that the increase in population that would result from the creation of more apartments in Private Residence district would be in two already de sel populated areas — West Newton and Nezton Upper Falls — where most of the suitable parcels of land are located.

Residence C conversions to two-family houses would affect Auburndale and a part of Newton Highlands.

The matter comes to a vote before the d of Aldermen July 25.

Webber top gymnast at E. Kentucky Univ.

RICHMOND, KY. — Tony Webber, a graduate of Newton North High School, is Eastern Kentucky University's top gymnast.

Working as an all-around man, Webber finished seventh in the all-around competition in the Southern Intercollegiate Gymnastic League National qualification meet in mid-March.

Dr. Gerald Calkin, Webber's coach at Eastern commented, "Last fall when we started work out Tony was really working hard and making progress in all the events. Our staff really felt that he was on his way to a tremendous season. Then, in November he had an emergency appendicitis operation. He did not let it get him down. In December with the doctor's permission he started working out again and went on to finish seventh in the SIGL at the end of the year. Considering the circumstances it was a tremendous feat."

Webber, a two year letterman at Eastern, has been named one of the teams co-captains for the 1977-78 season. "Tony's strong events are pommel horse and floor exercise, however he has made a considerable amount of progress in the other four events," commented Dr. Calkin.

In addition to his fine gymnastic abilities Webber is a fine student carrying a B+ average. He has received two Presidential citations for academic achievement. He is also the President of PEK, Eastern's chapter of a National Fraternity for physical education majors and teachers.

Webber's high school coach was George Jessup. Jessup is still coaching at Newton North. Webber is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Webber of 154 Adams St., Newton.

Benefit tennis open raised $600 for M.S.

The City of Newton - McDonald's Volvo Village Tennis Open raised over $600 for Multiple Schlerosis and provided a good time for the more than 250 entrants, and onlookers as well. The recently held tournament is the first city-wide resident only tennis open with all proceeds going to the local Multiple Schlerosis office.

Winners of the Men's Doubles Championship were Harvey Felton and Robert Grodberg, defeating runners-up Nathan Kaitz, and Ralph Abrams 6-1, 6-2.

Nancy Stavis and Heleine Berley won the Women's Doubles Championship, defeating runners-up Claire Volpe and Robin Madfis, 6-0, 6-3.

The Mixed Doubles Championship was taken by Dr. Tom Hinchey and his daughter Judith Hinchey, 15, who defeated runners-up Aida Malenfant and Dean Malenfant 6-4, 6-4.

McDonald's of Newton owner-operator Rick Friend and Volvo Village owner Ray Ciccolo, supplied special Newton Tennis Open T-Shirts (for all the players), trophies, tennis time, and free orange drink. Local Multiple Sclerosis volunteers made cakes and cookies which they sold at the tournament to raise money for the charity.

Originally scheduled to take place at the Newton South High School tennis courts, the event was almost cancelled because of the heavy rains. The Charles River Indoor Tennis Courts in Newton, however, volunteered their courts at a minimum cost which co-sponsors McDonald's of Newton and Volvo Village were able to absorb.

ARNOLD Z. ROSOFF, president of the Boston advertising firm, Arnold & Co., has been elected to the board of governors of the Boston-New England Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. Rosoff, a resident of Newton Highlands, is a member of the New England Chapter's program committee, which will participate in the first regional recognition of television excellence in 12 categories in awards ceremonies scheduled for December.

Conversion

lawyer, Joseph McVeigh, the top rent for a two-bedroom apartment there is $260 a month.

The apartments back up to Crystal Lake.

Orlandella has been known to be in trouble financially with the property, according to several sources.

The advertisement for sale of the condominiums offers them for sale in the "20's and 30's." Felix Orlandella, Jr., said tenants have been offered discounts to buy, and "six or seven have indicated that they want to buy."

Tenants hired their neighbor,McVeigh, principally to advise them of their alternatives and their rights as tenants.

McVeigh said last week that the owner has every right to convert his property, but deplored the tactics used by the agent. He pointed out that no eviction notices or date of termination of tenancy at will has been received, the procedure for registering condominiums at the Registry of Deeds has not been done, and that the tenants will not find their belongings out in the street, since court stays usually are granted in eviction cases.

The Orlandellas say they don't want to evict any tenants, but acknowledge that some prospective purchasers have put down deposits

The mayor's office, which has been involved in trying to calm fearful tenants, has responded by asking the landlord to give the tenants more time and by suggesting that there are legal procedures that can be undertaken by the city if the harassment of tenants continues.

The harassment has so far consisted mainly of trying to gain access to the apartments to show them to prospective purchasers. Last Saturday a lock was broken.

State Rep. Lois Pines, who has been trying for years to get through the state legislature a condominium-control bill, only to have it defeated at various stages, commented this week that her bill would prevent such occurrences as the Norwood Avenue situtation.

The bill requires that tenants be given notice far in advance of contemplated conversion as well as guaranteeing other aspects of consideration of tenants.

She noted this week that even if her bill is passed, which is doubtful, it would not apply retroactively to these apartments.

CDC

felt they had been deceived "a little bit," as John Stewart said it, when they found at Monday night's meeting that the savings to be gained by the dispatch personnel and center might only be in salaries of dispatching not in the reduction of the police force itself.

Stewart asked that the matter be held until a "cost benefit analysis based on the total tax rate" be prepared for a later meeting, and the committee agreed.

The new central dispatch would replace the two separate operations of the police and fire departments and would include superior radio equipment and computer capabilities.

Police Chief William Quinn and Fire Chief Harvey Preble are both in favor of the CDC.

A suggestion that maintaining but upgrading the two separate systems would be cheaper was met with a salvo of reasons why a a CDC is needed.

Some members of the committee prolonged the two-hour discussion by asking the same questions repeatedly and had apparently not read any of the material provided by the police department and the mayor's office over the past several months.

The appropriation and concept have been approved by the Public Health & Safety Committee.

This drawing for a 20-foot mural to be painted somewhere in Newton in 1931 is by the late Hyman Katz, formerly of Boston. Katz was 15 or 16 years old at the time. A long-time friend of his, who lives in Newton, wonders whether anyone has ever seen the mural in Newton and whether it was ever executed. Katz did many other works but did not make art his career. He died in Chicago in 1976. If the existence of the mural can be verifie please call the Graphic office.

Community Schools elects new officers

The Newton Community Schools Commission elected new officers at the June Commission meeting. They are chairman, Joseph D. Warren, and vice chairman, Danielle Strickman.

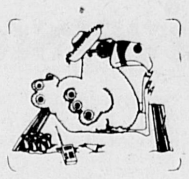

Warren is assistant secretary of the Executive Office of Educational Affairs for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He was on the faculty of Boston University School of Social Work and Brandeis University.

He holds a master's degree from the Florence Heller Graduate School for Advanced Studies in Social Welfare of Brandeis University, where he is currently doctoral candidate in planning.

Danielle Strickman, former Ward School coordinator, is a graduate of Connecticut College and Boston University School of Social Work. She was a Social worker for the Boston Juvenile Court and Suburban Homemaking Service in Brookline.

The Newton Community Schools Commission is the policy— making body of the Community Schools program.

The programs are for community enrichment of all age groups in Newton. They are held in the public school buildings.

"Pennies from Heaven" for Jerry Lewis and the Muscular Dystrophy Association. That's the teme of a new program announced this week by Reynolds Metals Co. Reynolds will donate one penny to the MD Association for every pound of aluminum recycled in the company's nationwide recycling program during August. Collections are expected to exceed 10 million pounds. The penny a pound will be in addition to the 17 cents normally paid to the public. The recycler may keep that money, or donate it to the MDA. In Newton, the aluminum recycling station is on Tower Road in Newton Upper Falls.

N-W nursing director elected to new society

Joyce W. Scudder, director of nursing, Newton-Wellesley Hospital, has been elected to the board of directors of the Massachusetts Society for Nursing Service Administrators.

Ms. Scudder, of West Yarmouth, was elected at the society's meeting in June.

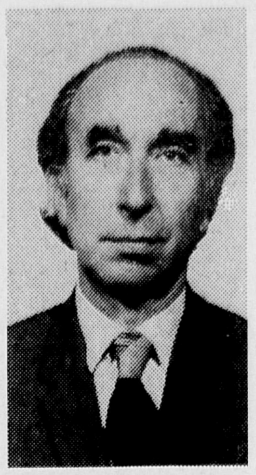

The society is a newly formed statewide organization for nursing service administrators of health care agencies and is an affiliated chapter of the American Society for Nursing Service Administrators of the American Hospital Association.

The group also is endorsed by the Massachusetts Hospital Association.

Ms. Scudder has been nursing service director at Newton— Wellesley since March, and previously was the assistant administrator of clinical services at Cape Cod Hospital, Hyannis.

A member of the American Hospital Association Nursing Service Administrators and the National League for Nursing, Ms. Scudder also is on the advisory board for the Boston University School of Continuing Education for Nursing and the Cape Cod Community College Divison of Nursing.

She received a master's degree in nursing from the University of Maryland and a B.S. in nursing from the University of Bridgeport.

ARNOLD GURIN of Auburndale has been elected to the board of trustees of Brandeis University. He took office July 1 for a two-year term. Gurin has been a faculty member of the university's Florence Heller Graduate School since 1962.

Carleen elected scout council vice president

Warren Carleen of 12 Cross St., West Newton was recently elected vice president of operations for the Norumbega Council, Boy Scouts of America serving the communities of Newton, Wellesley, and Weston.

Warren, the divisional advertising manager of Dennison Manufacturing Company, has served Scouting for many years. He has been active in Pack 306 sponsored by the Horace Mann School PTA, and is currently scoutmaster of Troop 301 sponsored by the Central Congregational Church in Newtonville.

Chairman of the Newton district for three years, Warren also served on the Council Commissioners Staff for 10 years. Carleen is also the recipient of the Silver Beaver Award. The Silver Beaver is the highest award a council can bestow on a volunteer and it shows the esteem in which Carleen is held. .

Warren Carleen

Re-elected as president of the Council, Dr. Edward Michaud, Jr., of Weston will be strengthened by the services of Warren.

Assisting Carleen and Dr. Michaud on the Norumbega Council Executive Board are Arthur Alexander, Fred Berman, Charles Blackington, Jr., Robert Duncan, Richard Enright, Haynes Fellows, Jr., John Gardner, Arnold Haynes, Mrs. Ernest Henderson, 3rd, Harold Hestnes, Amos Kent, Joseph Marino, David McGrath, Jr., Douglas Palmer, Carl Pohlman, John Reading, Thomas Reilly, Peter Sholley, Richard Spaulding, and Guy Spencer.

Blacksmith Never Shod a Horse

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — John Harvey Jones, 57, is a blacksmith who has never shod a horse. He works on brake shoes, not horseshoes, and a range of other metal tools and machine parts at R.J. Reynolds Tobacco.

Jones works with a forge, an anvil, a hammer and tongs, much as blacksmiths of the last century did. He also operates an arsenal of powered equipment — bending roll and air cylinder presses, disc grinders and a power hammer.

A major new pop talent

Some time back in the middle 60s, Tin Pan Alley died and the era of the pop singer-songwriter began.

For a while, it seemed that no performer could hope to go anywhere without writing his or her own material. There was virtually no room for the pure singer — and thus the market for non-performing songwriters all but dried up, as well.

Now, of course, the pendulum has begun swinging in the other direction; the idea of performance for its own sake has taken root once again.

Still, there remains a strong bias in favor of singers who stick more or less to their own original material.

And for songwriters — even those whose performing talents leave something to be desired — there is the ever-present temptation to grab a piece of the spotlight for themselves. It's a temptation that has inflicted many a third-rate performer on the world.

But there are exceptions. Carol King is one. And Carole Bayer Sager is another.

A talented pop lyricist, Carole Bayer Sager has written songs for everyone from Gene Pitney to Liza Minnelli. One of her first tunes — "A Groovy Kind of Love" — was a smash hit for the Mindbenders a dozen years ago.

Her list of musical collaborators reads like a Who's Who of the slicker side of the New York music scene: Bette Midler, Marvin Hamlisch, Neil Sedaka, Melissa Manchester, Peter Allen, Bruce Roberts. Recent successes include Melissa's "Midnight Blue" and Leo Sayer's "When I Need You."

With that kind of success behind her and an apparently inexhaustible knack for coming up with hit-making lyrics, Carole had no pressing need to take to the stage and the recording studio. Nor was she especially drawn by the glamour of the business: she'd seen it from the inside and knew how tough it could be.

But along the line somewhere, a record company executive had suggested she should go ahead and record an album, give show biz a try. And that seed, once planted, refused to die.

So last year, she signed a contract and headed for the studio with a few of her closest friends — including most of her regular collaborators and some of the country's best session musicians — to give it a try.

The result is "Carole Bayer Sager" (Elektra 7E-1100), a record that bears all the signs of presenting the world with a major new pop talent, in a gentle and occasionally tonguein-cheek fashion.

Carole proves to have a husky, middle-register voice, limited in range but laden with character — a kind of cross between Rod Stewart and, ironically, Carol King. It's precisely the kind of voice that, once established in the public ear, becomes an old friend, transforming even mediocre material into something special.

Naturally, there is very little mediocre material here — the songs are mostly about love; they're pure pop and scarcely challenging to the intellect. But they rest nicely on a weary brain and communicate a lot of straightforward human values and emotions, thankfully without slipping over the line into pathos.

On stage, Carole is surprisingly at ease, communicating with an audience in an intimate, natural fashion devoid of nightclub jive. With that voice, she should try some more up-tempo material, but it's questionable whether she'd feel comfortable competing with a hard rock band

Carole Bayer Sager isn't likely to turn on the punk rockers. But for nearly everyone else, she should be a genuine delight.

Adult Students Fill Youngsters' Seats

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — When enrollment dropped at South High School, administrators began to fill the empty seats with adults who want special training.

Edna Gruber, 62, is one. She is studying Spanish in the hope she'll be able to travel in Mexico and Spain some day.

The adult education program, incidentally, has a higher absenteeism and dropout rate than the regular enrollment of school-age students.

All "forgotten" wives, rejoice!

Another blow has been struck for the equal identity of wives.

No more will a telephone book listing necessarily carry only the husband's name. Beginning with the next phone book, customers with the same surname will have the option of listing two first names.

Customers who want a dual listing should notify the New England Telephone company business office at 965-9950 before Sept. 26, the closing date for the West Suburban phone book.

Dr. Berson gets fellowship

Dr. Frank B. Berson of Newton was awarded a fellowship of the Academy of General Dentistry at the academy's Convocation Ceremony recently in Montreal, Quebec.

At this year's meeting over 200 academy members received the honor.

Two residents given grants for heart research

. Joanne I. Ingwall, Ph.D., of 115 Dartmouth St., West Newton, and Patricio Silva, M.D., of 34 Whittier Rd., Newtonville, are among 10 Massachusetts heart researchers who have received grants from the American Heart Association to carry on projects in cardiovascular research.

Dr. Ingwall, whose studies are being conducted at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, is focusing on the regulation of high— energy phosphate metablism and control of muscle protein synthesis in normal myocardium and in two disease states, ischemia and hypertrophy with failure.

Dr. Silva, who is chief at the Renal Unit of the Beth Israel Hospital, is investigating the physiological aspects of electrolyte transport in the kidney and its relation with oxygen utilization and substrate metabolism.

Cohen heads medical group

Alan S. Cohen, M.D., of Boston University School of Medicine was named president-elect of the American Rheumatism Association, the medical-scientific component of the Arthritis Foundation, at the group's recent annual meeting in San Francisco.

Cohen is the Conrad Wesselhoeft Professor of Medicine at Boston University School of Medicine, chief of medicine at Boston City Hospital and director of the Thorndike Memorial Laboratory. He has been chief of the Arthritis Section of the Evans Memorial Department of Clinical Research and Preventive Medicine at University Hospital since 1960 and has recently been engaged in developing an organizational structure for the coordination of all arthritis-related work at Boston University and its related health insitituions.

Alert postman stops car fire

A fire in an automobile on Charlesbank Rd. was extinguished by the alert efforts of an off-duty mailman on his way from work on June 29 about 6 p.m.

4Noel Atherton of Quincy, employed in the special delivery section of the Newtsnville Post Office, noticed a crowd, including several children, gathered about the burning car. Stopping his own car, Atherton warned the crowd to pull back and remove the children from the danger area.

Noting that the engine was afire and flames shooting from the carburetor, he rushed back to his own vehicle for a piece of plywood, and completely smothered the fire before the arrival of the fire engine from station one.

The burning 1977 blue Plymouth was owned by Elliot Stone, an attorney, of 171 Highland Ave., Newtonville, who wrote a letter to Athertone, commending his professional judgment in sizing up the danger and preventing injury and a major fire. Little damage was done to his car.

Mofenson a trustee

David J. Mofenson of Newton, Democratic member of the Massachusetts House of Representative, recently was elected to a one-year term on the alumni council at Tufts University.

Mofenson is a 1964 graduate of Tufts' College of Liberal Arts. He is chairman of both the House Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs and the Special Legislative Committee on Privacy. Mofenson lives at 19 Hargrave Circle.

Elderly, blind, disabled get 5 per cent increase

A 5 percent cost-of-living increase for the elderly, blind and disabled has been included in the 1978 budget. This was one of the prime legislative goals of Sen. Jack H. Backman, chairman of the Joint Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs.

Backman said, "I am most pleased that some measure of relief for the elderly, blind and disabled has been included in the budget. It is a pity, however, that they could not be given more than the meager 5 percent which the legislature granted.

"It is also a travesty that a program which had been mandated as an annual cost of living increase should remain a political football, subject to the whim of the legislature and the governor. I believe that a cost-of-living increase should once again become automatic each year," said Backman. "It was unfortunate that in the midst of our fiscal crisis last year, the automatic cost-of— living increase was repealed at the urging of the governor."

Backman also criticized the AFDC budget, which he termed a "fraud on poor people of our Commonwealth."

a"we have granted AFDC recipients a 'non-grant,' Backman said. "In our budget we provided for a 3 percent cost-of-living increase for persons receiving AFDC to take effect in December under conditions that are almost impossible to take place. The appropriation will be subject to the determination of the Secretary of Administration and Finance, as well as the Commissioner of Public Welfare that there will be no deficiency in the welfare account as of Dec. 1, 1977."

"During the past decade the Welfare Department has been forced to return to the legislature each year to seek a deficiency budget because of insufficient funds. There is no reason to believe that they will not have to do the same this year, which will then eliminate the cost-of-living increase for AFDC recipients.

"What this means is that a mother with two children, who would have received a mere $1.95 increase per month, will receive no increase at all," said Backman.

Backman added that during the coming year he will again work for an automatic cost-of-living increase for the elderly, blind and disabled, as well as an increase for families with dependent children.

"We must stop making victims of those most in need and begin providing them with adequate care and meaningful jobs, not promises and forced labor," said Sen. Backman.

HONDA A WHEEL DEAL!
Harry came to us looking for a wheel deal on a small car. We told him about Honda. 41 miles to the gallon highway driving. Regular low-lead gas because there's no catalytic converter. Lots of leg room. Harry loved it. He bought it. And now he's weady and waring to go! Harry got a wheel deal, why not . . . that's the weason we're here! The ability of this car to go through snow with front wheel drive is the closest thing to a snowmobile.

No identity crisis for Debbie Vataha

By ELEANOR SIEGEL

"Women who get lost in their husband's identity let themselves," maintains Debbie Vataha, who has expertly avoided the pitfall. Despite being married to Randy Vataha, the New England Patriot's wide receiver whose career is well-known, she is confident she has been able to preserve her self-identity.

Leaning back on the couch in her family room and sipping lemonade, Debbie is casual and her warmth exhudes the natural friendliness legendary in people from California.

"Anything I do," she explained, "I get credit for." While unsalaried, she "does" a great deal. She is able to balance the pursuit of her own interests while maintaining a high level of interest and involvement in her husband's career.

For example, she sings in the choir at the First Baptist Church, Dedham. While she prefers choir singing and has always been in a choir whether in school or in church, for awhile she sang as part of a trio. Singing soprano, she teamed up with two friends, Cinda Carr and Cheryl Montgomery in California and they called themselves "The Chantees."

It was in California the Vatahas met. They were both studying at the Golden West Junior College in Huntington Beach, California. The couple moved to Dedham five and one-half years ago and today own an attractive, spacious home in Canton.

Before she met Randy, Debbie was an avid sports fan describing herself as the kind of fan who attended baseball games with a radio, "a baseball fanatic." Part of that she explains saying, "my Dad was a real sports person," however, the other person who had a profound influence on her life is her younger brother, Brad.

Because of her love for sports, she finds being married to a football player enjoyable and "one reason I enjoy it is I don't feel left out." Since she has a good grasp of the sport, many evenings or days she and her husband will sit at the kitchen table talking about plays. Sometimes Vataha will even sketch one out to illustrate the discussion.

She is an active member in the New England Patriot's Wives Association which supports many charitable efforts. Debbie also points out it serves as a kind of support group for wives. Not only does the Wives Association quickly welcome new wives, but it also offers something, she said, for the "old" wives who occasionally "forget the delight of being on a football team."

During the interview Vataha arrived home bursting with news about his new Racquet Club which is opening soon in Braintree. Vataha has dubbed the club, "The Playoff", and will run it in partnership with Bill Lenkaitis and George Matthews.

The club is so much a part of their life Debbie mentioned that although she majored in sociology in college, now she would like to study accounting. The new venture is intended to be Vataha's backup when he retires.

The Vataha's have no children but Debbie says "we are not the kind of people to say never." Children, right now, don't fit into their lifestyle which includes two trips a year home to California and travelling off season. They have also been skiing in Switzerland, and swimming in Jamaica.

During football season, there is not that much out of town travel for Vataha. When it does occur, Debbie says it's usually only one night. Those times she accompanies him to the airport and they and a group of couples have dinner in town when the players return Sunday evening, "making it fun."

A tremendously active woman, cramming her day with not only tennis but also committments to several charities, she even finds time to drive a local cancer patient to the hospital for treatment.

She is also a member of a sisterhood called "PEO" and apologizes for not being able to divulge what the initials stand for. "PEO" has founded Cottey College in Missouri and it raises funds enabling women to attend not only that college but various other institutions. It will also lend money to women who wish to return to college.

Deeply committed to her church, Debbie not only sings in the choir but also helps out whenever she is able. This summer she assisted at a weeklong vacation Bible School for youngsters. She also teaches on Monday nights, has prayer meetings on Wednesday evenings and is a substitute Sunday School teacher, She studies Bible on Wednesday night.

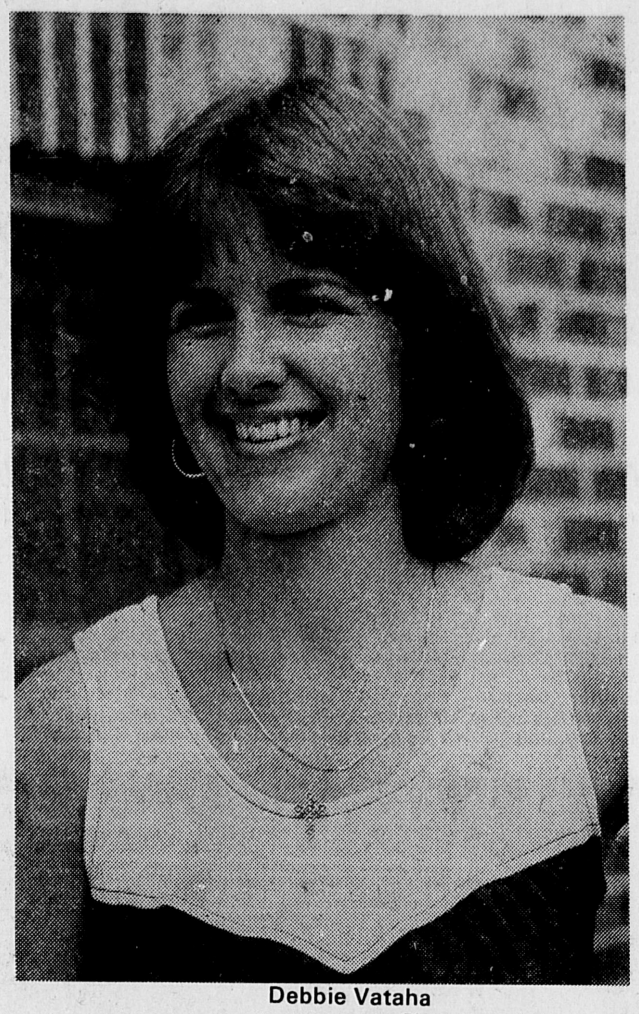

Recently, she has spoken before two groups about "My Life as a Christian." She said that she doesn't mind being asked to speak because she is Randy's wife, because simply getting the opportunity to present her views is important.

In their "couple relationship," Debbie avers "he is the leader." She maintains the Bible instructs women to "be submissive, not slaves," adding, "this is the way it works best."

Vataha recently "accepted Christ into his life." In the past she attended church alone and he did not because he did not believe. His change of heart did not come about she said as a result of pressure from her.

However, in an earlier portion of the interview, she read from the Bible, "Your Godly lives will speak to them better than any words."

It can be said she lives out that phrase.

THE READERS WRITE.. Diane Taylor

This is the reader's column. Send recipes or questions to Diane Taylor, c-o Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: Thought maybe you or your reader's may be able to help me out. Recently I purchased two jars of zucchini relish at a church bazaar and after going through all my cookbooks, have yet to find the recipe. Find plenty with cut-up zucchini and onions, but not the relish. I would appreciate it if I could get the recipe.

Mrs. Lillian Holland,
Needham Heights

Answer: Gardeners and cooks will be happy to note that we have plenty of zucchini recipes. A reader, Mrs. Virginia Hanson of Dedham sent in a recipe for zucchini relish and one for zucchini nut bread. A second recipe for zucchini relish is also offered today.

Mrs. Hanson's Zucchini Relish

10 cups chopped unpeeled zucchini
4 cups chopped onions
5 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons celery seed (optional)
1 sweet red pepper, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
4 cups sugar
2½ cups vinegar
1 tablespoon tumeric
1 teaspoon black pepper

Mix zucchini, onions and salt. Let stand overnight. In morning, rinse and drain. Add remaining ingredients, mix and simmer for 30 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and seal at once. Makes six pints.

Zucchini Relish

6 large zucchini trimmed
4 large onions
1 green pepper
1 red pepper
½ cup salt
3 cups sugar
2½ cups vinegar
2 teaspoons tumeric
2 teaspoons celery seed

Work through a food chopper the zucchini, onions, pepper (with seeds and ribs removed). If a coarser relish is desired, chop vegetables by hand. Cover the vegetables with ice water in which the salt has been dissolved. Let the mixture stand for one hour. Drain the mixture and rinse well under running cold water. Drain thoroughly and set aside.

In a saucepan boil the sugar, vinegar, one cup of water, tumeric and celery seed for three minutes. Add the vegetable mixture and cook the relish over low heat for 10-15 minutes. While it is still hot, spoon relish into seven, one-half pint, jars and seal the tops securely.

Mrs. Hanson's Zucchini Nut Bread

3 eggs
1 cup salad oil
2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla
2 cups grated, unpeeled zucchini
3 cups flour
3 teaspoons cinnamon
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 cup chopped nuts
raisins may be added if desired

Beat the eggs until frothy, beat in sugar, oil and vanilla until mixture is thick and lemony. Stir in grated zucchini. Sift all dry ingredients together and blend well in egg mixture. Fold in nuts. Pour batter into two oiled and floured pans, 8" x 4½" x 3". Bake at 350 degrees F. for one hour and 20 minutes.

COOKER

Sandwiches don't have to be ordinary

There's a sandwich loaf for every occasion: The thin, spicy round for appetizers, the pastel loaf for showers or luncheons and this one for hearty appetites, brought on by summer-activated sports.

Contrast is one of the primary objectives in sandwich loaves. That means contrast in texture, taste and color. The bread as well as the fillings contribute to this, but there should also be harmony.

Hearty Rye Sandwich Loaf uses an unsliced round rye bread which is an ideal flavormate for ham and Swiss filling, reddish white, Vermont Cheddar, orange, and egg salad, yellow.

It's important to spread the cut side of each layer with butter so the filling won't soak into the bread. Butter also contributes good flavor. Do chill the loaf, once it's assembled, for several hours or overnight so it slices neatly. A serrated knife or an electric one, is ideal for making neat servings of this production.

Should you be looking for a sweet to top off this hearty sandwich, then there's nothing more appetizing tha bar made of natural ingredients. Raisin Date Bars rely heavily on the dried fruit for sweetness, while brown sugar, butter and oats contribute flavor.

HEARTY RYE SANDWICH LOAF

12 sandwich wedges
1 loaf (1½ lb.) unsalted round rye bread
Butter, softened

Ham and Swiss Filling:

1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
1 cup ground or finely chopped ham
¼ cup dairy sour cream
1 teaspoon prepared spicy brown mustard
½ teaspoon grated onion

Vermont Cheddar Filling:

1½ cups (6 oz.) shredded Vermont Cheddar Cheese
1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese
2 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons each chopped green & red pepper
½ teaspoon Worstcershire sauce

Egg Salad Filling:

4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
3 tablespoons dairy sour cream
3 tablespoons chopped dill pickle
2 tablespoons chopped celery
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon salt

For ham and Swiss filling, combine Swiss cheese, ham, sour cream, mustard and onion. For Vermont Cheddar Filling, beat Vermont Cheddar cheese and cream cheese together; beat in milk. Stir in peppers and Worcestershire sauce. For egg salad filling, combine eggs, sour cream, pickle, celery, mustard and salt. Slice bread crosswise to make 4 layers. Spread one cut side of each layer of bread with butter. Spread bottom layer with ham and Swiss filling, second with egg salad filling and third with Vermont Cheddar filling. Reassemble bread. Wrap tightly with plastic wrap; chill. To serve, cut into wedges with serrated knife or electric knife.

RAISIN-DATE BARS
32 bars

1 package (8 oz.) chopped pitted dates
1½ cups seedless raisins
¾ cup water
¼ cup sugar
½ cup chopped nuts
¾ cup (1½ sticks) butter
¾ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1¼ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1¼ cups quick oats, uncooked

Combine dates, raisins, water and sugar; boil 5 minutes. Cool slightly. Add nuts and set aside. Cream butter; add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Combine flour, salt and oats; stir into creamed mixture. Mixture will be crumbly. Pack two-thirds of mixture evenly and firmly in bottom of lightly buttered 13 x 9-inch baking pan. Spread evenly with date mixture. Sprinkle remaining crumb mixture over top; press down lightly. Bake in preheated 350 degrees oven 25 to 30 minutes. Cool in pan on wire rack. Cut into bars.

If you are looking for some different ways to change those "same old" sandwich fillings, try these:

TUNA SALAD

2 6½ or 7 ounce cans tuna (packed in water)
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons catchup
1-3 cup mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing
1 teaspoon Worstcershire

Prepare the filling several hours in advance. Mix all the ingredients and refrigerate.

EGG SALAD

6 hard-boiled eggs, chopped
¼ cup finely chopped ripe olives
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ cup mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing

Mix the ingredients. Chill.

Seek parent advisers for special education

The Massachusetts Department of Education's Division of Special Education is seeking nominations of parents of special needs children to serve as regional advisory council members. The councils, composed of parents and educators, meet monthly to discuss special education services within their regions. The department has regional offices in Cambridge, North Andover, Lakeville, West Boylston, Springfield and Pittsfield.

Each council has 16 members. Apointments are for a three-year term which will expire in 1980. The state Board of Education will make the appointments at its August meeting.

Nominations can be made by contacting Larry Hardison, Greater Boston, 547-7472.

Directors appointed to counseling service

Family Counseling Service (Region West), Inc., has appointed four Newton residents to its board of directors. They are Mrs. Beverly Carmen and Mrs. Naomi Fainsinger of West Newton, Mrs. Edyth Usen of Newton Centre, and Raymond W. Rawlings of Newton.

Mrs. Carmel has previously been active with the Newton Mental Health Center and was co-founder of the Newton Multi-Service Center. Mrs. Fainsinger, a family counselor in Brookline, has worked with the League of Women Voters, New England Villages and Framingham Union Hospital.

Mrs. Usen has been a volunteer with United Way, Combined Jewish Philanthropies, Hadassah, and Beth Israel Hospital.

Rawlings, a practising attorney, was a director of the Family Service Society in Manchester, N.H., and president of the Family Service Society in Lawrence, Mass.

The six offices of Family Counseling Service, (Region West), are staffed by psychiatric social workers to aid families and individuals in Newton, Brookline, Waltham, Wayland, Natick, Weston, Wellesley, Sherborn and Sudbury. The service, a United Way agency, offers psychiatrists and a psychologist for testing and consultation, and also is a training center for graduate students from the schools of social work of Boston College and Simmons.

Counseling is provided through confidential interviews with an individual, a couple or a family. Group Counseling and therapy groups are also offered. Fees are adjustable to income. The office is at 74 Walnut Park, Newton, Tel. 965-6200.

New board members at Continuum meeting

The board of Continuum, work re-entry program for women over 30, will welcome its newest members at its quarterly meeting Thursday, July 14 at 7:30 p.m. at Continuum offices on Brandeis University campus.

Board chairman Ms. Elsa earl Levin of Brookline and Jackman of Cambridge. Ms. Levin, a 1977 graduate of the internship program, was elected to the board by her Continuum co-interns. Ms. Jackman, director of the Federation of Organizations of Professional Women at Wellesley College, served as a workshop lecturer this past Continuum year.

Ms. Ruth MacRoberts of Newton will be elected to the board this month. She is the former director of personnel at the Massachusetts General Hospital, is currently a freelance management consultant and participated in Continuum's pre-graduation week in June.

The July meeting will focus on program plans, 1977-1978 outreach plans and general policy. The innovative work re-entry program enters its third year in September.. Continuum calls upon members of greater Boston's business community to create valuable on-the-job learning experiences for its employment-oriented mature women.

Susan Colwell wins internship

Susan Colwell of Newton has been awarded the Margaret E. Adams Internship of the National Association of Social Work and will work in Washington, D.C. through December, 1977. She is a second year graduate student at Boston University's School of Social Work.

Working under the executive staff at the national office of N.A.S.W., Ms. Colwell will help develop programs and policy, standards for social workers, and social action. She will return to Boston in January to complete requirements for her master's degree

MUSE-ic

Singers join MUSE staff at annual banquet

Two new performing artists signed initial contracts to sing with MUSE at the annual meeting and banquet of this group which brings concert music to the elderly.

Singers Susan Kruegel, who has performed in Europe and recently with the Boston Pops, and Margaret Cornman, finalist in the 1977 Metropolitan Opera auditions, will participate in the regular monthly or bi-monthly concerts given at retirement and 8 nursing homes by Music Serving the Elderly.

Walter D. Hill of Waban, business manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was introduced as the new chairman of the MUSE board. He presided over the evening and presented awards to board members and financial contributors.

MUSE, Inc., is a non-profit organization founded three years ago by Paul W. Wiggin of Waban, director and first performing artist of the group. MUSE programs are taken to homes for the elderly all over urban and suburban Boston. 8n the past few months, the number of requests for MUSE visits has doubled from 40 to more than 80. MUSE is supported by the homes which request its services, and by community contributions.

The banquet was held at 14 Collins Rd., Waban, and concluded with a concert by the three performing artists on its staff. There was also a showing of a 10- minute color film about MUSE which is available to groups.

Health council will discuss ways to spread health information

A panel discussion on ideas for sharing more health information with local communities will be held on Wednesday, July 20, at 7:45 p.m. at Newton-Wellesley Hospital. It will be sponsored by the West Metro Health Council, local unit of the Health Planning Council for Greater Boston.

Panelists will be Martin Berger and J. Carolyn Zavarine, M.D., of Newton; Stephen B. L. Pincus of Framingham; and Luis-Orlando Isaza of Watertown. They will outline ways of helpin8 residents take a more active role in planning for health services in the 20-town area served by the Metro Health Council. They hope to establish regional health goals now being developed by the Health Planning Council for Greater Boston. D Eleanor Quirk, R.N. of Needham, chairman of the Council, announces that the public is welcome at the meeting.

Georgia L. Eacker of Sherborn, chairman of the Council's nominating committee, says that there are now eight openings for consumers on the Council. There are two seats for representatives of the over-65 age group; two seats for persons below median income; one seat for a Spanish-speaking person; one for a consumer from Hopkinton, Hudson, Marlboro or Southboro; and two "unrestricted consumer" seats which require no special affiliation.

Members of the West Metro Health Council may participate in a variety of activities, including planning for public education programs, reviewing pro8posals for new health services or construction projects, and developing the regional health systems program.

Interested citizens are urged to phone any Metro member or Magdalena Galindo at the Health Planning Council office in Brighton at 787-5800 for more membership information.

Bloodmobile

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will be at Boston College today (July 14), and at E.D.C., 55 Chapel St., Nonantum, on Wednesday, July 22, from 10 a.m. to 3:45 p.m.

The bloodmobile today will be at McElroy Commons of Boston College, at Beacon and Hammond Sts., Chestnut Hill.

If you can donate blood at either of these bloodmobiles, please call the Red Cross Chapter House, 527-6000, for an appointment. Appointments are important because they allow for an even flow of donors and prevent waiting lines. Donation should take no more than an hour, and can save four lives.

Volunteers who can work at the bloodmobiles are asked to call the chapter house.

Catholic Church grants $60,000 to domestic anti-poverty programs

Twenty-two local poverty programs were granted some $60,000 in aid this past week from the Catholic church's domestic anit-poverty program, the campaign for Human Development (CHD).

According to Rev. Thomas McDonnell, the campaign's Boston director, the programs were selected from some 60 applicants for funds. Selections are made according to need, he said, and to the type of actual service they perform for the poor.

The types of services aided this year range from a residence for needy alcoholics and remedial reading programs for minority students to a program for the elderly and a Birthright organization.

The Campaign for Human Development was begun by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops six years ago and in that time has donated more than $37 million to more than 1,100 community projects across the country. Recently, the bishops voted to continue the campaign beyond its original goal of raising $50 million. While one of the main thrusts of the campaign is direct funding of self— help projects for the poor, it is also interested in sponsoring programs that deal with education about poverty and justice.

The major source of revenue for the campaign is the annual collection around Thanksgiving time. Fr. McDonnell indicated that this year's collection in the Boston Archdiocese was up three percent over last year.

A team of 14 persons, consisting of priests, religious and laity, visits every project to help in determining the final recipients.

Following is a list of Greater Boston organizations which were awarded funds by the local office for the Campaign for Human Development.

Multi-Human Service Center, Inc. Bellingham. Providing a variety of services for the poor in a much neglected area of the Archdiocese, $3,5000.

Hope House, Inc., Boston, resident treatment for needy alcoholics $3,5000.

B.C. High School Summer Program, a summer program for the culturally and educationally deprived from low-income, inner-city children, $1,500.

The Unmarried Fathers' Program, Lowell. To develop a program serving the needs of the young, single male who bears the responsibility for fostering the children, $3,000.

Cambridge Elderly United, multi-dimensional project for the elderly in the Cambridge area, $3,200.

St. Paul's Educational Program for Minority Youngsters. A remedial program in math and reading for minority youngsters with learning difficulties, $2,750.

Religious Education Program for Inner-City Schools, in So. Shore, $2,000.

9 to 5 Organization for Women Office Workers. Aim is for equal opportunity enforcement for women in industries in Boston, $4,000.

Co-operative Work Experience Program. St. Coletta Day School's program aimed at developing both potential and opportunity for retarded children re employment by on-the-job training, $2,750.

Asociacion hispana de San Esteban. Spanish program in Framingham area. Multi-dimensional outreach, $4,600.

So. Shore Education Program for Retarded-Handicapped Citizens and their families. Covering whole So. Shore area and working through parishes, the program attempts to fill in the many gaps which other institutions are unable to meet, $2,000.

St. Mary's High School Development Office, Cambridge. An office which provides links with the community resources in the area to develop curriculum offerings for urban youths; to use such "models" in fund-raising appeals, $1,000.

City-Wide Educational Coalition, Inc., Boston, $4,000.

Greater Boston Birthright, Inc., $3,500.

Deaf Community Center, Inc., Framingham, $2,000.

Charles U. Housing Union, Allston. A variety of services to members of the Housing project, $1,350.

Little Sisters of the Assumption. A variety of services, especially medical, being provided to poor of Dorchester-Roxbury area, $4,500.

Mystic Urban Apostolate, Somerville. An attempt to cope with the multiple problems of project living, $2,500.

Boston School for the Deaf-Summer Camp. A program for deaf and aphasic children, $3,500.

Carney Hospital. An attempt to explore methods through health facilities for health education for Dorchester community high school students, $4,200.

American Committee for Cape Verde, Boston. A communications project for this minority group, $1,800.

Charlestown Community Center. Drop-in Program which seems to have unanimous endorsement of priests and people in Charlestown, $2,500.

JORDAN L. GOLDING of Chestnut Hill has been elected to the corporation of the Boston Museum of Science.

J. HUNTER WALTON JR. of Newton has been elected to the corporation of the Boston Museum of Science.

United Church of Christ outlines human rights program

Newly-elected United Church of Christ president, Avery D. Post, promised the church's 11th General Synod Meeting that he would lead them as a "populist president," and the synod's "bold initiatives in support of human rights and justice issues" gave him a concrete agenda for keeping his promise.

Synod recommended that local churches study important questions of human sexuality, create programs to aid the aged and handicapped, defend the civil rights of homosexuals, endorse the Equal Rights Amendment, support human rights in South Korea, South Africa, the Philippines and Runmania; and endorse numerous denominational programs to aid blacks, Hispanics , American Indians, Asian-Americans and women.

The 704 synod delegates voted unanimously that the Office of Communication, the denominational agency charged with working in radio and television, should launch a campaign to "eliminate the misuse of violence and sexual imagery in television programming."

The synod reaffirmed the United Church's commitment to discussion of merger with the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). It asked that local churches and church agencies join in preliminary conversations over the next two years.

Attending the convention, held in Washington, D.C., July 6 to 12, were: Lynda Corcoran, Newton Centre; and Rev. Max Stackhouse, Newton Highlands.

Doors donated for new Lung Health Center

The American Door Company of Needham has donated all interior and exterior doors for the new Lung Health Center in Walpole.

According to attorney William Halliday of Newton, vice president of the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, sponsors of the center, some 36 prehung solid core doors will be used in the 4,500-square-foot building.

To be located on Rte. 1A on land donated by the Bird and Son Company, the building will be the first permanent home of the over 50-year-old Lung Association.

"We very much appreciate the generous contribution of Phil Cacciatore, president of American Door," said Halliday. "Many businesses have expressed an interest in our project." Contributions of siding, land fill and roofing have also been received.

In addition to housing the Lung Association's staff, the center will be used for professional education seminars for physicians, nurses and paraprofessional medical personnel, as well as a meeting place for the organization's emphysema clubs, services for children with asthma, and nonsmoking programs.

The facility is being built by the Stanmar Corporation of Sudbury. A completion date in October is expected, according to Halliday.

Lexington museum needs volunteers

A variety of opportunities are open to volunteers at The Museum of Our National Heritage, Lexington.

Short or long-term assignments are available as receptionists, library aides, and assistants in publications distribution, friends of the museum and mailing list maintenance.

For information, call Jacqueline Oak, 861-6563. The museum is located at 33 Marrett Road.

"I have tried other brands of cigarettes and have the almost full packs in my cabinet to prove it. MERIT is the first different brand I have liked and the tar and nicotine level is hard to believe."

—Ms. Mary A. Shufon
Troy, New York

"I was amazed! I can't believe that a low tar and nicotine cigarette can taste so good."

—J. Thomas Ellicott, Jr.
North Palm Beach, Florida

"After smoking for 25 years and desperately looking for a low tar and nicotine cigarette that tastes like a cigarette, EUREKA—MERIT."

—Mrs. Elaine R. Turiano
New Brunswick, New Jersey

"Bingo! This is really the first low tar cigarette that I can taste."

—James E. Yates, Jr.
Johnson City, Tennessee

"Well, a pack of Merit cigarettes caught my eye. It was the yellow and brown stripes. I broke down and bought a pack. I tell you that they are fantastic!

"...if you can change me, you can change anyone."

—Mrs. Bonnie Lindsay Bridgeport Connecticut

"I think you people have come out with the best menthol cigarette yet."

—Robert E. Wright
Columbus, Ohio

"I want to thank you for producing a cigarette which actually lives up to its advertising—low tar and full cigarette flavor."

—Irene Feiffer
New York, New York

"We tried most of the new ones, but none seemed like you were smoking at all, until MERIT."

—William L. Platter
South Plainfield, New Jersey

"I have tried some of the low tar and low nicotine cigarettes, but never cared for them until the MERITs were put on the market. I really enjoy them very much and I just wanted to say thanks for a nice cigarette."

—Mrs. Rodney Rice
Indian Orchard Massachusetts

"As a cigarette smoker for some 60 years, I wanted to compliment you on your fine product, MERIT cigarettes."

—Rex B. Little
San Diego, California

"You've done it; made a good tasting cigarette, low in tar. I've switched to MERIT!"

—Mrs. Frederic Shaw
Jenkintown, Pennsylvania

"I've been smoking MERIT for 2 months (when the store has them) and two of my neighbors switched to MERIT MENTHOL. We're all delighted."

—Gene L. Hodges, Jr.
Charlotte, North Carolina

© Philip Morris Inc. 1977

"It should be called the T.T.T. cigarette (true tobacco taste)."

—Mr. J. W. McLeod
Manning, South Carolina

"I have to admit I was skeptical because I had tried several low tar cigarettes. After smoking one pack, I was really amazed...they are as good as the cigarettes with higher tar."

—Mrs. Brenda Clark
Opelika, Alabama

"I have been searching for a low tar cigarette for some time now. All others I've tried have no taste... I'm a MERIT man."

—Ray Echard
Parkersburg, West Virginia

"I don't know what you did, but you certainly did something right."

—Mrs. Marian Friedman
Valley Stream, New York

"MERIT is terrific. The 12-year effort was worth it!"

—Mrs. Emmett Wagner

"MERIT is the only brand in low tar to give me the flavor and satisfaction that I had been looking for."

—Cecilia Beberman
Wantagh, New York

"In the past, I have tried other brands as they came on the market, but they all lacked something. MERIT contains that something the others lacked."

—Guy E. Noble
Orlando, Florida

"I've made the switch."

—Mrs. Edward Pelc
Munster, Indiana

—Mr. Michael Noga
Brooklyn, New York

"Your new cigarette, MERIT, absolutely shocked me."

—Terry Stewart
Springfield, Ohio

"I bought a pack of MERIT cigarettes and another and another. They're great. Like it says on the pack: A quality of flavor in a low tar and nicotine cigarette."

—Mrs. George Richaud
Bakersfield, California

"Congratulations. I've tried them all and your new offering, 'MERIT', has it all."

—Paul C. Burt
Stirling, New Jersey

"Your 'Enriched Flavor' process has done much to restore my faith in American ingenuity."

—Ms. Elizabeth Byrd Carder
Stamford, Connecticut

"Just wanted to drop a line and say congratulations for Merit 100's. They are great."

—Mr. Fred W. Gruman
Floral Park, New York

"The taste of Merit supersedes all others. It is not only mild, but good tasting."

—Mrs. Ethel Carnegie
Washington, D.C.

"I have been searching for a low tar and nicotine cigarette for a long time. I never dreamed I would find one that I could actually enjoy. I found one. MERIT."

—Wendell D. Austin
Ben Avon, Pennsylvania

"I have tried your MERIT MENTHOL and you have sold me."

—Mary Felix
Miami Beach, Florida

"I don't usually write to companies about their products, but in this case you definitely deserve praise on your new cigarette—MERIT MENTHOL 100's.

"Your 'Enriched Flavor' process is the greatest. Thank you!"

—Mrs. Patricia Amato
Linden, New Jersey

"Several months ago, I tried Merits, and have been smoking them ever since. They are the first low tar cigarette that actually tastes good."

—Barbara G. Wiltshire
Richmond, Virginia

"I tried your cigarette. I couldn't believe it, a smoother smoke, real cigarette taste."

—Mrs. Christine Buczak
New York, New York

"Congratulations on coming out with a low tar, low nicotine cigarette that tastes like tobacco instead of lettuce."

—Mrs. Glen C. Skaggs

—Mrs. Evelyn R. Malone
Bell, California

"I am writing to let you know that I really enjoy smoking Merit cigarettes. They were passed out to everyone at a Bingo game at Our Lady of Peace Church in Lynbrook, New York. That's when I started smoking them."

—Mrs. Rose Palmieri
Lynbrook, New York

"By the time I finished my first pack of MERIT cigarettes, I was really sold on them."

Edward J. Waddington
Westmont New Jersey

"I bought a package of regular MERIT and was really impressed."

—Dorothy M. Hempel
Cincinnati, Ohio

"Your new brand, MERIT, is a real cigarette."

—Richard S. Williams
Bel Air, Maryland

"Merit 100's still taste like a cigarette, even though low in tar."

—Mrs. Estelle Myhlhousen
Marietta, Georgia

"The very first pack of MERIT MENTHOL did it. I was immediately impressed with the taste."

—Raymond T. Abdoo
Suffield, Ohio

"My husband and I switched to MERIT and we really like the taste. It's unbelievable how good a low tar/low nicotine cigarette can taste."

—Kathy Lynn Mazzarella
South Bend, Indiana

"Just a note to say thank you for making Merit 100's. They are great."

—Mrs. Betty Taylor
Montgomery, Alabama

"I've tried all the low tar, low nicotine cigarettes and they all lacked taste and flavor. Then came 'MERIT', voilà! The flavor is fine and I enjoy them."

—Mrs. Jeannette Trebilcock
Virginia Beach Virginia

"By golly, it's true what people say about Merit. I tried them, I switched! They're satisfying, while I'm cutting down on tar."

—Mrs. Dawn Rauh
Burbank, California

"MERIT is the first low tar and nicotine cigarette that I enjoy smoking."

—A. Carol Payne
Washington, D.C.

"My husband brought home a pack of 'Merit Filters' and told me to try one—I did—it was good. Had a nice, mild taste. I loved it."

—Mrs. Laurie Mack
Little Rock, Arkansas

"MERIT comes through with flying colors."

—Ms. Dorothy Pendergast
North Syracuse, New York

"Your years of research with your new cigarette, MERIT, have certainly been most successful."

—Mrs. Barbara F. Miller
Venice, Florida

"It's MERIT from now on."

—Mrs. F. J. Branson
Berkeley, Missouri

"I can't tell you how shocked I was that it was really a low tar and nicotine cigarette that really had flavor."

—Mrs. Judith Pietras
Streamwood, Illinois

"I tried your Menthol MERITs. The best low tar and nicotine cigarette yet."

—Mrs. Sam Maniaci
Monroe, Michigan

"There isn't a better low 'tar' cigarette on the market than Merit. I don't know how you got so much 'quality of flavor' into only 9 mg. of 'tar', but I'm quite grateful you did."

—Molly Forde
San Rafael, California

"I would like to thank you for adding taste to menthol."

—Frank Winebrenner
York, Pennsylvania

"Thank you for making Merit 100's. My husband and I both really do enjoy them."

—Mrs. Earl May
Hamilton, Ohio

"Thank you so very much for making a mild low tar cigarette. The flavor is very pleasing."

—Ed H. Bourne, Jr.

"You have a confirmed Merit smoker in me."

—Linda Harvey
Bronx, New York

"It's hard to believe that such a cigarette could deliver such a rich flavor and taste."

—Mr. Jerry Lee Lowry
Indianapolis, Indiana

"I read your ad for MERITs. I bought one pack and was so surprised at the true taste of good tobacco."

—Mrs. Marjorie H. Belanger
Oxnard California

MERIT!

"This letter is to let you folks know how much we enjoy your new low tar cigarette, MERIT. We had tried the other new cigarettes on the market but were disgusted with the cardboard flavor. However, the flavor of MERIT was pleasing."

—Mrs. Paul A. Oreal
Norristown Pennsylvania

"Verdict: FINALLY, a low tar cigarette with taste!"

—Bianca Doeschner
New York New York

"I am being truthful when I say MERIT Menthol really does have that satisfying taste."

—Mrs Sandra Kohut
Pittsburgh Pennsylvania

"This cigarette has got what we've all been looking for. Smoking MERIT is really a pleasure."

—Edward Levinson
Columbus Ohio

"Because of its low tar and nicotine content, I expected it to be tasteless like the others. I was really surprised."

—Arlene Tosk
Fair Lawn New Jersey

"I would just like to say that I think your Merit 100's are the greatest. Thanks for a great cigarette!"

—Miss Karen Matthews

Last game The last game of the season in the Newton East Little League between the San Diego Padres and the Giants was a thriller. The Padres lost and the Giants placed first in the League. But coaches Dick Barnett, left, and Steve Berman, right, had purchased trophies for their second place team which had pulled mightily together during the season.

Waltham Connie Macks tip Newton National nine, 5-4

Waltham Connie Mack All Stars defeated Newton's National Division All Star team last Saturday at Albemarle Playground, 5-4.

The victory avenged an earlier 1-0 defeat suffered by Waltham at the hands of the same Newton squad. The third and final game of the series will be played at Albemarle this Saturday evening at 8 p.m.

The Newton squad seemed a bit disorganized at first, falling behind 3-0 by the fourth inning, then came back, pulling to within one run, 3-2.

Tallies by the Waltham squad in the fifth and sixth frames upped their lead to 5-2. A last inning two run surge by Newton fell just short, stranding two base runners.

Newton also found itself in the unfortunate position of being without a third baseman. Possibilities mentioned to fill the corner were: Newton Center's shortstop-second baseman Eric DiMartino and Mosca Club catcher Phil Small.

When asked about the possibility of playing third, Small, who has been strictly a catcher for several years, said, "Yeah, I played third about three or four years ago, but I'm not too worried - it should all come back to me pretty quickly."

Small was put in the lineup, but was lifted just before the game started when Newton coaches realized that Mike Smith, a pitcher for Boy's Club, had a bit more recent experience at third than Small. Smith had one assist at third. In the fifth he picked up a low roller hit by Dave McGlothlin and gunned it (Smith is known around the league for his fastball) to Lou Hudson who made a fine pickup.

Newton Runs

Newton picked up two runs in the fourth and seventh innings. Center fielder Dave Kelly of Newton Center led off the fourth with a single to right. Pitcher Steve Rand, also of the Newton Center club, walked. A bunt by Greg Pappas of Boys Club advanced Rand and Kelly to second and third.

Both scored when Bob Donahue, of Auburndale Sports Shop, belted a single to right. Donahue stole second but died there when the next Newton batters struck out and grounded out.

Newton's rally in the last inning started when Phil Mosca singled to center. He was followed by a strikeout and then three consecutive walks issued to Bruce Jennings, Don Levine, and Dave Prince by Dave Zierhoffer which scored Newton's third run. Pinch hitter Phil Small lifted a sacrifice fly to right, scoring Jennings with Newton's fourth run and advancing the tying run (in the person of Don Levine) to third base.

Newton's drive ended when pitcher Cappadonna struck out.

Waltham came up with what would be the winning run in the top of the sixth. Cappadonna walked center fielder Tom Hopkins who stole second and move to third on an infield single by Lester MacKenzie. On the next play MacKenzie intentionally got himself caught in a rundown between first and second.

Just as he was about to be tagged out, Hopkins took off for home. Newton infielders abandoned their hunt for MacKenzie (and the third out) and threw home - late.

Hopkins scored and MacKenzie returned to first. Lester was, however, thrown out by Dave Prince attempting to steal second on the next play.

Newton starter Tom Carey of Auburndale Sports Shop worked three and one third innings and yielded four hits, three walks, and three earned runs. He struck out three. Steve Rand came on to finish the fourth in which Waltham had scored twice and was threatening to score again. Rand forced the next hitter to ground out. Steve let in one unearned run in the fifth. Peter Cappadona pitched the last two innings and was responsible for one earned run in the sixth.

Don Mason, Waltham's starting pitcher went five innings while Dave Zierhoffer came on to pitch the sixth and seventh inning. He was the winning pitcher, while Cappadonna was credited with the loss for Newton.

Waltham — MacKenzie 3-1; McGlothlin 2-1; O'Toole 1-1; Russo 4-0; MacLure 3-0; Rooney 2-2; Sergi 1-0; Lorette 3-0; Riordan 1-0; MacPherson 1-0; Hart 2-0; Hopkins 0-0; Mason 2-2; Olivo 1-0. Total 26-7.

Newton — DiMartino 4-1; Jennings 1-0; Smith 3-0; Levine 0-0; Gentile 2-0; Prince 1-0; Kelly 2-1; Bellivue 1-0; Small 0-0; Carey 1-1; Rand 0-0; Cappadonna 1-0; Pappas 0-0; Hudson 1-0; Donahue 2-1; D'Angelo 2-0; Mosca 1-1. Total 21-5.

On Wednesday, July 20, there will be programs at five locations from 10 a.m. to noon. There will be enamelling at Emerson, Macrame at Lincoln-Eliot, Chinese Yarn Winding at Carr and Acting for Kids at River Street. Thursday, July 21, there will be Acting for Kids at the Angier School Playground in Waban, and Art for Kids at Newton Centre. Time for both is from 10 a.m. to noon.

Playground Day Trips

During the past week, 25 children from the Franklin Playground and another 50 from Burr Park, Newton Centre, Newton Highlands and Thompsonville Playgrounds spent a day at the Wal-lex recreation area, where they played miniature golf, bowled and tried their hand at roller skating. The various groups were accompanied by leaders, Patty Gardner, Steve Park, Bob Worden, Mike Butts, Maureen Fitzpatrick, Sheila Daly and Julia Kahn. A group of 30 children from Auburndale spent the day recently at the Fairway Sports Center where they bowled, played miniature golf, used the driving range and baseball pitching machine. Leaders accompanying the group were Diane Astone and Chub Ryan.

Additional Tennis Courts

Six additional lighted courses are now available at Newton South High School. There are now a dozen illuminated courts at South High. During daylight hours the four courts at Burr and the five at Newton Centre are included in those Newton residents with tennis permits may reserve in advance.

Swimming Season On

The two swimming areas operated by the Newton Recreation Department, the Gath Pool at the Albermarle Playground and Crystal Lake in Newton Highlands report good attendance this season. Swimming lessons are near capacity and the sailing lessons at Crystal Lake are proving very popular.

Folk Concert

Arts in the Parks will present Peter Marston, a member of Starboard List, in a Folk Concert at the Jackson Homestead, Tuesday, July 19th at 7:15 p.m. The program will include sea shanties and traditional New England favorites. In case of rain, the concert will move to the Aquinas Junior College on Jackson Road, behind the Homestead. For further information, call the Newton Recreation Department, 969-3171.

Square Dancing

Steve Park and the Garden City Squares will lead a square dance at the Hamilton School Playground in Newton Lower Falls, Thursday, July 21st, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Summer Playground Tennis

Instructors, Steve Freeman and Ellen Hearst and Leslie Fitzgerald of the Newton Recreation Department, are offering a schedule of tennis lessons at different playground throughout the City Monday thru Friday. Instruction will be available on the following schedule: Mondays - Newton Highlands 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.; Newton Upper Falls 10:45 a.m. to noon and Newton Centre 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesdays - Hamilton School 9 a.m. to noon and Burr Park, 1 to 4 p.m. Wednesdays - Warren Jr. High 9 a.m. to noon and Cabot Park, 1 to 4 p.m. Thursdays - Memorial School 9 a.m. to noon and Burr Park 1 to 4 p.m. Fridays - Angier School 9 a.m. to noon and Auburndale Playground 1 to 4 p.m.

Mini-Bike Track Closed

The Mini-bike tracks operated by the Newton Recreation Department will be closed during July and August, but will reopen on Saturday, September 10th. No Mini-bikes may be operated at the Recreation Department facility during this period.

Hula-Hoop and Frisbee Championships

The Newton Recreation Department in conjunction with the Wham-o Mfg. Company announces the Annual Hula-Hoop and Frisbee City Championship, to be held on Tuesday, July 19th. The Hula Hoop contest will take place at 10 a.m. on the Newton Centre Playground, while the Frisbee Championship will take place at 1:30 p.m. at Albermarle Playground. The participants will be youngsters who have won their respective hula hoop and frisbee championships on their particular playgrounds. The divisions are boys and girls, eleven years old and under and boys and girls, twelve through fifteen.

Ecology Day

Monday, July 18th has been proclaimed "Ecology Day" by Mayor Mann. The Newton Recreation Department will participate in this event by involving the youngsters on its playgrounds in the cleaning up of the playgrounds and surrounding areas. McDonald's of Newton, will supply plastic bags, hats and "Be Our Guest" cards for participants.

Swim Team

Newton Recreation Department's Swim Team nabs first win over Sherborn 180-178. This, the second meet of the 1977 season was possibly the most exciting meet in four years. Coach Tim Cotter and Asst. Coach Bob Carleo were very pleased with the performance of the team. In fact, Coach Cotter was more excited than I've ever seen him. The team was enthusiastic and cheering all the time. There was more life in the Newton Swim Team than there has been in quite a while.

They really pulled together and got the job done. It was not done by one person, but by the total group. There was good sportsmanship on both sides, which led to a good meet. First places taken by Newton were: Butterfly - Drew Lane, Scott Hayden, Patty Higgins, Paul Higgins. Freestyle - Carol Higgins, Drew Lane, Sam Lobar, Joanne Fay, Paul Higgins. Breaststroke - Rona Applebaum, Paul Boudreau, Marianne Fay, Scott Hayden, Joanne Fay, Jeff Kennedy. Backstroke - Chris Eschelman, Sam Lobar, Davis Schiller, Joanne Bonazoli. Home swim meets are held on Tuesday and Thursday at Gath Pool, check with the Recreation Department for closing times and home meet schedule.

International League Standings

Copp Division - Boys Club 8-1; Barnstormers 6-3; Carson Post A.L. 6-3; Sacred Heart 5-4; Totem Pole Braves 3-6; Highlanders 3-7; Upper Falls Lions 0-10. Murphy Division - Newton Sports Center 8-1; Oak Hill Cubs 5-2; Our Lady's 5-4; Post 440 A.L. 4-4; St. Bernard's 3-5; Elks Red Sox 1-7.

Invaluable additions to Science Library

The Dragons of Eden, by Carl Sagan.
(Random House, $8.95)
Behind the Mirror, by Konrad Lorenz.
(Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, $10)
The Life Science, by P.B. and J.S. Medawar.
(Harper, Row, $8.95)

These books are invaluable additions to any general library on science.

Sagan is known primarily as an astronomer but was trained in biology, and his approach to astronomy leans largely to the idea of life on other worlds. "The Dragons of Eden" is a book-length essay on the development of the brain which has enabled man to outstrip all other animals — and what the future holds for him.

Sagan takes as his starting point the theory that each major evolutionary development has been accompanied by a new layer of brain function, while retaining earlier brain layers which control more primitive needs or become adapted to new uses.

"The Dragons of Eden" is perhaps the best written of his popularizations of science — provocative and deserving to be widely read.

Konrad Lorenz approaches much the same problem — the development of man's consciousness — from a diifferent direction. In "Behind the Mirror" he examines the mechanics of how unicellular sensory systems must have become elaborated and interconnected in order to provide the systems of storage and retrieval which enable man to be conscious of self and to manipulate his environment. It's not easy reading — Lorenz has abandoned the conversational style of "King Solomon's Ring" and "Man Meets Dog" in favor of unremitting scientific jargon. If you can last the pace, this may be even more rewarding a book than Sagan's.

"The Life Science," by Nobel prizewinner Sir Peter and Lady Medawar, is subtitled "Current Ideas of Biology." It is a series of brief essays on various aspects of biology in roughly three sections: from genetics through eugenics to demography; from embryology through molecular biology to immunology (Sir Peter's current field) and cancer; and from the senses through behavior to old age.

The Medawars make layman's sense of a complicated subject with some beautiful writing.

They gently dismiss much of the current theory of human aggression (including Lorenz's) with the comment: "Before interpreting human warfare and internecine aggression as a manifestation of territoriality, as it has been described in birds and other animals, it should be recognized that much of the aggression and protective behavior of animals in defendinng their territories is bluff."

The Dark Lady, by Louis Auchincloss.
(Houghton, Mifflin, $8.95)

Louis Auchincloss, the most successful novelist of the American upper classes since Edith Wharton, has created a femme fatale in the 27th volume of his literary apotheosis of WASPish society.

She is a strangely unsympathetic actress named Elesina who acquires a great fortune, power and a Congressional seat through a third marriage to a rich Jewish attorney who has amassed one of the nation's great private art collections. Elesina's success is engineered by the frustrated spinster editor of a fashion magazine.

Although derived from life — Clare Boothe Luce, Judge Irwin Untermeyer and Margaret Case are called to mind tangentially — the novel does not convince, even though it does on occasion amuse.

There is sterility here at odds with the vitality of some of Auchincloss' finest works, such as "The Rector of Justin" and "Portrait in Brownstone." Elesina moves through the book, not as The Dark Lady of the Sonnets, but as the Queen of Contradictions. The author tries to make her mysterious but only succeeds in making her boring.

The strain of anti-Semitism that laces "The Dark Lady" is handled both sensitively and realistically. The attitude of Elesina's half-Jewish stepson (who also is her lover) toward his heritage is particularly interesting and makes him the most credible character in the book.

Frederick M. Winship (UPI)

John F. Kennedy and the Second Reconstruction, by Carl M. Brauer.
(Columbia, $14.95)

The reconstruction of the title refers to Kennedy's role in the black struggle for civil rights. Perhaps the motives were pragmatic and self-serving, but also the desire to help a disenfranchised minority was real and felt by Kennedy and his political managers.

John Kennedy was concerned about the plight of black Americans and convinced the time had come for action. On the realistic side, he felt that the country's racial attitudes were hurting its image abroad and weakening his ability to pursue foreign policy, according to the author, a history professor.

But basically, the author contends, racial discrimination made no sense to Kennedy who was, after all, a Boston Irishman whose parents, despite their riches, experienced their share of prejudice in the city of the Cabots and the Lodges.

Perhaps the case is overstated, but his thesis is convincing. "Kennedy was significant not only for what he did, but for what he started. His presidency marked a profound change from the inertia that had generally characterized the past... Operating within the bounds of a democratic political system, Kennedy both encouraged and responded to black aspirations and led the nation into its Second Reconstruction."

Kennedy's interest in black people was marked. His administration coincided and — the author contends — encouraged hopes among blacks that have not been dimmed to this day.

Ironically, President Kennedy did not receive high marks from black leaders, who pushed for further reform, although John Kennedy knew his actions could cost him politically.

In these revisionist times, it is reassuring to read that successful politicians sometimes can have ideals and act on them.

Public Trust, Private Lust, by Marion Clark and Rudi Maxa. (Morrow, $8.95) Two investigative reporters for the Washington Post's magazine tell of "sex, power and corruption on Capital Hill." The pair won prizes for their coverage of the unseating of Rep. Wayne Hayes in the Elizabeth Ray affair, which takes up the bulk of this book. Other indiscretions by Congressmen are touched on, including the surprising number who were influenced by the wheeling and dealing of the Korean lobby. The book also presents an honest look at investigative reporting, a mixture of tedium and excitement, sleaziness and high mindedness.

Treasure, by Robert Daley. (Random House, $10) Sunken treasure holds a sure-fire lure for both readers and treasure hunters. This book is about one of the more fanatical searchers for gold, Mel Fisher. For a dozen years he has been diving for gold that went down with a Spanish galleon that was sunk off the Florida keys 350 years ago. Nothing has stopped his quest, not even the death of his wife and his daughter-in-law. Daley, a polished writer, makes the intricacies of treasurehunting a marvelous adventure.

BOSTON (UPI) — About a block from the Massachusetts State House stands a small, inconspicious, reddish brown brick building.

But a century ago, the 17-room house buzzed with activity as a brothel, rooming house or hotel — perhaps even at one point as an abortion clinic.

It was "built to be a select hotel — as, shall we say, a business venture...very likely because of the State House next door," said architect Frederick "Tad" Stahl, current owner and occupant.

"I'm sure it was never intended to be a house. So, if it wasn't supposed to be a home, what kind of transient accomodation was it intended to be?" asked Stahl, who has gone through city records and studied the physical structure of the house built in 1875.

Small hotels or boarding rooms were usually converted homes and "almost never contracted during that era," he said.

"It would be nice to think it was a special interest hotel designed to serve as a place for special liaisons for legislators," he said, leaving it open to speculation, as he does the theory it was used in the early 1900s as an abortion clinic.

"This could have been a private abortion mill," said Stahl, who found doctor's examining tables with stirrups and sinks in several rooms on lower floors.

The architecture of the structure — which sits behind two massive sandstone columns, topped by three temple pylons, is foreign to other buildings on Beacon Hill and the rest of the city.

It is the only example of French-Second Imperial Egyptian Revival architecture in the U.S., he said.

Entering the six-story home where Stahl lives with this wife Jane and their three children, the peculiar architecture shocks the eye even more.

A third of the building houses a gigantic winding staircase that ends with a cupola from which one can admire Boston's downtown skyline.

Most rooms apparently were bedrooms with either a complete bathroom and wardrobe or a wash basin and closet. Each of the 17 rooms has a fireplace.

When Tad and Jane first bought the building 14 years ago, it had become a flop house. "Things were out of control. People hadn't paid their rent in months. It took us six months to find the tenants.

"We finally located the last guy when we found him sitting on the front steps the morning after we changed the locks on the door."

Then it took another six months just to clean out the debris. "We hauled out hundreds of mattresses piled up to the ceiling in the basement," he said.

Stahl said architect William Washburn was contracted by wealthy businessman Charles Robert to design the house in the 1870s, "but members of his (Robert's) family never lived in it. It was to be rental property — a boarding house, brothel or rooming house."

In 1918, Stahl said the house was purchased by a Dr. and Mrs. Towle, the first owners to be listed as occupants. In the late 1940s or early 1950s, the doctor died. His widow eventually moved into a basement apartment and began renting out rooms.

Before she died in 1962, the condition of the house deteriorated. Occupants registered with the city through the years range from doctors who used rooms for offices to people with no occupations.

Some land speculators bought the property after her death in hopes of converting it into apartments, but probably realizing the enormous work and money required, decided to get rid of it.

The Stahls happened to walk by as they were tacking up the for sale sign.

Ripping out walls and plumbing, the Stahls discovered in the front entryway a beautiful mosaic floor ordered from England.

He found two fireplaces directly in front of one another in a ground floor sitting room which indicates the rear fireplace was part of a small back room, probably used as a drying area as one came in from a snow or rain storm.

"We threw out most of the furniture, keeping only what was useable — and we're real flexible on what is useable," he said laughing. Installing a modern heating system, they moved in a year later.

Cold Lake Is Bad Swimming Scene

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Swimming at high noon can cause sunburn. Jumping into a cold lake can lead to even more serious problems, says the waterfront director at Indiana University's Camp Riley.

Director Mark Newhouse suggests swimmers stay out of the water if it is 65 degrees Fahrenheit or below.

"The shock of entering the water may cause cramps," he said.

Newhouse, a graduate student in physical education, said swimming in the rain is all right, but not during thunderstorms. He said swimmers should get out at the first flash of lightning or sound of thunder.

Other dangers:

"You should know if the lake bottom is muddy, weedy or sandy. You should know where the rocks and pits are. If the water is murky with film on it, and there are moss and weeds, I wouldn't swim in it.

"In the early spring, lakes may be treated for weeds, and swimmers should be aware of which chemicals were used, and when it is safe for bathers."

NYLON STOCKINGS

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — In 1940, when nylon stockings were introduced to the public, women waited hours for hosiery departments to open and near riots occurred in many parts of the country, reports L'eggs Products, a major supplier.

Read directions before starting

Rule number one for electric processor owners:

Read the manufacturer's directions and keep them nearby until you follow them automatically.

Canister-type appliances look almost identical but some operate differently. For example, you can damage the motor of a GE by trying to make heavy doughs, although the American, Cuisinart and Farberware will handle such recipes.

Don't panic if the steel blade starts to ride upwards with a dough ball. It happens occasionally. When it does, turn off the motor, unplug the machine if the manufacturer recommends that, remove the dough ball from the top with your fingers and lift the blade assembly free. Finish the recipe by hand.

Pie crust dough should be somewhat crumbly when removed. Overprocessing toughens it. The crust rolls better if the dough is refrigerated for 30 minutes after processing.

Don't panic if the motor stalls or jams. Processing too large a load can cause it. So can prolonged use, especially for heavy loads. Follow the manufacturer's directions for dealing with the problem.

Most say to turn off the motor, unplug the processor and allow it to rest for a prescribed time. Some motors turn on again automatically. At least one has a reactivating button.

Slicing and shredded evenly almost invariably requires a tightly filled feed tube. If food is cut irregularly, small pieces overcook by the time larger pieces are done.

Food should be sliced in even lengths to prevent tall pieces from toppling and cutting unevenly.

Food too long or large for the feed tube must be cut to fit. Most tubes are slightly larger at the bottom than the top and are easier to load if held with the tube horizontal. Food wedged in from the bottom remains in place when set upright.

A last slice usually remains atop a slicing or shredding disc. Before removing it, unplug the unit if that is what the manufacturer recommends.

Some suggest removing the bowl with chopping and-or mixing blade in place to keep semi-liquid mixtures from overflowing onto the central shaft. Others do not.

You can cut yourself badly if you try to stop moving parts by hand or accidentally touch a starter switch while removing blades or discs from a plugged-in machine.

In some units the switch is shielded to prevent accidental or deliberate operation while the lid is off. Any household with small children or daring teen-agers would be wise to choose this type.

Continuous action is fine for pureeing foods. But anything to be processed in small to large pieces is best done with a rapid on-off motion and frequent pauses to see how fine the mixture is. Some units do this automatically, others manually.

Watery food tends to cling to the side of the bowl. For even processing, scrape it down with a plastic or rubber spatula. Avoid metal utensils; they can scratch the bowl and reduce visibility.

To avoid skinned knuckles, clean the central shaft, feed tube and bowl with a bottle brush immediately after use. Dried-on food is hard to remove.

Most units we tested will chop even a single clove of peeled garlic. After chopping garlic, onions or other smelly foods, soak the bowl briefly with baking soda dissolved in water to remove the odor, and let air dry.

Chopping and mincing works better if you start with a dry bowl.

Cheeses except for parmesan and romano process better at refrigerator temperature. So do most other foods. Always follow the manufacturer's directions for precutting foods and the load-size to be processed with steel blades.

Hard raw vegetables and fruits slice thinner if allowed to drop through the feed tube without pushing. But the pusher always should be in place to prevent backsplash. The heavier the pressure in pushing food through, the thicker the slices.

New England Horizons

HOLDERNESS, N.H. (UPI) — Children lean over a pond, scooping insects out of the mud with household strainers. They are learning about the small end of the food chain.

They visit a saw mill and see lumberjacks in the woods thinning out trees. They are learning about a renewable resource.

At a blacksmith shop they see the smith making nails and andirons. They are learning about a nonrenewable resource.

They stand on a platform above a fenced-in wildlife area housing deer or bears, or visit an old inn where the peculiarities of smaller animals can be studied. They learn it is bad for wild animals to be kept as pets.

The scene is the Squam Lakes Science Center — 200 acres of farm, forest, pond and stream land complete with its own 400-foot "mountain," where 12,000 New Hampshire students and another 12,000 tourists come each year to learn about their environment.

"Our major emphasis is to provide environmental information for New Hampshire. We run a program for schools 10 months of the year and have a little lighter program for tourists for two months in the summer," said Robert Nichols, director of the center. The lighter program, at $1.75 for adults and $1.25 for children four and over, helps support the facility the rest of the year.

The center started 11 years ago when summer residents of the Squam Lakes wanted to provide something cultural for the area. They donated the land and the buildings on it, including an old inn now used for teaching space and housing small animals, for the creation of the center.

The land is divided into three areas: man and his environment, natural ecological systems, and wildlife.

Nichols said 32 acres is used as an outdoor museum to show past, present and future uses of the environment. There are oxen, a team of lumberjacks, a steam-powered saw mill, a blacksmith shop, and this year a solar exhibit.

"We're working with Plymouth State College on wind power," he said.

The pond, forest, fields and stream provide "most of the common ecosystems in New Hampshire." Classes which come are sent pre-trip and follow-up material to help them make the most of their day in the wild.

The Fish and Game Department supplies the animals at the center, using it as a refuge for injured or abandoned animals. Someone's pet bobcat — declawed and defanged — got a little smelly and was sent here.

Hikers in Lincoln found an abandoned three-month-old bear and sent it along June 1. A fawn a few days old was given shelter recently after thoughtless persons separated it from its mother while trying to take pictures of it. Three little foxes were picked up on a nearby golf course. With human scent on them their mother would have nothing to do with them, so they are center inmates.

"We've got a beaver. He's a great beaver. He's a year old and the kids can pick him up," Nichols said. "It's so easy teaching with animals. The kids ask the questions, you don't."

At least half the teaching is out-of-doors. The children dig aquatic insects out of the mud to study ... then put them back. "It's mainly creatures they've never seen before. We want to show them part of the whole food chain is small things as well as large," Nichols said.

Schools pay 25 per cent of the cost of putting on a given program and the rest comes mainly from summer admissions. There is a fund drive each year, and a variety of memberships are sold. There are special programs for members in the summer, such as bird banding, wild flower identification and nature crafts.

Future naturalists working as interns help out the five-member staff, whose duties range from administration and teaching to mucking out the animal pens.

Every February the staff hits the road, going directly to schools for auditorium talks, or taking small groups out on snowshoes to teach them about their immediate environment.

Every semester there are waiting lists of classes which want to come but can't. "We can't expand the school program any more without more staff, which means more money," Nichols said.

In the summer there are ecological shows every day, plus a specialty subject a day, such as creepy crawlers, sounds in nature, things to thank a swamp for, birds of prey, the role of the predator, and adaptation, nature's key to survival.

The Science Center is on Rte. 3, one block from downtown Holderness.

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Maine environmental authorities have discovered an inexpensive way to keep the state's waters clean and involve citizens who want to protect its lakes and ponds: Appoint them water quality monitors.

"Anytime you can get people to work hard for no pay, it's bound to be a savings," said Matthew Scott, chief biologist in the Department of Environmental Protection's lake programs division.

Scott oversees the work of 150 volunteer water quality monitors who once or twice a month inspect about 175 lakes and ponds in Maine.

People from every walk of life — with the common interest of protecting water resources — have volunteered their time to the monitor program, Scott said.

But there is room for more.

About 400 of the estimated 3,000 lakes and ponds in Maine have seen "significant growth," he said. And, with people come the problems of pollution.

After a slow start a few years ago, the program is growing quickly, Scott said. The monitoring eventually could include up to 400 persons — each assigned responsibility for one or two specific bodies of water

"With only a staff of seven, it's impossible for my office to get out and check the thousands of lakes and ponds in Maine," Scott said. "But I couldn't justify expanding the size of the staff at this time With the volunteer program we're keeping up with the work."

One of the volunteers, Ed Mayer of Rome, said the actual tests which he takes are easy.

"It's a lot like sledding from the top of a hill," Mayer said. "The hard part is getting there. Once I get all the gear on the lake, it takes maybe five minutes to do."

Mayer said the tests, "which any fool can do," involve checking air temperature and cloud cover, taking water samples from different depths, checking the water temperature and its clarity and noting the dissolved oxygen in the water at a few spots on the lake or pond.

"I take about nine readings at each pond from May to mid-September," the retired geologist said, "and now I'm teaching a couple of teen-agers to do it at Messalonskee Lake. It's kind of far for me to drive there."

Mayer said he is also responsible for Great Pond and Long Pond near Belgrade in Kennebec County.

Scott said the volunteers provide their time and boats or canoes and some even supply part of the testing equipment. But the materials can cost hundreds of dollars and most monitors use what the state gives them.

Dr. Earl Pulsifer, a Damariscotta dentist, was credited by Scott for being instrumental in the program.

Pulsifer said he first got the idea for a volunteer program about 1971.

"I knew the professionals (with the state) couldn't handle the job alone, especially at a cost of $600 to $6,000 per lake," he said.

He said Maine has a "vast pool of people to do the nitty-gritty, mechanical" work on the lakes, leaving the analysis to hired biologists.

"The program petered out about 1975, then the state realized it needed someone to coordinate and keep in touch with the volunteers," Pulsifer said. "People are enthusiastic now. They thought before their work wasn't being followed through" by DEP.

Last year DEP hired Jeffrey McNelly, a wildlife biologist, to keep the monitors together. Scott said McNelly was responsible for the program's rejuvenation.

Scott likened the program's use of lay people to the U.S. Geological Survey and the National Weather Service.

'There's a limit to what volunteers can do, but neither the survey nor the weather service could function as well as they do without the amateurs. We couldn't either," Scott said.

Career Women Have Independence Factor

NEW YORK, N.Y. (UPI) — An industrial psychologist contends that there is only one personality factor that separates career women from their male counterparts — and in this factor women are generally superior.

Arthur A. Witkin, Ph.D., chief psychologist for the Personnel Sciences Center, identifies this factor as independence.

"This includes the ability to make a decision without a committee to support it, an emotional detachment that enables the person to see himself and his surroundings objectively, assertiveness and the ability to react to criticism without undue sensitivity," he says.

Goldberg forms new PR firm here

Emanuel Goldberg, president of Arthur Monks Associates Inc. for the past eight years, has announced formation of his own firm, Manny Goldberg Public Relations Company, effective Aug. 1.

Emanuel Goldberg

The company, located in Newton, will offer general public relations counsel and services throughout New England, with specialties in financial and corporate; education, health care, social welfare, religious trade association and fundraising; public affairs and governmental, and institutional advertising.

Prior to joining Monks in 1969, Goldberg, a resident of Newton, served five years as associate director of university planning and development and as a dean at Brandeis University. From 1957-64, he was director of publicity of Boston University, and from 1952-57, he served as assistant press secretary to former Governor Christian A. Herter.

A lecturer at the Boston University School of Public Communication, Goldberg has been a Washington correspondent for Newsweek, public affairs columnist for two newspapers, editorial writer, book reviewer, and author of professional articles. He served as a member of the Mass. Commission Against Discrimination from 1956-59 and was chairman of the City of Boston's Committee for Civic Unity, under former Mayor Collins.

A graduate of Boston University in journalism, Goldberg also holds a master of arts degree in journalism and political science from the University of Wisconsin and studied for two years in the government department of the Harvard University Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. He is an accredited member of the Public Relations Society of America and the National Invester Relations Institute; and, in 1973, he chaired a commission to evaluate the undergraduate curriculum in public relations at Boston University. He has also lectured at the University of Wisconsin, Simmons, Brandeis, Boston College and other institutions. During World War II, Goldberg was an antiaircraft captain who was awarded the Bronze Star and later became chief press censor for the China Theatre and business manager and last officer—in-charge of the China edition of the Stars & Stripes, army newspaper.

Goldberg's professional and civic affiliations include: vice president and director, Christian A. Herter Center, Boston; trustee for six years of the Institute of Contemporary Art; director of Ford Hall Forum and the Citizens Scholarship Foundation of America (Dollars for Scholars); past director of the New England region of the American College Public Relations Association; Kappa Tau Alpha; Sigma Delta Chi; New England Board of the Anti-Defamation League; National Alumni Council of Boston University and former Vice President of the Boston University College of Business Administration Alumni Association. He is also a member of the Harvard Club of Boston and the Allen Harbor Yacht Club, Harwichport.

Sales representative

Basic Marketing Services, Newton, paper and plastics brokerage firm, announces the appointment of Stanley Klein as sales representative.

Klein, a graduate of Babson College, will concentrate his efforts in the Connecticut, Western Massachusetts, and Southern Rhode Island marketing areas. He lives in Needham.

The need for more parental responsibility in the public s hools was discussed by the Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA) delegation to the 115th national convention of 2 million members of the National Education Association (NEA) earlier this month. Pictured are (from left): State Sen. Walter J. Bovernini of Lynn, recipient of the NEA Friend of Education award; Joan B. Warner, Newton Teacher's Association (NTA) member; Warren Priest, NTA grievance committee chairman; Rosetta M. Johnson, NTA director; Margartet P. Flaherty, NTA member; and Myra Trachtenberg, NTA member.

Tennis buff, 80, scorns doubles

ATLANTA (UPI) — Tennis buff Kenny Hunt has no time for doubles.

"It's dull — like playing bridge with your wife," said Hunt who took up the game again 10 years ago after a 22-year lapse.

A baseline player who likes clay courts, Hunt goes to Atlanta's Bitsy Grant Tennis Center about four times a week and feels "distressingly healthy."

The only thing that distinguishes him from the average tennis fiend is his age. At 80, he is a member of the growing "Super-Seniors" network.

Time was when most retirees, anxious not to overdo it, stuck to their motorized golf carts and air-conditioned clubhouses.

But the tennis craze, coupled with glowing medical studies which show older players are in exceptionally good health, has brought a whole new generation out.

The city-run Bitsy Grant center, named for the world clay court champion of 1935 — is regarded as a hub of "Super-Seniors" tennis in the South, thanks in part to the continued presence of Bitsy, now 66 and current over-65 national clay court champion.

"Bitsy's small, but he just touches the ball and makes a point," said rival Hugh Manning, 62. After playing several sets a day and giving lessons, Bitsy relaxes on the center's balcony, smokes cigarettes and scouts the competition.

And the competition among the 40 or so "Super-Seniors" who play regular tennis at the center, with time off for checkers, is tough.

Take 68-year-old legendary former Georgia Tech football coach Bobby Dodd, called "coach" by his friends.

"He's a junk-shot player — lots of two-handed shovel shots and a good tactical player," said Manning. Dodd is a top-ranked seniors' doubles player in the South.

Or, Larry Schippey, 64, also a doubles player who gave up touring the circuit a few years ago.

"It's not overpowering tennis that we old birds play — it's smart tennis," said Schippey, who strings rackets when he's not on the court.

Almost all the seniors, including tennis queen Chris Evert's uncle Charles, a 57-year-old Columbus, Ga., lawyer who has been ranked in seniors tennis for the last 12 years, say they feel fine.

Evert, who handles his famous niece's legal affairs, plays every day, watches his weight, doesn't smoke and does an hour of stretching exercises a day.

"I find as you grow older you have to get into a series of counter exercises," he said. Despite his regime, Uncle Evert acknowledges he doesn't have a prayer playing Chris. "She topples me ... she is so crisp and accurate."

While their age doesn't keep the oldsters off the court, it is not an advantage. Most seniors prefer doubles played on the slower, softer clay courts.

"They get a bunch of sore knees and elbows — but that's part of the game — to see how long you can stand it," said Manning.

The Bitsy Grant crew was also distressed when comrade A. L. "Red" Enloe dropped dead on the court while playing a 70s match in Florida last winter. They erected a plaque in his honor.

L. Roe Campbell, 77, of Knoxville, Tenn., the father of the "Super-Seniors," has used his infirmities to advantage.

Sidelined by a wrist injury three years ago, Campbell ordered his surgeon to lock his wrist bones in place, giving him a perfect stiff-wrist tennis grip.

Campbell, now secretary-treasurer, helped found the association in 1963. In the past decade, membership has jumped from about 500 to 1,500.

This year the seniors added a new category for tournaments — the over-80s class.

Campbell, who describes tennis oldsters as "young at heart," first worked with the United States Lawn Tennis Association back in the 1960s to organize national championships.

Seniors now have national and sectional tournaments on grass, clay and hard courts around the country for players between the ages of 50 and 85.

The U.S. Tennis Association recently limited seniors 65 and over to one singles and one doubles match a day in national tournaments.

New Flying-Boat Sightseeing Service

NEW YORK (UPI) — A flying-boat sightseeing service in Ireland was inaugurated on June 25 by Aer Arann.

The service is operated by Actress Maureen O'Hara and her husband, Charles Blair, who is captain of the seaplane, "Southern Cross."

The 42-seat craft will fly one-day trips from Killaloe on the Shannon River to Inishmore on the Aran Islands; back to the Irish mainland village of Cong for lunch at Ashford Castle; and return to Killaloe. The tour costs $60 per person for the day's outing, including lunch and all sightseeing.

Full details available from Department ATL, Irish Tourist Board, Box 1200, Long Island City, New York 11101.

Free Trees

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Conservation Commission's Forestry Division has furnished about 80,000 trees to youngsters in the fourth grades in many municipalities for planting in municipal projects.

Silencer-equipped guns for contract killers

HOUSTON (UPI) — Federal firearms agents raided a mini-warehouse stall recently seizing a cache of illegal weaponry that included four new .22 caliber automatic rifles that had been sawed off and equipped with silencers.

The raid was one more example, authorities said, of a growing cottage industry in the manufacture of the firearm silencing device, one of the major tools of the killing trade.

The agents arrested Dene R. Patt, 31, of Pasadena, Tex., at the scene. Patt, an electrician and welder with no record, was accused of cutting the rifles, making the silencers and selling the finished product to an undercover man.

Awaiting prosecution on multiple counts threatening dozens of years in prison and thousands of dollars in fines, Patt's alleged crime represents a trend that alarms agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

"There's been a substantial increase in this type of activity," said W.M. "Rocky" Rothgeb, agent in charge of ATF's Houston field office.

Rothgeb said seizures of illegal firearm devices nearly doubled nationally from 1,364 in last quarter of 1975 to 2,501 in the same period in 1976. Sawed off shotguns accounted for the majority of the forbidden weaponry, but silencers made up a hefty 10 to 20 per cent of the total, he said.

Much illegal modification of weapons can be accomplished in basement, backyard or miniwarehouse shops. The quality can be quite good, as in the Patt seizure.

"It's amazing," Rothgeb said. "In test firing, after shooting it a few times, it is pretty damned silent. After the first one or two shots, it just went pffsst pffsst."

A silencer is a relatively simple device, easily manufactured by someone with a little machine tool experience and an ability to read a manual, Rothgeb said.

"Usually there's a series of baffling in a tube they're going to use as an extension of the pistol or rifle or whatever they intend to silence. There will be a series of sound absorbers. It works on an accoustical principle.

"It has to be an automatic pistol or rifle so there's no release of sound except at the barrel. The chamber of a revolver releases noise.," Rothgeb said.

In the Patt case, tubing had been cut and machined to fit the end of the particular sawed off .22-caliber automatic rifle, rubber rings had been arranged inside to act as baffling and a clamp was attached.

Rothgeb said it is unnecessary and unaccoustical to line the bore with metal, that the only real requirement is that the silencer bore line up with the trajectory of the bullet leaving the muzzle.

"He had the manual that breaks it right down, tells you how to do it," Rothgeb said.

The pamphlet was found among a collection of books, many of which are available through ads in gun magazines, telling exactly how to make silencers, bombs and other illegal weapons.

"One book was 'Improvised Weapons of the American Underground' and when you looked inside for the publisher it says, 'From the public domain, Desert Publications, Phoenix, Ariz.'

"Another one, from Eureka, Calif., said basically the same thing. It also said, 'This mailing list is not available to federal, state or local law enforcement officials.'"

Rothgeb said there might be innocent uses for silencers.

"I'm sure there's lots of people that just make one or two for themselves. There's sometimes a fascination for this sort of thing. They may not have any motive other than going out and plinking in the dump or shooting squirrels."

But most of the time they are used to kill people quietly, and usually for criminal and not political reasons, Rothgeb said.

"It would be unrealistic to say that they are not a major tool of the underworld. Certainly your contract killers, those that are more sophisticated, use them."

He said underworld hit men, who in a recent spate of killings often have used the silencer-equipped .22-caliber weapon, prefer the small operator as a supplier.

"This (professional killer) may appear on the surface to be something quite different from what he is and he can very easily, by going through a number of people in Houston or Miami or wherever, say, 'Hey, get me a silencer.'"

The word filters down, a contact is made and a basement-modified, silencer-equipped weapon changes hands several times enroute to a killing.

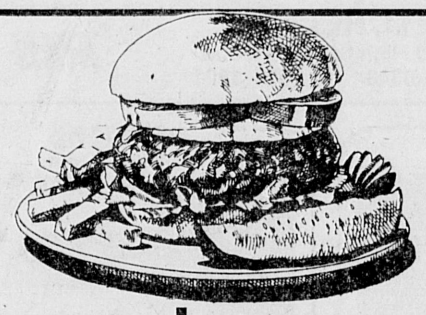

"This is the way these individuals are getting this equipment. There's no way to trace it back to him. There's no tool markings, that stuff. In this case, he just cut the serial numbers off these weapons."

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Figures released by the Multiple Listing Service of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board, show a gain of 30% in total sales of 56 cities and towns, served by the board in 1976. According to local Realtors, mortgage money is available and rates are lower than they have been in some time. MLS is the modern professional one stop-one office way to buy or sell your home. Through this facility listings are exchanged among Realtors, and buyers and sellers benefit from the cooperating efforts of the brokers. As a seller your home will have exposure to hundreds of brokers and yet the convenience of working with their own MLS office. Buyers have the advantage of working with one office and having access to all of the participating Realtors listings. Council I&M of the Boston Board is comprised of 16 towns with some 80 offices involved. In order to further promote MLS, this council meets every second and fourth Tuesday of the month at the Pancake House in Walpole. A business meeting is conducted and then the brokers discuss their listings or a particular type of property they might be looking for. Many sales are effected through these efforts.

COUNTRY LIVING AT ITS BEST!

Handsome, weathered shingle colonial with superb view of distant hills. A circular drive, natural landscaping and old stone walls complement the house and extend to cool walking trails through twelve acres of deep pine woods. Heated pool (all new filtering equipment) and three-car detached garage.

The house has a comfortable feeling of warmth and hospitality. There are ten rooms with an excellent floor plan. First floor: Generous size living and dining rooms and library, all with fireplaces. Slate-floored screened porch. Kitchen, pantry, lavatory and mudroom. Second floor: Five bedrooms and three full baths. Panelled recreation room in basement with shower room.

The stature of the house, wonderful land and fine location within the town all add up to the most enjoyable country living for adults and youngsters alike.

Priced at $150,000

39 TREES & LANDSCAPING

DON'T LOSE YOUR MATURE TREE

The recent unfortunate storm left more than the obvious damage. A great many tree crotches on large and small limbs have been badly split. These conditions can do much more damage in the future unless they are inspected by a Well Trained Arborist. The removal of these badly affected areas is not always the answer. The proper bracing and rodding along with good pruning can leave the tree in close to its original mature shape and balance.

If Red Cross hadn't trained young Lars Alecksen in lifesaving techniques, last summer Adam Gauthier just might have ended up one more drowning statistic. (Adam's alive and well today, thank you, and in the first grade in Manitowoc, Wisconsin.)

We're not asking for medals (Lars is the one who deserves those). But we do need your continued support. Help us. Because the things we do really help. In your own neighborhood. And across America. And the world.

Adam Gauthier counted on us.

Red Cross. The Good Neighbor.

The 1 out of 4 we help could be you.

OBITUARIES

Frank Allan

Dr. Frank N. Allnan, internationally known figure in the field of diabetes died at his home Tuesday (July 12).

A memorial service will be held in Old South Church, Copley Square, Saturday, July 16, at noon.

Frank Allan

Dr. Allan, 78, of 44 Barnstable Rd., West Newton, was born in Proton, Ontario, Canada, and received his medical education at the University of Toronto, Toronto General Hospital and the Mayo Clinic. In 1928, his thesis for the higher MD won the Starr Medal.

Following seven years at the Mayo Clinic, where he became head of the diabetes section, Dr. Allan came to the Lahey Clinic to organize the medical department and its residency and education programs in 1932. He was chairman of the medical department at the time of his retirement in 1965.

While a medical student in Toronto, Dr. Allan was present when insulin was used for the first time in the treatment of diabetes. Later, with Russell M. Wilder, he first reported the syndrome of hyperinsulinism due to islet cell tumor of the pancreas.

His many honors include Alpaha Omega Alpha, Sigma Xi, honorary membership in the Canadian Diabetes Association, the National Academy of Medicine of Argentina, the Academy of Medicine of Washington, D.C.

He was president of the New England Diabetes Association in 1951 and received its Joslin Medal in 1969. In 1952, he received the Banting Medal of the American Diabetes Association of which he was president. He became chairman of the executive committee of the Greater Boston Diabetes Association in 1961 and held membership in many other learned and scientific societies.

Dr. Allan was on the honorary staffs of New England Bapstist Hospital, New England Deaconess Hospital and Boston City Hospital. He was associate clinical professor of medicine at Boston University when he died. more

He published almost 100 papers and several chapters for textbooks. One of his favorite assignments was the editorial board of the New England Journal of Medicine (1952-1965). On retiring from the Lahey Clinic, he became deputy editor. It was then that he was appointed special consultant to the federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA), spending at least three days each week in Washington.

Dr. Allan was on the uaculty of Georgetown University Medical School from 1966 to 1972.

Dr. Allan is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lillian Allan; and their daughter, Mrs. Christie Piper, Washington, D.C.

Girls Soccer has openings

Girls between the ages of 8-12 are invited to join Newton Girls Soccer commencing Sept., 1977.

Soccer is the fastest growing sport in the United States and appeals to children with varying degrees of athletic ability. The children need only enjoy kicking a ball to become actively interested in this most exciting sport.

AGES

We will have an "A" and a "B" League. The "A" League will be for girls ages 11 and 12. The "B" League will be for girls ages 8 and 9. 10 year olds will be divided between the "A" and "B" leagues depending on their birthdates.

Those girls born before January 1, 1968 will be in the "A" League and those girls born after January 1, 1968 will be in the "B" League.

GAMES AND PRACTICES

Games will be held on Saturday and Sunday afternoons at Meadowbrook Jr. High Soccer Field. Each team will play one game and each team will practice one late afternoon or weekday evening per week according to schedules to be arranged starting September 10, 1977. Each team will practice geographically near where the child resides.

IMPORTANT DATES

Pre-season Clinics

The first coaches clinic will be held late in August at a date and time to be announced.

The first clinic for players will be held late in August also at a date and time to be announced.

MOTHERS AND FATHERS

The success of Newton Girls Soccer program depends upon your participation as coaches and referees. Each team will be coached and each game officiated by two adults. Please do not desitate to volunteer if you have never played soccer before and-or do not know the rules and regulations.

EQUIPMENT

Team jerseys, shorts, knee socks and soccer balls will be provided by Newton Girls Soccer. It is advisable to purchase a pair of shin pads to be worn under knee high socks for added protection of each girl. Good supportive sneakers or all purpose athletic shoes may be used, but metal cleats MAY NOT be worn.

REGULAR SEASON commences September 10, 1977 and ends November 12, 1977.

REGISTRATION FEE

The Registration fee will be $20.00 per child ($10.00 for each additional child in a family) to cover costs of equipment, soccer uniforms, referees and special programs. Please write to Newton Girls Soccer, P.O. Box 154, Chestnut Hill, Mass. 02167 or call 244-6619 (Mrs. Albert) for an application form.

We are also in the process of forming an all-girls soccer program for Jr. high school girls. If any jr. high school girl would be interested please call 244-6619 (Mrs. Albert) for a registration card.

Clinics at the jr. high school level will also be held the last week in August at a time and date to be announced. Games will beplayed at Meadowbrook Jr. High Soccer Field on Saturday and Sunday commencing Sept. 10th.

The prime purpose of "Newton Girls Soccer" is to establish an all-girls soccer league which is not the same as "Newton Youth Soccer."

Harry Kerner

Services were to be held at 11 a.m. this morning (Thursday) in Stanetsky-Schlossberg-Solomon Memorial Chapel, Brookline, for Harry Kerner.

Mr. Kerner died Tuesday (July 12) in Florida after a long illness. He was a former resident of Newton.

Jane Fogg's woodcuts on display at Library

"I have loved pictures in black and white since childhood, when I read over and over old volumes of English fairy tales, with illustrations by John D. Batten, and the clear, linear illustrations of an old Book of Knowledge series," explains Jane Fogg of Chestnut Hill.

Her strong, technically proficient woodcuts hang in the exhibit space on the first floor of the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, now through Aug. 16.

Fogg, using a variety of techniques, works with both hard woods and soft woods. The hard, smooth wood which traditionally the Japanese use is more difficult to work with since the cutting is harder. However, Fogg likes the challenges and effects of the different woods.

While at Smith College, Fogg, who is now having her first one-woman show, studied with Leonard Baskin. During her college years her interest in the materials of woodcut — wood, tools, ink and paper — became firmly established.

It is while drawing that Fogg develops themes for the woodcuts. Since the block is a mirror image, a great deal of time, effort and planning must go into developing the design as a drawing. The drawings, however, cannot be too finished since they then must be adapted to the peculiarities of the different woods.

Fogg, who grew up in Weston, graduated from Smith College in 1954, attended Yale-Norfolk Summer Art School and taught at the Toledo Museum of Art. She attended the Brooklyn Museum Art School and was awarded a Fullbright Grant to study painting in Germany. Fogg lectured at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts for two years and for a short time was associated with the Nexus Gallery in Boston. Her work has also been shown at the DeCordova Museum.

Twenty-three woodcuts by Jane Fogg will be on view now through mid-August. Main Library hours are Monday through Friday 9-9.

Spingold stage offers two plays

"Sweet Adeline," now playing at Brandeis' Spingold Theater, is a professional revival of the Jerome Kern-Dscar Hammerstein musical, with Broadway star Susan Watson playing Adeline.

"Sweet Adeline" will play through July 17.

"Too True To Be Food," starring Jean Marsh of TV's "Upstairs, Downstairs," is George Bernard Shaw's comedy that pokes fun at the British class system. It opens July 19 for a limited engagement.

Shows play Tuesday through Friday nights at 8:30 p.m., with a Wednesday matinee at 2:30 p.m. On Saturdays performances are at 5 and 9 p.m., and Sundays at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $7.50-$10.50. Call 894-6360 or charge tickets at 868-2772.

Paris History Film Ready for Visitors

PARIS (UPI) — Visitors to Paris will be able to watch the whole history of the French capital march before their eyes on a huge 60 by 15 foot screen set up in a giant tent below the Eiffel tower July 1-Sept. 30.

The show, an audio-visual resurrection of the Paris past, is called "Paristory" and runs for 90 minutes with five shows a day. "Paristory," directed by Philippe Courtines, will be shown on a three-dimensional screen and will be narrated by leading French actors such as Michele Morgan and Jean Claude Brialy.

New Simon Play At CTG-Ahmanson

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The world premiere of a new Neil Simon comedy, "Chapter Two," will be given by the Center Theatre Group at the Ahmanson Theatre Oct. 7-Nov. 26, as the group's first play of the 1977-78 season. It will be directed by stage and screen director Herbert Ross, whose most recent film is "The Turning Point," starring Anne Bancroft and Shirley MacLaine. "Chapter Two" will be the second CTG-Ahmanson Neil Simon world premiere. The first, "California Suite," still is running on Broadway.

'Anything Goes' is fourth summer Recreation Department musical students from all over Newton will be acting, singing and dancing in "Anything Goes," the Cole Porter musical comedy, to be performed in the Newton North High School auditorium July 28 and 29, at 8 p.m.

"Anything Goes" will be the fourth summer musical to be sponsored by the Newton Recreation Dept., which three years ago, joined with Newton students and teachers in creating a summer community theater program to provide participants with an experience in all aspects of theatrical production.

A tuneful adventure of comic and romantic intrigue aboard a pleasure cruise, "Anything Goes" is being directed by Susan Nussbaum, who has a background in drama and music, and is currently performing with the Boston Opera Company.

The producer and costume designer is Jana Rosenblatt, a 1976 graduate of Newton North High School, who attended the Carnegie Mellon School of Drama this past year. John D'Agnese, a language instructor at Newton North, is the choreographer. Tom Leonard, the musical director, is a music instructor at Warren Jr. High; his assistants are Adam Grossman, Laurel Shader and Jill Allen. The set designer is Caleb Davis, who designed this year's French play at Newton North, Moliere's "The Miser." Ben Mayerson, a major in theatrical lighting at Carnegie Mellon, is the technical director.

Featured in "Anything Goes" are Lori Behrman as wordly nightclub singer Reno Sweeney, and Jon Reuning as stowaway and debonnaire leading man, Billy Crocker.

Eve Minkoff plays Hope Harcourt, Crocker's love interest; Larry Coen is Sir Evelyn, Hope's reluctant English dandy-fiancee; Lisa Alberts plays Mrs. Harcourt, Hope's matronly mother. Joe Walsh is Moonface Martin — "Public Enemy 1" — who is hiding from the law aboard ship with Bonnie, his dim blonde moll, played by Martha Ross.

Other principals in the cast are: David Donebedian as Whitney, Crocker's drinking, woman-chasing boss; James Dolbear as the Bishop; Stuart Alford and Ron Richmond as 'Ching' and 'Ling,' a pair of Chinese stowaways; Jeff Magaw as the steward; Ben Stocking as a reporter; Jon Goldberg as a cameraman; Kevin Lowenthall as the purser, and Eric Brown as the captain.

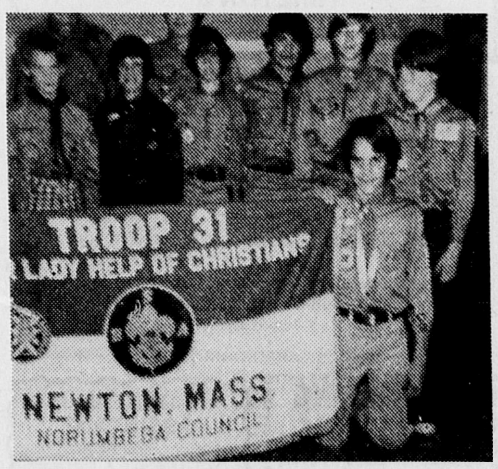

wue ey's "Four Angels" are: Laurie Schwartz, 'Purity'; Marcene Mitchell, 'Chastity'; Alana Zion, 'Charity'; Cindy Berk, 'Virtue.'

Dancers in the show are: Billy Ryan, Liz Robertson, Julie Ambrosio, Ben Stocking, Jon Goldberg, Bobbi Adams, Terry Adams, Ned Martin, James Dolbear, Bryan Roberts, Ronald Brown, David Jacobs, Ronnie Quintilioni, Anne Butterworth, Kathy Demsey, Diane Hamilton, Arlene Phalon, Wendy Berk, Sandy Schoen and Carol Tennent.

Chorus members are: Devin Stuart, Roger Sandman, Lisa Amicangioli, Lynn Bikofsky, Stuart Ross, Meg Donebedian, Dan Martin, Johanna Herman, Jeff Magaw, Sarah Longson, Ian Todreas, Marian Kirshen, Bradley Stolbach, Leslie McMahon, Ginger Wright, Diane Rothauser, Rachel Boyken, Kevin Roberts, Helene Rosenblatt, Clair Rosenberg, Sheila Golden, Mimi Ochs and Susan Byrne.

Brenda Phalon is stage manager, and Sharon Hill is prop . manager.

Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students and children. For reservations and more information, call 332-6047, or send payment in cash or check to "Anything Goes," 238 Homer St., Newton Centre, 02159.

Hot enough for you?

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

With thermometers hovering near 100 degrees from Saturday to Wednesday, everything in the city seemed to slow down, except for activity in swimming pools.

The temperature was 96 degrees in Newton Highlands Monday and Tuesday, and WNTN reported 100 degrees over the weekend.

Crystal Lake reported the year's record number of about 1500 swimmers Tuesday, and Gath Pool in Newtonville had to begin its capacity procedure of not allowing any more swimmers in until others had left.

City Hall closed at 3 p.m. because of the heat Monday and Tuesday, Mayor Theodore Mann said.

There have been two reported power outages since the heat wave began, but power was quickly restored.

According to Walter McGauley of Boston Edison a tree limb fell on a wire on Centre Street near Tyler Terrace Tuesday, causing about 150 homes and businesses to be without power from 11 a.m. to 12:24 p.m.

Police provided an emergency generator to the Blair Nursing Home on Pelham Street to operate their air conditioners during the outage.

The second breakdown was caused by a faulty transformer near the Newton-Waltham line on River Street, leaving 4000 homes without power from 7 to 7:30 a.m. Wednesday, McGauley said.

Police said Aka Core, 7, of 21 Wilson Circle, Newton Highlands, was taken

Developer picked for Peirce School

A developer has been selected for the conversion of the old Peirce School, West Newton, to apartments for the elderly.

Childs-Bertman-Tseckares, architects, in conjunction with Yankee Financial Group and Cooperative Metropolitan Ministries, have been given the word that, subject to a few significant changes, Mayor Theodore Mann has approved their proposal.

The Chestnut Street building, vacated by the School Department's Division of Instruction last year, will provide 35 apartments for the elderly at an average rent of $400 per month including utilities.

Among the changes demanded by the mayor are an increase in the number of parking spaces from the proposed 14 to 35, a 40-year lease instead of a 99-year lease, and a new method of determining payments to the city.

The original CBT proposal stipulated a $24,000 annual payment to the city, which could decline to $6270 if HUD subsidies for the nine low-income apartments fall through.

Mann wants a clearly specified minimum payment to the city and an escalator clause returning to the city at least 20 percent of all income beyond a certain amount, as well as methods for review of proposed rent increases and selection of tenants.

Annual festival

The annual parade through the streets of Nonantum with the statue of St. Mary of Carmine progressed slowly Sunday but was faithfully carried out, despite the record temperatures. Behind the girls carrying the rosary chain are Father Daniel Magni, a native of Newton, and State Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci. By tradition, donations are taped onto the statue and later turned over to the church. Other photos of the festival appear inside the paper. (Williams photo)

Norwood Ave.

Tenants must buy or leave

The elderly tenants of 35 apartments at 55-85 Norwood Ave., Newton Centre, whose apartments are being sold as condominiums, got sympathy but little in the way of concrete help at a public meeting Monday night before an aldermanic committee.

However, the day after the meeting before the Legislation & Rules Committee and other interested aldermen, William Walsh, attorney for owner Felix Orlandella, in a telephone interview set forth several things the owner will do to ease the plight of the tenants.

Tenants were notified June 15 of the intended conversion and invited to buy their apartments. Since that time relations between owner and tenants, most of whom are elderly and none of whom had leases, have become strained.

Tenants have charged that harassment and fear tactics have been used to get them to move. Reports that the owner's agent, Robert Healey, had broken into an apartment were denied by Walsh, who said that Orlandella had gained entrance to the apartment with a key.

Not only has the owner acted in a precipitous manner, tenants told the aldermen and state representatives who attended the meeting, but also there has been a failure in communication from the owner.

They told of letters received directing them to pay their rents, to different people when Orlandella defaulted on a mortgage and letters from the gas company first instructing them to get together to pay a $2000 gas bill, then asking them to pay their rents to the gas company in order to keep their service.

City insists on rental mix in Lower Falls

Would-be developer of redevelopment housing in Lower Falls last Thursday told a hostile but restrained group of almost 100 residents, "We have gone as far as we can" in meeting community objections to the housing mix and refused to guarantee that 20 units will rent at prevailing market rents.

The audience did not believe him, and city officials will pursue the matter with the federal funding agency.

The developer, New Falls Associates, plans to rent 20 apartments of the 60 to be built to low-income elderly persons, at least 20 apartments moderate-income persons, and 12 at market rents.

Haim Eliachar of New Falls told the assemblage that he would try to rent the 20 market-rent units desired by the community, which has been counting on 20 of the 60 units to be built to be rented to low-income elderly people, 20 to moderate-income people, and 20 to be rented at market (high) rents.

Eliachar has applied for subsidy from the federal Housing and Urban Development department for 100 percent of the housing. The HUD subsidy would go for low- and moderate-income tenants.

The understanding of the Lower Falls residents, aid its representative body in theu urban renewal process, the Lower Falls Area Project Committee eestablished by federal requirement), has apparently been that the housing shall be divided equally.

The invitation for proposal, published in 1975 to find a developer, and the urban renewal plan itself dated 1969, are worded so as not to make the equal distribution unmistakably clear. Both documents were approved by LOPAC.

Eliachar said the problem with allocating 20 units for market rentals is an objection from HUD, which may reduce its subsidy allocation after 8-12 months if fewer than 80 percent of the

Angier and Hamilton get acting principals

Henry DeRush and Sally Webber, both teachers with experience in Newton, were appointed acting principals of Angier and Hamilton schools, respectively, for September by the School Committee.

The two received unanimous approval from the School Committee, with Mayor Theodore Mann adding his vote after he arrived.

Sally Webber, 34, has been a fifth and sixth grade teacher at Carr School since 1968, except for the past year during which she took a sabbatical leave and studied in the doctoral program in administration and supervision at Boston College.

She received her B.S. degree in education from Kent State University in 1968 and her M.Ed. from Boston College in 1976.

She will be filling in at Hamilton School for Joan Warner while she is on a sabbatical leave.

She sees the primary role of the principal to be in the classroom to help the teacher with anything that needs improving.

She said she hopes "to continue the good rapport with the community" that Joan Warner has established, and would like to able to invite parents to come to the school informally once a month.

She sees her strongest asset to the job as her "high degree of organizational skills, utilizing people in an efficient manner."

She would favor having children sitting in on parent-teacher conferences, since they always want to know what happens during that "special time."

Ms. Webber, a native of Ohio, sees the need for some kind of stated goals for children at certain grades, since "there is a certain sameness in skills that kids need as they reach a certain age," she said.

To maintain classroom control there should be minimum expectations from students that are consistent in all classes, she said.

There was no one in the audience of six public observers from Hamilton School to ask any questions of the candidate.

Henry W. DeRusha, Jr., will be filling in for Principal Roland Barth at Angier School while he takes a Guggenheim fellowship.

DeRusha has spent the past three years as principal of Colegio Nueva Granada, Newton's sister school in Bogota, Colombia, where he also taught for the 1969-70 school year.

He has an M.Ed. degree from Boston University which he received in 1973 and

NCDF working out how to pick tenants

By PRISCILLA LEITH
Graphic Correspondent

The Newton Community Development Foundation has gained approval for its proposed tenant selection procedures for 20 low-income units on Hamlet Street from the Massachusetts Housing and Finance Agency (MHFA) and, with two conditions, from the state Department of Community Affairs (DCA).

The Newton Housing Services Commission, which is doing the initial screening of applications, may call a special meeting about Aug 1 to deal with last minute matters related to the procedures, HSC Chairman Stephen Buchbinder said last week.

DCA approval requires that NCDF and the HSC give first priority to persons displaced by public action (e.g., urban renewal) and by natural disasters (e.g., fire or flood) on the two days when applications will be taken.

Those days are Aug 7 and 8.

Only 20 low-income tenants will make it into the project.

The selection system is basically a lottery, although officials concerned prefer to call it a "randomizing" of applications.

All applicants must meet basic qualifications for low income housing.

Verifications of applicants' income and assets will be required and will be checked by HSC staff members.

At its July 13 meeting, the HSC authorized "continued participation in the development of a tenant selection process for NCDF's Hamlet Street housing project."

In a motion, made by Commissioner James Miller and approved 6-0, HSC also said it stands ready to meet and to verify final procedures upon receipt of ap-

Ernest Loewenstein, acting as a barker at Village Day in Newton Highlands last May, makes his pitch for public transportation. He gives his time and effort free because he believes that public transportation is essential to the preservation of the environment and society.

Our modern-day Johnny Appleseed

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Like a modern-day Johnny Appleseed, Ernest Loewenstein is trying to spread the seeds of civilization.

But Loewenstein is trying to make a different kind of civilization flourish — one with less pollution, less waste of energy, and more pleasant all around.

His "seeds" are MBTA timetables, which for six years he has undertaken alone, unsung, and unpaid, to distribute throughout Newton Highlands.

Loewenstein for years was chairman of the transportation committee of the Greater Boston group of the Sierra Club chapters, and later was transportation issues coordinator of the whole New England Chapter of the Sierra Club, an organization devoted to protecting the environment.

It was during this time he put to use an interest "learned at his father's knee," he says, an interest in good public transportation.

His father watched with dismay the deterioration of the railroads and used to talk about Germany, which he left in 1936, where you could get everyplace from everyplace else.

Ernest's first contact with the MBTA was several years ago, when there was a highway study going on at the state level. One side wanted bigger and better highways; Ernest's side wanted more and better public transportation to cut down on the use of cars.

He was disgusted to learn the extent of information and timetables issued by the MBTA, which at that time was almost none, and took it upon himself to promote the MBTA.

It wasn't easy.

Until fairly recently, when the MBTA administration started getting out the information somewhat better, Loewenstein had difficulty getting timetables, and even now finds they are sent out late. They are sent to the Newton Planning Department, where he picks them up.

Then he delivers the timetables, usually by bicycle, to Willey's Pharmacy, Walnut Food, the library, the Newton Graphic office, and the Newton-Waltham Bank, all of which keep them displayed where people may pick one up.

The MBTA still has no mechanism for distributing maps and timetables, he says. And how can people plan on using public transportation if they don't know where and when it goes?

Ernest Loewenstein is 45 and has a wife and children. His wife, Phyllis, is a psychotherapist for the state correctional system.

By training and education, Ernest is a research physicist with a Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins University, but two years

Memorial students get bus for after-school activities

The School Committee approved an after-school activities bus for Memorial students that will be attending the Memorial-Spaulding school in the fall.

The 5-3 vote in favor of the estimated $5,400 expenditure was justified as compensation for the first school that has been closed due to declining enrollment.

The three Committee members who voted against the proposal, Michael LeConti, Honora Kaplan, and Henry Delicata, agreed with Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink that it would be unfair to provide the special bus just to Memorial students and not to other students at elementary schools who take buses to and from school for safety reasons.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shemir presented a proposal to the Committee with the names of 49 parents in Oak Hill Park who said their 74 children would be deprived of after-school programs at the new Memorial-Spaulding Schoool because the students would have no safe way of crossing the busy intersections of Dedham, Brookline, and Oak Hill streets at around 4 p.m.

All Oak Hill Park students will get regular bus service to and from Memorial-Spaulding.

Paul Ash pointed out that the report of the Citizens Advisory Committee on Declining Enrollment recommended the Schoool Committee try for a smooth transition when moving students from one school to another, and he felt the bus would be necessary in order not to deprive students of the after-school activities they were used to at Memorial.

To justify not supplying late activity buses to the eight other elementary schools for which normal buses are provided the majority of the members said arrangements with parents in other schools have developed over the years for car-pooling, but with Memorial students at a new school those ties with other parents have not had a chance to form.

School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell supported the bus for one-year transition period to allow students and parents to form relationships that would lead to other arrangements being made for transportation by the second year.

Mandell also said he thought the funds for the bus were in the budget for the fiscal year that started July 1.

Ash amended the motion so the bus that will serve students in the Ward and Bowen school districts during the first year of redistricting will also provide more transportation than planned for those students.

Committeewoman Kaplan tried to amend the motion to include activity buses for the eight other schools where buses are used for safety reasons, but the amendment failed by a 2-5-1 vote, with Delicata in favor, Cohen abstaining.

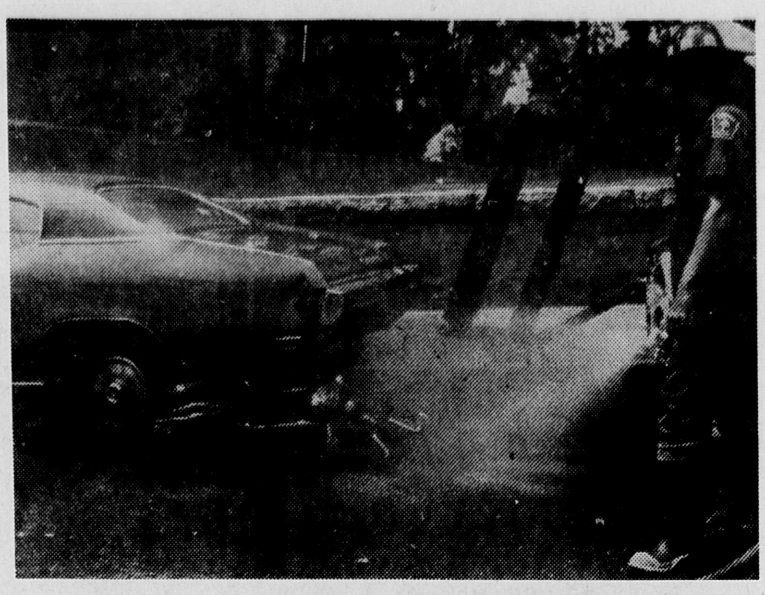

Superintendent Fink warned of the other eight schools, public schools and private schools requesting similar bus service, but the majority of the Committee felt this was a special case.

Voting for the appropriation were Ash, Mandell, Robert Cohen, Edward Prince, and Mayor Theodore Mann. Manuel Beckwith had left by the time this vote was taken at about 9:45 p.m.

Mayor Mann suggested that the School Department investigate the cost of providing crossing guards for the other eight schools for after school activities instead of the buses which were estimated at a cost of $38,000 to $49,000, depending on how many buses were needed.

Ms. Kaplan thought the eight remaining schools could be served with fewer buses at a lower cost.

The other eight schools at which some students receive transportation because of hazardous crossings are Spaulding (whose students will not be served by the proposal passed) Oak Hill, Burr, Hyde, Underwood, Countryside, Ward, and Lincoln-Eliot.

Aftermath A firefighter from Engine 3 in Newton Centre washes down the gas running from the tank of the Kawasaki motorcycle driven by William Mason, 25, of Somerville. The cycle was stuck under the parked car. The driver was thrown clear and received minor injuries. A tow truck had to lift the car in order to get the motorcycle out from under it. (Williams photo)

Man charged with assaulting police officer with motorcycle

A trial will be held in Newton District Court Aug. 23 for a Somerville man who allegedly tried to run down a police officer with a motorcyle in Newton Centre Monday morning afterallegedlyeading police on a 10-minute chase through streets off Walnut Street.

The chase came to a stop when the cycle skidded out of control in front of the Newton Cemetery and threw the driver 20 feet through the air, according to Officer Paul Cummings, the police officer who was allegedly attacked.

William G. Mason, 25, of 56 Albion St., Somerville, the driver of the cycle, was treated for minor injuries and released from Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Officer Cummings leapt out of the way of the 1976 Kawasaki KZ 400 shortly before the accident at 12:45 p.m., he said.

Mason was charged with assault with a motor vehicle, two counts of failing to stop for police officer in uniform speeding, failing to conform to a traffic signal, and operating to endanger.

The incident began at about 12:30 p.m. when Officer Arthur Hill tried to stop the cycle on Walnut Street in Newtonville where he allegedly saw it go through a red light.

The operator of the cycle allegedly led police on a high speed chase through side streets off of Commonwealth Avenue and Walnut Street before re-entering Walnut Street heading south police said.

It was then that Mason allegedly sped up and went toward Officer Cummings who was standing in the street to attempt to stop the cycle, according to police.

The cycle then went out of control and skidded under a car parked in front of the cemetery on Walnut Street.

Two convicted of auto charges get suspended 1-year sentences

A man and woman from Newton Centre were given a one-year prison sentence suspended for two years in Newton District Court Tuesday after both were convicted of possessing stolen cars and altering the vehicle identification numbers.

Judge Monte G. Basbas found Peter J. Brooke, and Barbara F. Gross, 27, both of 181 Parker St., Newton Centre, guilty of the charges regarding two 1973 Datsuns.

Trooper Lawrence Colson from the State Police Barracks in Framingham told the court that he stopped Ms. Gross on Nov. 7, 1976, because he noticed there was no front license plate on her car.

She had no registration papers with her at the time she traveling on Rte. 9 in Newton, the trooper said, and he issued her a written warning.

He further investigated the car because the federally required air pollution control decal on the door was missing.

Trooper Colson later found out from the Registry of Motor Vehicles' computer that the car plate on the car was registered to Peter Brooke of the same address.

When he went to the home with Newton Traffic Officer George Macnair, a man came out of the house and asked them what the officers wanted.

When explaining the sticker to the person at the house, Macnair and Colson noted that a second Datsun in the driveway , used to illustrate the point to the person, appeared to have the pollution sticker tampered with.

Trooper Colson introduced as evidence six glossy black-and-white photographs of the pollution stickers and the vehicle identification numbers on both cars that also appeared to have been tampered with.

During the procedings it was noted that both cars were registered as being 1971 autos but were actually manufactured in 1973.

The state law requiring titles on motor vehicles sold privately did not apply to 1971 cars.

Pines supports changing tax exempton figures

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) has announced her support for a proposal to correct existing inequities in property tax exemptions for widowed and elderly persons. Pines is a member of the Joint Legislative Committee on Taxation's Subcommittee on Property Tax Exemptions which is currently formulating alternatives to the present system.

Rep. Pines has been in the forefront of efforts in the last several years to reform, reduce and equalize the property tax. She has been particularly concerned with the inequality of exemptions created by discrepancies in assessment ratios throughout the state.

"Many communities have been dragging their feet and have not yet converted their property assessments to 100 percent valuation. These differences in assessment ratios have resulted in inconsistent and inequitable property tax exemptions for widowed and elderly persons," Pines explained. "Unless the present law is changed, citizens of communities like Newton, which is expected to be at court-imposed 100 percent valuation in 1978, will suffer at the expense of those communities which have not yet been forced to comply with the law."

Citizens entitled to abatements who live in communities that are at a high percentage valuation often receive less in actual benefits than citizens of communities with a low percentage valuation, Pines said.

Widowed individuals eligible for an abatement currently have a choice between a deduction of $175 from their annual tax bill, or a $2000 reduction in the assessed value of their homes. Pines believes that a proposed increase in the $175 abatement to approximately $300 will assist Newton widows and widowers.

Pines has also proposed that the criteria for abatement eligibility be broadened. Currently, an applicant's assets may not exceed $20,000. Under the proposal being considered by the Subcommittee, the asset limit for eligibility will be reduced to $12,000 but the value of the home will be entirely excluded. An annual income limit of $10-$12,000 is also under discussion.

Pines stressed the importance of excluding the value of the home from the assets limit.

"Under differing assessment ratios, a $40,000 home valued at 25 percent adds only $10,000 to the assets limit of $20,000. Unfortunately, in those towns which have revalued their property at 100 percent, a $40,000 home would be valued at $40,000. Thus widows of that town would be ineligible. This is grossly unfair. The law must be changed to correct these inequities," Pines said.

Pines added that as a result of the Equal Rights Amendment, the tax break will be probably made available to "surviving spouses" and not just widows.

A similar set of modifications has been proposed to deal with present property tax abatements for the elderly. Under current law, those over 70 may now choose between an abatement of $350 or a $4000 reduction as an option. An elderly person must have assets below $40,000 and a couple below $45,000 to presently qualify. Under the proposal this would be lowered to $20,000 and $25,000 respectively but would exclude the value of the home.

Pines said: "The law as presently constituted penalizes those people who own homes whose value has significantly appreciated. An increased tax burden should not force them out of their homes at a time when they deserve to enjoy the security and pleasure for which they have long worked."

Pines anticipates that the Legislature will take up the forthcoming Subcommittee recommendations before the end of the current session.

Learn grantsmanship in one easy clinic

A Grants and Proposal Writing Clinic will be presented by the Resource Management Group of Beacon Hill on Friday, Aug. 12, at the Usdan Student Center, Brandeis University, Waltham.

The clinic, which will be conducted by Donald Levitan and Daniel Donahue, is designed for people affiliated educational, service, and ernment institutions and those who are seeking federal and philanthropic funding.

The morning session of the one-day clinic will feature a discussion of the intergovernmental grant system and foundation funding, resource development and funding diversification. The afternoon session will concentrate on the three basic phases of successful proposal writing and their constituent elements, techniques and models.

The clinic is a "shirtsleeves working clinic." It will address itself to those persons who need a "nut and bolts" course in grantsmanship and proposal writing. Participants will have the opportunity to work on their own proposals at the clinic.

Levitan is a professor at Suffolk University, Boston, where he is also director of the Center for Public Management. He is a national consultant in grantsmanship and has written several books and articles in the field of grantsmanship. Donahue has been a consultant in grantsmanship for several public service organizations on the East Coast and in Appalachia, the South and the Midwest.

Further information about the Grants and Proposal Writing Clinic may be obtained by calling Levitan at 723-4700.

Mopeds, 'bikes,' banned by MDC

The Metropolitan District Commission has issued a reminder that all recreational vehicles are prohibited from MDC parks and reservations except on roadways specifically designated for automobile traffic.

The ruling applies to such vehicles as dune buggies, campers, trail bikes, motorcycles, minibikes, mopeds and snowmobiles.

Consultants say
Hawthorne best place for Nonantum center

An addition to the Hawthorn Playground building would better serve the needs of Nonantum than trying to put a multi-service center in the old Stearns School' a consulting firm has found.

The preliminary report by architects Childs-Bertman-Tseckares was presented to the Nonantum Advisory Committee recently.

According to NAC Chairman Jennie DeVito, the membership agreed unanimously that construction of an addition to the Hawthorn building would be the right goal for the community development program to pursue.

"Now we will probably work full force for the razing of the old Stearns School," Mrs. DeVito said.

The consultants have estimated the need for space to house the various activities of the Nonantum community and have concluded that it could be met by the recommended new addition.

The community development program for Nonantum has set aside through the 1978 fiscal year $80,000 for a permanent multi-service center. This amount alone will not build much, but Juris Alksnitis of the Planning Department says there are grants and other ways of matching funds to increase the available money.

The Nonantum Advisory Committee was reassured at the meeting by Mayor Theodore Mann's comments on a proposed land swap of the Stearns property for a piece of land at the end of Rustic Street near Allison Park.

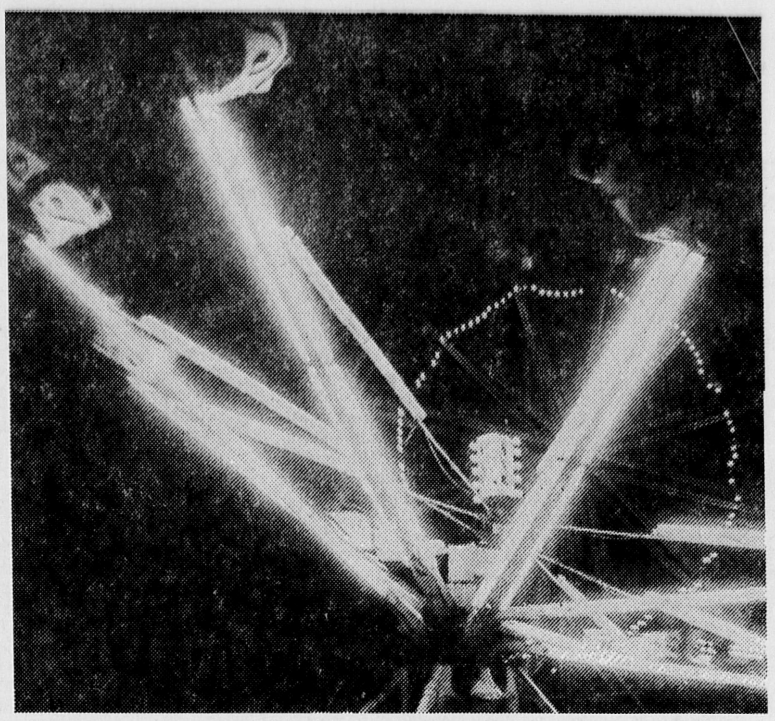

The city wants to acquire the Rustic Street land to provide better access to Allison Park, which the Planning Department feels is more suitable for adult recreation than Hawthorn Playground.

One suggestion came from city officials that the land be exchanged, but the catch was that housing was to be built on the Stearns site. The community has long been, and still is, opposed to any housing at Stearns School.

The hope of Nonantum has been that the city will demolish the old school and convert the entire property to recreationa use.

The land swap has not been mentioned since a community meeting a few weeks ago, where Planning Director Charles Thomas tried to explain to those attending that a proposed exchange of land could not be accomplished without a long, well-defined process involving the community and the Board of Aldermen.

At the most recent meeting, Mayor Mann reiterated the position that "the rights of the community w ll be protected at all times" and asked to be advised of neighborhood concerns.

Housing Services Commission re-elects Buchbinder chairman

The Newton Housing Services Commission last week elected its current officers to head the agency for one more year.

Chairman Stephen Buchbinder, Vice Chairman Leo Karas, and Treasurer Henry Wilson were unanimously elected to serve through June,1978, with six of the seven HSC members present and voting.

A year ago HSC replaced the Newton Housing Authority as the agency overseeing management functions of Newton's five existing elderly housing projects, its leased housing units and its subsidized housing programs.

New construction, including that of the Thurston Road elderly-family complex in Upper Falls and the Paul Street elderly building in Newton Centre which were then in process, became the responsibility of another agency, the one-person Newton Community Development Authority.

The NCDA must have its actions approved by thesevenmember Newton Planning and Development Board, which succeeded the Newton Redevelopment Authority.

Both HSC and NCDA utilize state and federal funds.

In other business at the July 13 session, which was also the annual meeting of the HSC, commissioners discussed names for the Thurston Road and PauStreet housing projects, income limits for state programs and a modernization program underway at several elderly housing complexes.

Budget summaries for the JFK Circle, Horace Mann, Norumbega Gardens and-Parker House modernization programs presented by Executive Director Frank Quinn were approved, unanimously.

Bid openings for new doors at Jackson Gardens will be held July 29, Quinn announced.

All doors and transoms need to be replaced because they are made of soft redwood which has warped and twisted, Quinn said.

State agencies will not go along with raising the income limits for tenants, as proposed at the May HSC meeting, Quinn told the commissioners.

Raises in the limits were suggested because recent increases in social secutiry payments have now made a number of couples on the waiting lists ineligible for state-assisted projects.

Commissioner Leo Karas asked Quinn to make a written, rather than verbal, request and to ask for a written response.

Names for the Thurston Road and Paul Street projects will be chosen at a future meeting, probably in August.

Echo Ledge, Echo Ridge, Emerson Court and Thurston Court are the suggestions so far for the Thurston Road complex. More ideas will be sought before the next meeting.

Names under consideration for Paul Street include Crystal Bridge, Crystal Brook and Crystal View.

The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has just approved nearly $2 million in funds for the 43-unit, five-story building, to go at Centre and Paul Streets near Crystal Lake.

The height will still require permission from the Board of Aldermen, and a hearing on that is scheduled for Aug 8 before the aldermanic Land Use Committee.

Thurston Road, in Newton Upper Falls, has four family and 32 elderly units which are due to open for occupancy on Sept 15.

The HSC staff is currently at work on tenant selection for those units.

Attending the July HSC meeting were Commissioners Frank Quinn, James Miller, Stephen Buchbinder, Henry Wilson, Donald Ferreri and Leo Karas.

Commissioner Mimi Tyler, a tenant representative, was absent.

Campaigning
Semantics the key in 'debate' question

Semantics seem to the be the key in the continuing charge from mayoral candidate Eliot Cohen that the mayor is sidestepping the issue of a debate.

Mayor Theodore Mann last week announced a series of campaign appearances where he says he will "debate the issues," while challenger Cohen seems to be is asking for a formal debate, such as the Presidential debates in last year's election.

"The mayor is attempting to deceive the people of Newton into believing he wants to debate when, in fact, he is attempting to avoid face-to-face meetings," Cohen charged this week.

Mann responded: "In addition to running the city, I will make myself as available as I can. I've already responded to this question many times."

Mayoral candidates, numbering nine at the moment, are scheduled to appear at a forum sponsored by the Newton Conservator's Aug. 11.

Cohen says this meeting is not a debate because " questionnaires are to be sent out prior to the meeting, and candidates will be questioned concerning their written responses."

"I want face-to-face debates with opening and closing statements and the participants questioning each other; debates where nobody knows the questions in advance," Cohen said. "This is the established format for a candidates' debate."

In a statement issued by the Mann camp this week, the mayor's campaign manager, Emily Lipof, said that any citizen wishing to attend a meeting with the mayor should contact his headquarters at 965-4848.

Mann recently attended a coffee at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gitlin.

Man's car beaten with chains

A Brighton man was stopped in his car on Commonwealth Avenue Saturday morning when two men got out from another car and began hitting his car with chains.

The victim, a 25-year-old man from Commonwealth Avenue in Brighton, was driving a 1971 Chevrolet wagon when he stopped for the traffic light at Chestnut Street.

The men who beat the side of the victim's car got out of a silver 1968 Oldsmobile sedan whose passenger door was knocked off when the victim sped away to escape the attackers.

Police said there were four men in the silver car that had no license plate on it. Two of the men were described as follows:

One was 6 foot 3, 225 pounds, wearing a beard, T shirt' and jeans, the other was 5 foot 9, 170 pounds, and wearing a pink striped shirt.

Fare from Logan is $7.25 in shared cab

Starting this week you can come home from Logan Airport for $7.25, if you don't mind sharing a cab.

The usual fare is $13-16.

Share-a-Cab, a plan sponsored by the Massachusetts Port Authority, which runs Logan Airport, went into effect this week.

Under the Share-a-Cab plan, up to four people headed in the same general direction may share a cab. Passengers wait at a central dispatch desk at the airport until a group is assembled to share the cab..

The wait should not be more than 15 minutes.

Dewey Mollomo, president of Veterans Cab Co. of Newton, commented that he approves of the plan from Logan to Newton, but thinks it would not work well from Newton to Logan. A cab company in Waltham is trying to work out procedures to use Share-a-Cab in Waltham and neighboring communities.

Protecting children

Child abuse has become an increasingly serious problem in Massachusetts.

Why parents brutally beat and even molest a small son or daughter they brought into the world is a mystery to most people.

The answer probably is that they do it in a drunken rage or as an expression of their pentup frustration. Whatever the reasons, they are doing it in growing numbers.

Representative Raymond Flynn of South Boston for a long time has been striving to prod or pressure state officials into doing something about this extremely serious problem.

Flynn finally appears to have won a significant victory in his ongoing battle. State officials have announced plans for beefing up programs for the protection of children against abuses.

Most, but not all, abuses occur among parents in the low-income brackets who don't have enough money to support their families adequately and vent their frustration on an innocent child.

Well-to-do parents, of course, also get drunk and beat or assault their own children.

State Secretary of Human Services Jerald L. Stevens and State Welfare Commissioner Alexander E. Sharp both are now seeking additional funds to cope with this problem.

Sharp also reported that he has appointed a "protective services director to monitor services and oversee anti-child-abuse efforts in Massachusetts.

The children Representative Flynn has worked so hard to protect can't vote for him, but some of them may enjoy happier lives because of his persistent efforts in their behalf.

Student direction

During the disruptive years of student protests in the late 1960's and until the end of United States involvement in the Vietnam war, a great to-do was made about "relevant" education. Some of those attending universities and colleges — the word student may not be exact — complained about required courses in various liberal arts or other fields which they did not perceive as pertaining to immediate problems. Somehow the idea that scholars should set educational requirements for degrees became suspect.

This last year a Connecticut woman, Ilene Ianniello, took that idea to court and lost. She claimed that a course required of majors in secondary education at the University of Bridgeport didn't teach her a thing. She asked for about $400 in damages because of the costs of tuition, books, travel expenses and legal fees.

In turning down the claim, Judge Michael Sicilian explained that courts should not try to interfere with the judgment of scholars and university officials as far as curricular issues are concerned.

It may well be that some university courses, especially in the field of education, are "Mickey Mouse," putting into courses content that anyone would ordinarily know and understand from other classes or from experience. It may also be that some student ideas are valuable as to what they want to learn and what they already know.

But the concept of a student-directed curriculum is ridiculous. On a different level it is similar to the idea a few years ago that small children would eat only what was good for them if they had the choice. And of course it negates the entire philosophy of education. Why bother about acquiring university degrees if those kids out of high school know more about the process in any case?

No sainthood yet for Treasurer Crane

By J. J. Smith, state columnist

Bob Crane hopes to parlay his toothy grin, silver tonsils and engaging personality into another term as Massachusetts state treasurer, but his friends and admirers ought to concentrate on defending his record rather than using character assassination of a former colleague to advance his prospects.

The most glaring, and distasteful, example of this faulty over-exuberance by Crane supporters surfaced in the "underground" weekly, THE REAL PAPER, in a feature story by-lined by former Boston Globe State House newsman Charles Kenney.

It was a skillfully conceived hatchet job on former Secretary of State John F.X. Davoren designed to make Bob Crane look good. The story included numerous highly lauditory remarks about Crane — remarks which fail dismally unbiased tests of accuracy.

"You see, Massachusetts liberals have set up Crane as a marked man, although it's a little difficult to understand why . . . it's tough to get anyone to make very specific criticism of Crane's performance," enthused writer Kenney. At another point he noted, "Crane's performance as treasurer has been criticized (consistently if not specifically) for lack of both competence and imagination."

We don't know where reporter Kenney has been but there have been an over-abundance of "specifics" as regards Bob Crane's official performance, although his singing, granted, does draw universal kudos. During Kenney's tenure at the Globe, he obviously didn't write, or failed to read, numerous critical articles - - in that paper and elsewhere - - about Treasurer Crane. And where was "political writer" Kenney in 1974 when Crane last ran for re-election — and was almost beaten by Mark Furcolo, son of former Governor Foster Furcolo, a virtual unknown?

Crane squeaked out a narrow victory — 355,216 votes to 340,882 — in the primary, mainly because Furcolo statewide pounded home information on Crane's chummy relationship with six "favored" banks where millions of state funds were deposited by Crane for the lowest amount of interest vis a vis smaller sums getting the highest amount of interest at smaller banks that were not "friendly" with Crane.

Crane had absolute discretion on where he put state monies, and the big deposits went to those "friendly and favorable to him," during this era. Now his changed tactics, but only under pressure generated by the Furcolo scare.

One of those "favored" banks of course, was the Commonwealth Bank & Trust in Boston, owned by Crane intimate Phil Fine. Phil Fine just happens to be the brother of THE REAL PAPER Publisher Ralph I. Fine — which helps explain, in large measure, the glorification of Bob Crane in that newspaper's June 4th issue by reporter Kenney.

What defies understanding, however, was the need to villify and demean former Secretary of State Jack Davoren, now a highly respected and productive union official. In fact, the article so distorted the truth that it took Davoren's record in non-official good deeds and transferred it to Crane. Consider:

Kenney quoted "political consultant Jack Walsh" as saying: "Crane has a political constituency where Davoren had almost none. Crane is the darling of the Ancient and Honorables, the Cardinal's charities, and groups that raise money for retarded kids. He's what they like — he's never had a drink in his life, and he's a good family man. He's not Jack Davoren." (Walsh, incidentally, is an associate of Bob Crane's pal, Mayor Kevin White).

If Jack Davoren were not politically involved, that statement could lead to heavy legal damages against both Walsh and the newspaper, particularly the crack about "good family man." The simple truth is that in his long tenure on Beacon Hill there was never such a whisper about Jack Davoren, and his reputation as a "good family man" was unquestioned. It was Davoren, not Crane, who annually raised thousands for retarded children.

For some strange reason, a few Boston writers over the years developed an antipathy towards Jack Davoren — an antipathy reflected in the Boston Globe's lengthy and persistent assault against him. He was portrayed as a bumbler and fumbler — a portrayal at total variance with the facts.

One doesn't become a Speaker of the Massachusetts House if one is a bumbler. Or, having attained that lofty position, one doesn't exert leadership and get vital legislation enacted as was done under Davoren. Ex-Governor Endicott Peabody enacted 87 percent of his legislative program when Davoren was Speaker. Under Davoren's leadership, the House enacted numerous pace-setting legislation. These included compensation for victims of violent crime, the legislative intern program, professional staffing of House committees, and the pilot "truth in lending" law which was adopted nationally as Federal law — the first meaningful consumer protection.

Davoren's shown similar imagination and flair since taking over as legislative Director of the Mass. Building & Construction Trades Council, including starting its self-supporting 90,000 circulation newspaper.

If Bob Crane's friends and strategists feel the way to office is over the bodies of others, they would do well to reconsider.

Do automatic elevators need operators?

Commentary by

John D. Lofton, Jr.

WASHINGTON — Freshman Rep. Dan Glickman, D.-Kan., who describes himself to me as a person who is "generally moderate about every kind of issue you can put your finger on," believes that "nothing really gets done unless you make a pest of yourself." So when the $28 million Legislative Branch Appropriation Act came before the House the other day, Rep. Glickman made a pest of himself.

What he did was offer an amendment forbidding the use of any funds to pay people to operate automatic elevators. The measure would have saved the taxpayer about $800,000, which now goes to pay the salaries of those individuals who operate the 59 automatic elevators in the three House office buildings.

Rep. Glickman's amendment was by no means radical. It specifically exempted "Members Only" automatic elevators while the House is in session and those in the Capitol, which serve mostly tourists. It also proposed that no existing operators for automatic elevators be terminated, only that they cease to work as a result of attrition.

Explaining to his House colleagues why he was making a pest of himself, Rep. Glickman declared:

"There is really no need to have these people. Obviously, before the House had automatic elevators, operators were needed; but as we automated these elevators, these positions were kept on primarily because they were patronage jobs. I would rather take the money and send these people out to do research for us on important issues or hire them as painters or for other work here in the House. However, to have people, for the most part, sitting on little stools on elevators and preventing the average citizen from coming in and pushing his own floor button is ridiculous."

Rep. Glickman wondered if any of his colleagues could imagine the taxpayers of his state standing still and paying for operators to press buttons for passengers boarding automatic elevators in the city hall or state capitol of his state? He said the fact that this goes on in Washington "is the exact image everyone has of the federal government, a government that spends money with abandon because it is so far removed from the taxpayers who have to cough up the dollars."

Well, several members agreed with Rep. Glickman, specifically Rep. Dale Milford, D.-Tex.; Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D.-Pa.; and Rep. Mickey Edwards, R. Okla. But the defenders of ridiculousness in this city are numerous.

Rep. Robert Giamo, D.-Conn., chairman of the House Budget Committee, saying he did "not know whether there should be elevators operators or not," objected on procedural grounds, accusing Rep. Glickman of "unsurping the power of the legislative committees" who ought to be making such a decision. Rep. Giamo suggested that the Glickman amendment should not be voted on "through this medium" until -- you guessed it – "a committee effectively looks into the matter and studies it."

Rep. B. F. Sisk, D.-Calif., one of the senior Democrats in the House, was also aghast at the Glickman proposal. Observing that he felt "very strongly" that such action should not be taken "without actually exploring the problem fully," he declared:

"Let me say that we have had elevator operators around here for a long time, and that, in fact, through them we are better able to serve many of our constituents."

To keep a short story short, when Rep. Glickman demanded a non-roll-call division vote, where members simply stand and are counted, the amendment failed 82-35.

The Glickman amendment was not the only measure defeated this day which would have saved the taxpayers money. When the aforementioned Rep. Kostmayer tried to knock $574,000 out of the Congress' budget which goes to print over one million "free" calendars, this idea was defeated on a division vote of 52-18. Ignoring the congressman's assertion that the only purpose these calendars serve is to help incumbents get re-elected, Rep. John McFall, D-Calif., countered by saying:

"Government is many things and part of our responsibility is to bring government to the people and an understanding of what the government is and what the government does. If we can do it by educating the people with calendars, I think we are performing a valuable service." Here in the nation's capital, such gibberish constitutes a compelling argument.

Finally, Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind., noting that each congressional employee now has an average of 303 square feet of office space – more than twice the amount of space each Pentagon worker has -- offered an amendment forbidding any legislative branch funds to be spent for an additional House office building. On a voice vote, this measure was rejected.

Helping humanity

To the Editor:

On May 14, the members of the Medical Careers Club of Lexington High School had a walk-a-thon for the Carroll Center for the Blind.

Before the wheels of the walk-a-thon were put in motion, I had the privilege of personally visiting the Carroll Center. While there, I was impressed and touched by the methods and results that the staff members of the center used and got when working with the clients at the center.

While visiting, I could not find one handicapped person who was not receiving the special attention he needed; and if a client was not receiving the special attention needed, then he was functioning effectively and independently; a result which may also be attrributed to the efforts of the Carroll Center and its staff.

I, like my fellow club members, have plans of going on to some field of medicine. Even though only a few of the club members got to visit the center, I believe I can say honestly on behalf of all the members that, if in the course of our lives we could do as much to alleviate human suffering as the center and its staff, we will have performed quite a service to humanity.

Thus, on behalf of the Medical Careers Club and all those persons who participated in the walk-at-thon, we have presented the center with $595.22 and hope this money will assist in continuing the marvelous work they are already doing. We wish the Carroll Center the best of luck in the future.

Good story

To the Editor:

This was one of the few times I have seen a reporter write a story completely correctly, and so nicely, too.

We thank Ann Carter for taking the time and trouble to do the piece on Project Re-Entry. You will be pleased to know that we have had many comments and inquiries.

Lots of audits

To the Editor:

One readily concludes that the letter on the pension fund in Newton Graphic, July 7, is politically motivated because of its obvious bias, snideness, and apparent lack of knowledge.

If the writer of that letter was objective and cared to know what he was writing about, he would learn that the comptroller of the city, appointed by the Board of Aldermen, has a continuing, on-going audit function.

In addition, the state government audits city records and the federal government audits all records related to federally-funded programs. The mayor and other officials of the city are certainly on top of the situation.

Furthermore, Mayor Mann has authorized and requested funding at various times for the purpose of conducting independent audits by Certified Public Accountants.

What is refreshing and what shows the mark of good government is that under Mayor Mann's administration there is no concealment and that alleged abuses are thoroughly investigated by appropriate law enforcement agencies.

Those who know what is going on, know that Newton has one of the hardest working and able Mayors in its long history of distinguished executive leaders.

My feeling is that most residents recognize and appreciate his ability and devotion in carrying out his duties as mayor. Moreover, our mayor has been recognized for his ability and expertise as an administrator by the governor of the commonwealth and his colleagues of the Massachusetts Mayors Association. Recently, he was honored by the New England College of Law which conferred the honorary degree of doctor of public administration on him.

It is too bad that during the election period, we are subjected to an abuse of our letter columns by those who write self-serving communications that are negative in content and destructive of the public good.

Less and Less fury

To the Editor:

The Newton Graphic's editorial, "Fury-less," in the July 14 issue is excellent and deserves the thanks of the community. Its calm words of advice will go a long way toward restoring our perspective and a sense of fairness in any evaluation of aldermanic performance.

To be just, however, we cannot single out any one group for the responsibility of the entire episode and for the frenzied business of "creating issues" to attract attention. The spawning of questionable issues, some phoney, is now more prevalent than ever, and voters of Newton by now must be on guard lest they be taken in by them.

We should, therefore, enlarge our viewpoint and make some judgments as to the part played by those who responded as they did to criticism of their attendance records with irresponsible counter-charges in an effort to shift the spotlight from themselves and to involve the mayoralty contest without justification.

The extension of trivialities can be viewed no less unfavorably than its initiation. Had there been more statesmanlike responses from self-appointed spokesmen, the entire matter would have been quickly constrained.

In general, and judged objectively, we must concur that the members of the Board of Aldermen work hard and serve the community with notable devotion. It is too bad that in the recent episode, which you cited, that the two who responded as self-appointed spokesmen are men busy sharpening their political hatchets in a ridiculous and dishonorable effort to link the incumbent mayor with the charges made against them by adversaries.

Plain good sense should have directed their efforts to more positive and politically-acceptable action. They should have dealt with the aldermanic record of performance.

As it is, they have indulged in political chicanery and have simply muddied the waters and emerge as diminished personalities.

What has taken place so early in the campaign should be a lesson for all involved, and voters by now ught to be alerted that we "should not be wasting our time trifling with trivialities," as the Graphic so aptly puts it.

Credit where credit is due

To the Editor:

Now that the Newton North High School athletic field is an accomplished reality, let us, the residents of Newton, give credit where credit is due before these fall through the cracks, as is so often is the case.

As a nearby resident of this area, I have watched for serveral years the demolition of the old and beautiful yellow brick buidlings which marked their own golden era, the construction of the new high school, the hiatus of between times; and, finally, the start of the athletic field in the summer of 1976.

The completion of this project adds a new dimension to Newton and gives us a park-like atmosphere which enhances the area, as well as providing for additional sports facilities for the student body and residents.

We all owe a vote of thanks to the various departments of the city who were involved in this project; to the numerous persons in those departments who gave of their time, energy and efforts to make this a befitting accomplishment; to the planning boards and other committees who were involved (and sometimes embroiled!) and to the city workrs who worked along with the contractor to bring it to fruition.

High praise is due the principal contractor, who, although he must go unnamed, will be recognized by his 'Spirit of '76' red, white and blue trailer with the shamrock alongside, for guiding this project through the maze of planning and work details so necessary to complete a good job well done.

Never have I seen such a group of workers who so devotedly worked so hard to bring this job in under the scheduled time.

At the dot of 7 a.m., and sometimes earlier, they were off and away, religiously observing the short minutes provided for their coffee and lunch breaks, and back on the job without any direction.

All echelons of the subcontractors engaged by the principal contractor, including the landscape company, the fence installers, the electrical and underground sprinkler contractors and all the others were a caliber of workmen who deserve recognition for their contributions in making the athletic field the beautiful spot that it is.

Let us now hope that the residents of Newton will give the field the respect that is due it, keep it in its present prime condition and prevent it from becoming a site and a sight of ecological blight.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stuart,
Newtonville

No labels, please

To the Editor:

I wish to call to the attention of my constituents the presenting of facts in part by Betty and Sandy Latner, based on the CPPAX July newsletter. In their letter in the July 14 Graphic they said I voted against H-3254, an anti-redlining measure that would prohibit any form of geographical discrimination by banks in denying mortgages and home improvement loans within communities they consider "deteriorating."

If Betty and Sandy Latner had taken the time to fairly and completely examine the red-lining issue, they would find that I was, in fact, a faithful proponent of this legislation.

On Tuesday, March 29, House Bill 3254 and two other red-lining bills, H2696 and H. H3255, were killed on a voice vote without a whisper of dissent.

On Monday, April 4, a motion was made to reconsider the red-lining legislation. I voted to support the motion; this motion to reconsider prevailed (roll call no. 51, Journal of the House, April 4).

After listening to the debate by the chairman and the members of the Committee on Banks and Banking, I voted against substitution of House Bill 3254 for the adverse committee report. The Committee on Banks and Banking appealed to the House for additional time to come up with a new red-lining draft that would have more input from the propo8nents and opponents in regard to this legislation. I deferred to their expertise and considered it rational to vote against substitution and await the new draft.

On Monday, June 13, the new draft, H6107, was presented. I voted for seven amendments that would strengthen H6107.

I then voted in favor of ordering House Bill 6107 as amended to a third reading. My roll calls are recorded in the Journal of the House for Monday, June 13; roll calls 261-269 inclusive.

On Wednesday, June 15, I voted for four additional amendments which would further strengthen this anti-red-lining legislation.

My votes concerning these amendments can be found in the Journal of the House for Wednesday, June 15, roll calls 286-289 inclusive.

Out of ll possible amendments, all of which I supported, all but one were rejected.

On roll call 290, I voted for the engrossment of H6107 as amended.

The bill is presently in the Senate awaiting action.

It is acceptable for those with opposing philosophies to blast me for my conservative points of view in regard to my opposition to abortion, quickie divorce and legislation that would allow doctors to provide birth control devices and information to minors (12- and 13-year-olds), without parental consent.

However, I consider it a cheap shot to pad my voting record against me with half-truths.

As a representative, it is my obligation to vote in a way that reflects my consituents concerns in harmony with my moral values. I feel confident that I am open-minded and fair in my deliberation.

I wish not to be labeled!

Bus service

To the Editor:

As of June 18, the Forest Hills-Chestnut Hill Bus No. 59 was rerouted by deleting the Brookline Street diversion and extending the run from its terminal on Route 9 to Newton Centre via Langley Rd.

This change was brought about by the request of the Newton planning director to the MBTA; all predicated on the basis of this being a poorly-patronized bus.

Although the Allendale Road, Brookline, diversion of this line also was scheduled to be eliminated for the same reason, it was subsequently found expedient to retain this section because of substantial pressure from the Town of Brookline.

The City of Newton, in its wisdom, stated it would save $25,000 on this change.

I fail to see where substituting the Langley Road extension for the Brookline Street deviation will save the above sum. Not only will there be no savings, but an additional loss will be incurred, since service has been generally increased from a 90-minute to a 45-minute interval, all based on the assumption of more patronage on this extension.

It is doubtful that the patronage from Langley Road area will equal or surpass that of the Brookline Street area, since the Langley Road area is serviced by the Green Line' Bus No. 533, and the Wellesley Fells Bus on Route 9. Use of Bus No. 59 by Langley Road area rsesidents will be frther discouraged by the additional 25-cent fare.

A number of residents in the Brookline Street area bought homes solely on the basis of some public transportation being available. The change now leaves a large area without service, even to a lesser degree.

It appears retaining bus service is also a measure of political pressure in addition to usage.

It is urged that Mayor Mann and his MBTA Advisory Board designee make every effort to reinstate bus service along Brookline Street in the very near s future.

All data, no interpretation

To the Editor:

Recently, a couple of aldermen and a Newton newspaper have decided to flail away at our non-partisan committee called Center. We don't mind the heat. We just think they're in the wrong kitchen.

We agree with the newspaper editorial statement that far too much noise has been raised over our committee, but we aren't the ones who have made it.

Our interest has been, and will continue to be, the records, performances and qualifications of all candidates for the Board of Aldermen. We believe that by presenting the facts, and no one has denied that we have done otherwise, the voter can better determine which candidates he or she wants to vote for.

We do not take stands in ideological questions.

Center was formed, basically, in an effort to insure that the ideological bickering, such as happened in the last School Committee race, does not happen in this year's aldermanic campaign.

But let's get some facts clarified once and for all so we can all get back to the business of the 1977 election campaign.

Fact 1: When Center was formed, we delivered a background statement to all aldermen, the newspapers and many community leaders stating our goals. Center is different all other political groups in that it has a central board of directors, its founders, and no formal membership. The directors are Jeff Cornell, Margaret McGovern, Elwynn Miller, Peter Conn and Ron Civins-Mills.

The committee is designed to aid the many citizens who care about Newton but haven't the time or inclination to become involved in organizations requiring meeting after meeting and endless debates.

We do have many of whom will be helping us with future tasks, such as contacting voters. We ask our detractors to tell us how many members Center should list before they would consider us a responsible organization. Five? Twenty-five? One hundred? The state requires only two people to constitute a political committee.

Fact 2: We have extremely limited funds. We are not well-financed and we refuse to accept contributions from any candidate or candidate's committee. What little money we have spent so far has come from a few contributors and our own pockets. Consequently, the charge of "hired guns" levelled against us is not only in bad taste, but it is also laughable.

Fact 3: Center does not wish to become involved in the mayor's race. One of our members did work for Mayor Mann in a congressional survey last year, but, another member opposed the survey and the three others weren't ivnvolved at all. The charge is not relevant.

Fact 4: We have not made accusations or slanderous statements in connection with our statistical reports. We have compiled data, recognized by many as extremely valuable, without opinionated comment. If an alderman feels his record hi is slanderous, that's his probelem, not ours.

Fact 5: We raised the question of vote validity when we discovered the aldermanic committees voted on 90 items without the presence of a quorum. The city solicitor responded with an opinion, not court precedent or statute, on the question.

One alderman kindly delivered three citiations, but only one of them, Coleman vs. Louison, dealt with the proximity of our question. It did not deal directly with the question of non-quorum activities.

Consequently, we are seeking our own legal advice on the matter. We believe the question we have raised is legitimate and responsible.

Unlike the newspaper, which, in a fit of bile, assailed us for creating issues, we believe that candidates, groups, newspapers and citizens alike have a right and responsibility to raise sincere questions in a democratic election. An honest exchange of ideas is completely proper in our political system. Malicious attacks are counter-productive to the public's right to know.

Fact 6: We aren't looking for anybody's scalp. We aren't headhunters. We don't have any targets on the Board. Most aldermen, including those who are candidates for mayor, have fared reasonably well in the studies.

We think those wwho have stooped to using the Big Lie and resorted to the tired old political trickster's bag of crying wolf are doing a disservice to the voters. It is this king of name-calling nonsense that drives people from the political process.

Rest assured that Center will continue its attempts to get statistical information out to the public so they may be better able to make well-informed decisions in October and November.

Why so angry?

To the Editor:

Ald. Sid Small's loud and lingering anger at the discovery that his aldermanic attendance record is the poorest of all his colleagues has compelled me to speak out.

From all I have read, these statistics were merely compiled from public records and presented to the general public. Ald. Small does not seem to deny their accuracy, but he does seem to deny the right to make them public.

Why? If his attendance record had not been found to be so poor, would he be so angry? It appears that Mr. Small's public embarrassment has caused him to accuse and discredit those around him in an effort to rationalize his own poor attendance and lighten the burden of his own failings.

I am not a political person, and so I must ask: Does Mr. Small believe that, unlike the other 23 aldermen, he can attend a small percentage of the meetings and still fairly represent his constituents on all issues? It seems to me that if all the aldermen performed in this manner, the collective work of the board would be totally non-productive.

"Statistics don't record effectiveness, dedication or commitment" says Mr. Small. Originally no one was questioning the quality of his aldermanic work. Now I must ask: If he was really effective, would he need to shout so loud in his own defense?

If he was truly dedicated, wouldn't he attempt to deliberate with all the aldermen on all the issues?

If he was so committed, wouldn't he have been there more often?

More on Rt. 59

To the Editor:

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to MBTA Director Robert Kiley with a copy to the Newton Graphic).

Dear Mr. Kiley:

I urge you to reconsider the proposed alteration of Rt. 59, which necessitates the elimination of MBTA service to residents in the Dedham-Brookline street area of Newton.

Although I applaud the extension of the route to Newton Centre, I must challenge the MBTA's and Newton City Planning Department's neglect of resident transportation needs.

Many people who live in the Dedham-Brookline street area of Newton are dependent upon this service.

The area's older citizens now find themselves without adequate transportation. Moreover, women accepted at Mt. Ida and placed in homes near Rt. 59 are now without vital MBTA service. Mt. Ida officials, uninformed of the change, must now, with little notice, try to implement alternative transportation.

Similiarly, I urge you and Newton city officials to restore all of the former service to Rt. 59. These residents must not be denied this service, which is vital to their transportation needs.

On June 30, a group of Newton citizens adversely affected by the route change met with your senior planner, Mary MacInnis, State Rep. Lois Pines, and myself. Many citizens stressed that the MBTA's infrequent service and poor notification of the route scheduling discourages patronage.

Further, the meeting was held at a time when many area residents were unable to attend because of vacations and other commitments.

I will be happy to meet with you or other MBTA officials to further discuss the restoration of this service.

state representative

Save the station

Re July 7 story of the burning of the little Upper Falls railroad station: At the last meeting of the Newton Historical Commission and the Newton Upper Falls Historic District Commission on July 12, no member could recall ever having seen that building properly secured.

A couple of windows only were boarded. The building has been fully open to the weather and vandals for months and has been shamefully neglected since the line was acquired by the MBTA about a year ago.

The Historical Commission has been making earnest inquiries about this building for eight months, both by letter and by phone, for the commission was approached by a resident of this city who would have very much liked to rent it for an antique shop. He was even willing to do some restoration work at his own expense.

All contacts, however, have resulted in no action and were substantially ignored.

Newton has four remaining railroad stations, all owned by the MBTA. Three are on the National Register of Historic Places. In general, any inquiries by the city's Historical Commission with regard to them have been ignored.

William Whitney, a registered architect and chairman of the Newton Upper Falls Historic District Commission, has examined the burned station inside and out and states that the fire damage appears to be superficial.

That being the case, the commission feels the MBTA should undertake immediate basic repairs so the building can be rented or sold in partial acknowledgement of its past irresponsible lack of concern and in recognition of the concerns and requests of the communities which it serves.

The little railroad station is important to the heritage of the village of Upper Falls in particular and to Newton in general, and an appropriate reuse for the building is possible and indeed was previously offered.

chairwoman

To the Editor:

Recently the Upper Falls and Emerson playgrounds, under the direction of the Newton Recreation Department, held a carnival to benefit the Jimmy fund and other charities.

We would like to thank the following stores for their donations, for without their help the carnival would not have been a success: Burger King of Waltham, Waltham Super Market, U Frame It of Waban, Rhodes Pharmacy, Waban Hardware, Waban News, Newton Centre Pizza, Newton Centre Music Shop, The Tree House, Straley's, Woolworth's, Blacker Brothers, Baskin-Robbins, Tony's Villa and Quality Market of Upper Falls.

Again, many thanks on behalf of the Newton Recreation Department staff of Upper Falls.

Luzzi heads NU task force on handicapped

Matthew Luzzi of Newton, professor and chairman of Rehabilitation and Speech at Northeastern University, has been appointed to the newly created University Task Force on the Handicapped.

The charge of the task force will be to study and evaluate the recent federal regulations, designed to carry out Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, which bans discrimination against persons with physical, mental or psychological disabilities.

The task force will also assess Northeastern's current policies, programs and facilities and make specific recommendations to improve the quality of life for handicapped students and staff.

The task force will supplement Northeastern's Committee on the Handicapped, which has been working since 1974 to make long-range recommendations and develop programs.

apartments are rented under the HUD Section 8 subsidy.

HUD will allow the developers to attempt to rent at market rate for 90-150 days, Eliachar said.

Rents for apartments for low- and moderate-income families would range from $400-$620 a month, with the tenant paying no more than 25 percent, according to Louis Garfield of Barkan Construction Co.; the rest would be subsidized.

Barkan will be constructing the buildings.

The income limits for low-income persons range from $6000 for one person to $9900 for a family of six. Moderate income is defined by HUD as $9600 for one person up to $15,400 for a family of six.

Garfield reminded the residents that the invitation for proposal said, "If feasible, the (Newton Redevelopment) Authority would prefer an equal distribution of low, moderate and market income housing."

"There are no alternatives" to the present plan, Garfield said.

Mayor Theodore Mann and former Ward 4 Alderman Louis Egelson, who acted as a watchdog over the Redevelopment Authority in its earlier years, both insisted that the developer, city officials and members of LOPAC meet with HUD to hear firsthand HUD's position on the financing and to try to comply with the neighborhood's wishes.

Harry Crosby, a member of the Planning & Development Board which held the meeting, pointed out that unless an agreement can be reached the project may not go forward because the Board of Aldermen still needs to grant permissive use.

In addition, the Planning & Development Board, successor to the Redevelopment Authority, has not signed the land-disposition agreement.

Because of vacations and other commitments, no meeting has been arranged with HUD. There may be a meeting next week.

He began his teaching career at Peirce School in 1968 and has also taught at the Countryside and Franklin schools here.

In Bogota he has handled situations from the kidnapping of a student to the evacuation of 730 students from the school because of a bomb threat.

He answered "definetely, yes" to the question of whether parents should have input in teacher evaluations.

DeRusha said, "I think the parents hire us as professionals to do a job, and they have every right to ask and know about the job."

While in Colombia he learned Spanish and developed a curriculum in teaching English as a second language which he hopes would be worthwhile in the Newton schools.

He said he left Massachusetts just when Chapter 766 was being fully implemented and admitted he had a lot of homework to do studying what is required for special education students.

DeRusha, 31, said, "All children would rather learn than not learn," and it is up to the teacher and the school system to find the way a student will learn.

He doesn't plan to make any organizational changes in the school for the one year as acting principal, but plans to be fully involved in curriculum development and teacher evaluation.

He said a report done at the beginning of last year said that science and social studies could use improving, and he plans to work on those areas if more help is needed.

from Crystal Lake to Newton-Wellesley Hospital for heat exhaustion Tuesday.

Police arrested a total of 12 persons for swimming illegally in Crystal Lake and Gath Pool in three separate incidents Saturday and early Tuesday.

Five persons arrested at Crystal Lake at about 3 a.m. Tuesday were charged with swimming in the nude, a violation of a city ordinance, and trespassing.

Those five arrested on the north shore of Crystal Lake were James H. Walsh, 20, of 31 Lawrence Ave., Chestnut Hill; Timothy J. Flynn, 23, of 66 Lee Rd., Chestnut Hill; William F. Lananche, 35, of 48 Miller Rd., Newton Centre; Brenda J. Szymanski, 23, of 52 Rawson Rd., Arlington; and Margarite Harley, 23, of 54 Rawson Rd., Arlington.

Arrested for trespassing at Gath Pool at 12:30 a.m. Tuesday were Anthony J. Cavello, 17, of 83 Central Ave., Newtonville; Dave M. DeSaulniers, 18, of 83 Central Ave., Newtonville and a 16-year-old Newton juvenile.

Also, Richard A. Proia, 17, of 652 Watertown St., Newton, was arrested for disorderly conduct at Gath Pool at the same time.

Arrested for trespassing at Crystal Lake opposite 51 Lake Ave., Newton Centre, on Saturday at 4:13 p.m. were three women and a man.

All four had been warned about 10 minutes previously by police officers. Sgt. Frank Gorgone and four other officers were on hand for the arrests.

Arrested were a 14-year-old Newton girl; Carol Bremmer, 27, of 405 South Huntington Ave., Boston; Meredith Scammell, 24, of 24 Eastburn St., Brighton; and Craig Covner, 26, of 891 Beacon St., Newton Centre.

have one car towed off Hamlet Street to allow city work forces to begin laying a water main to serve the new development.

The car towed is registered to Wayne DiCarlo, opponent of the housing construction, according to Newton police.

Another car belonging to a member of the DiCarlo family, was removed voluntarily after the first car was towed.

DiCarlo has long fought the development of the land by NCDF, an organization established by Newton clergy 10 years ago to build low- and moderate-income housing in Newton.

DiCarlo's latest effort is centered on his contention that the city does not have the legal right to construct a water line street on Hamlet Street because the is a private way.

The case is in court.

Construction Supt. August Bonazzoli, Jr., said Tuesday that vandalism at the project during construction had been about what could be expected at any construction site.

He had not heard of any threats against the buildings' he said.

Answers to all these questions and others are expected to be in hand by about the middle of August.

The CBT proposal will provide 23 one-bedroom apartments, five two-bedrooms, and seven studio apartments.

CBT will build a playground for neighborhood use on the site, separated from the building by the parking area.

The City Planning Committee preferred the CBT proposal above the others submitted and recommended its selection to the aldermanic Finance Committee, which chose not to make a decision on the plans but on the lease of the property.

Before plans can go ahead into execution, the land must be rezoned for apartments, a procedure which gives the Board of Aldermen in effect the right of approval.

Estimated construction cost of the project is $742,000.

Jury reform law signed

A legislative proposal that State Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) offered when he was a member of the Judiciary Committee more than three years ago was signed into law last week by Governor Dukakis.

Mofenson, now House Chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, had developed the original jury reform legislation in order to assure that grand and trial juries be selected "from a fair and randomly-drawn cross section of the population."

After two years of trying to implement jury reform on a statewide basis, Mofenson scaled down his original bill to use Suffolk County as a laboratory for jury reform. The legislature adopted Mofenson's idea, changing the site to Middlesex County.

"I am proud to have played a role in the development of this legislation," Mofenson said. "If the pilot program here is successful, all juries throughout Massachusetts can be brought into the system and this can ultimately reduce state costs for juror payment significantly."

"At present there are more than 38 different exemptions and exclusions from jury duty written into the law," Mofenson said. "Jury duty is generally for a whole month, and many qualified people are excluded because of the hardships involved. As a result, we don't get a jury that really represents the whole community."

The shorter service is intended to involve more people in civic responsibility and make it easier for professional people and the self-employed to be away from their regular activity and less of a burden on employers whose workers are off the job sitting on juries.

Part of the plan calls for employers to pay their workers' salaries for up to three days. In return companies would benefit from the fact that the time served would be much shorter. Furthermore, with the employer payment provision, the direct government expense will be reduced. For both employees and the self-employed compensation from the County will commence on the fourth day - at a rate of $40 per day. The new law will take effect on Jan. 1, 1978.

IRS needs tax people

The Internal Revenue Service is looking for 85 good people.

The federal tax agency wants to hire them as taxpayer service representatives on a seasonal or part-time basis.

These persons, whether they are housewives or retired people, will be employed mainly during the tax season which runs from December through April. They may work a full eight-hour day or part-time such as 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The seasonal employees may also work during the summer to fill in for permanent employees on vacation, work one or two days a week during peak periods or to attend training during non-peak periods.

Because of the seasonal and part-time nature of the work, persons looking for other than permanent full-time employment should be interested in this unique job opportunity and must apply by July 27.

Taxpayer service representatives provide assistance to taxpayers in person and on the telephone by answering questions and helping fill out tax returns and supporting schedules.

Interested persons should visit the U. S. Civil Service Commission Office, 3 Center Plaza, Boston, MA, 02108; or call Civil Service at 223-2571 or use the toll-free number 1-800-882-1621 and file application form BNR-607 before July 27.

Orlandella was represented at the meeting by James Farrell, a lawyer who works with Walsh. Farrell agreed with the residents and their lawyer, Joseph McVeigh, that some mistakes had been made, and said, "I'm not endorsing that kind of tactics," but , "Nowhere is it written that a tenant stays in an apartment in perpetuity."

The Orlandella plan is to have all the apartments, which are selling in the upper $20,000s to lower $30,000s, sold by October.

Top rent now being paid is $260.

Walsh said Tuesday that the owner has hired a woman that will be on the premises to help tenants relocate, has offered to help with moving expenses, and has offered tenants a 10 percent discount if they want to buy their apartments.

Obtaining a mortgage, even at the age of 75, should be "no problem," Walsh said, because the loan would be secured by the apartment. While most mortgage down payments are 20 percent, Walsh said he believes some Newton banks would be willing to accept as little as 10 percent down, where there is financial distress.

While the owner and his lawyers are proceeding with their plans to convert to condominiums, and it appears that they will not grant extra time to tenants or deviate from their timetable in any way, aldermen and state representatives are trying to protect the tenants and avoid more situations like this one.

Suggestions were made to try rushing bills through the state legislature, invalidating the condominium plan through zoning and other technicalities, court action, buying the property for municipal housing for the elderly, and more.

A state bill is essentially the only way to control condominiums, however, State Rep. Lois Pines said at the meeting. She is the coauthor of a bill that would give some measure of protection to tenants, but the bill has been defeated repeatedly.

The meeting concluded with an 8-0 agreement that although the situation is deplorable, there is little that the city can do except urge immediate passage of a condominium control bill at the state level.

propriate documentation from DCA and MHFA.

Commissioner Donald Ferreri voted for the motion, although he has said publicly that he disagrees with the proposed tenant selection system.

Chairman Stephen Buchbinder expressed concern about the two conditions laid down by DCA, but NCDF Executive Director Alan Schlesinger said he believes there will be very few people who fit into the two categories cited for preference.

Secretary of Community Affairs William Flynn was to meet this week with representatives from DCA and MHFA to decide which agency has authority to give final approval to the tenant selection process that has been worked out.

Schlesinger, who was not included in the meeting, said earlier this week that he did not yet know the results from that session.

As the HSC and NCDF have set things up, advertisements for the low-income housing will go out to area newspapers.

Brochures will be available to people at the HSC office, 2000 Commonwealth Ave, Auburndale. And, personal notes will be mailed to all prospective tenants on the HSC's waiting lists.

Interested applicants will come to the site on Hamlet Street, Newton Centre, between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. on Aug 7 and 8 to tour the units and to file their applications at the NCDF site office there.

The "randomizing" of applicants will be done shortly after applications close - either the night of Aug 8 or on Aug 9.

Selection of tenants will be geared to the number of bedrooms needed - two, three or four.

Final selections ought to be ready about Aug 30, Schlesinger said.

Buchbinder asked that the HSC staff allow anyone else to apply from Aug 9 on and be "date stamped" for a waiting list for the 20 low-income units.

Those applicants would go onto the waiting list after the people who apply Aug 7 and 8 and do not get into the 20 units.

The other 30 of NCDF's 50-unit complex are market and moderate income level.

Schlesinger said last week that NCDF already has two deposit checks and two additional interested parties for those 30 units, after an ad that ran in area newspapers recently.

The Newton Community Development Foundation is a private, non-profit organization formed in the late 1960's to build low and moderate income housing in Newton.

Of 10 sites originally selected for such housing, the one on Hamlet Street is the only one to see fruition of any construction.

Mid to late September is the target date for occupancy.

ago he decided to switch careers, and he began optometry school.

He now has completed his study and is waiting for his license, so he can open a practice in Newton sometime this fall.

"The future in research did not look good," Loewenstein said, because of the difficulty in obtaining funding.

He knows of only one other person around Boston who has done what he has done for the sake of transportation, and that man, from Melrose, is now on the MBTA payroll as deputy director of the commuter rail division.

People constantly ask Loewenstein whether he works for the MBTA, to which he replies, "No. I'm doing this because I believe in it."

Officer injured during Upper Falls incident

Officer Owen Burns has been off duty from the police force following a fight at the Upper Falls Playground during which he suffered a "severe concussion," according to a Newton-Wellesley Hospital doctor, police said.

Warren C. Bosworth, 19, of 210 River St., Waltham, was arrested at the scene early Friday morning for being a disorderly person and for assault and battery upon a police officer.

Police received a call of a disturbance at the playground, 1129 Chestnut St., at 12:41 a.m. Friday.

Officer Burns and John J. Cox, Jr., saw 10 cars and about 20 persons at the field drinking and making noise when they arrived.

The officers twice told the group to leave, police said, but they refused.

Burns approached one man who had begun to yell obscenities at the police, and the man pushed Burns against a car.

A fight ensued in which Burns hit his head on a boulder and banged his knee on a rock, police said.

Dr. Douglas Wooldridge at Newton-Wellesley Hospital treated Officer Burns and described his injuries to police as a "severe concussion and a badly injured knee," according to police.

Burns is expected to be back on duty next week, Chief William Quinn said Monday.

Physician, dentist federation meets

Zoning violations found are fewer than expected

Zoning violations found in a survey by building inspectors show "less of a violation rate than we expected," Building Commissioner Allan Fraser commented this week.

Results of a survey in small areas in Newton Corner and Newtonville were presented to the City Planning Committee Monday night.

Chairman Terry Morris had asked for the survey so that the committee could have an idea of the extent of the violations before it begins to tackle the problem of illegal apartments.

In Newton Corner building inspectors visited 33 houses in the area bounded by Centre, Pearl, Carleton and Bacon streets.

In Newtonville the area inspected is bounded by Walnut, Harvard, and Bowers streets and Madison Avenue. Again, 33 houses were involved.

Among the 33 houses designated for inspection in Newton Corner, three illegal apartments were found. In Newtonville six illegal apartments were found. Access could not be gained to all the houses.

A dwelling unit (apartment) is one that provides separate sleeping, living and sanitary facilities.

The number of single-family units in the Newton Corner survey area has decreased by one since 1950; two-families have decreased by three; and the number of three-unit dwellings has increased by two.

In the Newtonville test area, 11 single-family houses have been lost, and there are five additional two-families, two three-families, and three with five units.

The six violations are among the 10 multiple units' Fraser said.

The purpose of the survey, and whatever policy is developed from the results, is not simply to correct zoning violations, according to City Planning Committee Chairman Morris.

Sooner or later the city is going to have to deal with houses that have so-called illegal apartments in them. Morris has several approaches to use as solutions.

One might be the block-by-block rezoning of certain areas of the city, depending on conditions found by a full inspection. the city.

Another had already been approved by the Land Use Committee. Morris' amendment to the zoning ordinances that will allow conversiom of single-family houses to two-family use and two-families to three-families, when land area is sufficient, may be voted on the Board of Aldermen July 25.

Morris also has suggested that it may be necessary to rezone larger areas.

A full-scale, complete inspection of all houses in the city done by present manpower might take several years, by which time much of the information would be outdated.

In a report on complaints, Fraser said the Building Department spends 20 percent of its time on zoning complaints at a cost of $20,830.

Police believe key used in Gateway Center breaks

Thieves are suspected to have used a master key to enter eight offices at 1 Gateway Center, Newton Corner, and take over $1000 in cash and equipment over the weekend, police reported.

All the offices entered were closed from at least 4:30 p.m. Friday and 7:50 a.m. Monday, police said.

Missing from the office of the J.F. White Company was $250 in cash.

The Great American Insurance Company was missing $25 in cash. The intruders tried unsuccessfully to pry open a safe.

The Keydata Corporation was missing $400 after a desk was forced open.

A hammer valued at $450 was taken from the Reardon Electric Co., and a desk was forced open.

Thieves tried to enter the office Osserman and Garfinkle but were unsuccessful.

Four other offices were entered and desks were forced open in most of them, but nothing was reported missing, police said.

A $50 calculator was reported missing following a break at the Eliot Church, 474 Centre St., Newton Corner, over the weekend. There were no signs of forced entry.

Francis Tom of 23 Maple St., Auburndale, reported that sometime between 10 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Sunday a camera, two flash units, and six rolls of film were taken from a van. The items were worths $320.

Vandals entered the snack-bar near the Chestnut Hill Country Club's pool and stole food' a radio, and a hose sometime between midnight and 8 a.m. Sunday, police said.

The mattresses for 20 chaise lounges were slashed and thrown into the pool, police said, and missing were various amounts of yogurt, ice cream, hot dogs, and hamburgers. Newton'

At 8:56 a.m. Saturday James Salter of 30 Madoc St., Newton Centre, reported to police that a stereo was missing from his home. Police determined that the intruders entered through the rear basement window. Three rooms were ransacked.

The office of the Boy Scouts of America, 2044 Beacon St., Waban, was entered through the boiler room sometime Thursday night or Friday morning before 8:20 a.m., police said. All offices were searched through and $2.70 was reported missing.

Some elderly, low-income may get aid for old oil bills

The city of Newton, through its Human Services Department, is participating in a Heating Bill Assistance Program in cooperation with Action for Boston Community Development (ABCD), Inc.

The program is designed to help low-income families with the burden of overdue heating bills that have resulted from the past severe winter.

The program will pay overdue heating bills of up to $250 for a limited number of people, with payments being made directly to heating companies.

The state of Massachusetts has been allocated $5 million by the federal government, with $1.2 million channelled through ABCD for Boston, Brookline, Dedham, Needham, Newton and Waltham.

The Department of Human Services in Newton will process applications for Newton residents. First priority will go to senior citizens 65 and over. Applications will be processed through Aug. 5.

Persons may qualify for assistance with an overdue heating bill if they meet the following requirements:

1. The bill was incurred between Oct. 1, 1976, through June 1, 1977.

2. The bill is overdue at least 45 days.

3. The applicant's total gross yearly income for the period June 1, 1976, to May 31, 1977, is at or below $3713 for one person.

For a family of two, income limit is $4913; three, $6113; four, $7313; five $8513; and six, $9713. For family units with more than six members, add $200 for each additional member.

If the sole source of income is derived from Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and-or Social Security Assistance (SSA), a person is eligible for this program. Families receiving public assistance are also eligible.

4. There is a need: heat has been shut off, there has been a threat of a heating shutoff, or delivery of home heating oil has been refused because of an unpaid bill.

All applicants will be required to verify both income and need by obtaining letters from their heating company and employer, or a statement from the Social Security or Welfare office.

Upon completion of the forms, the Department of Human Services will forward them to ABCD, Inc., for final processing. ABCD will determine the most needy families and these families will have their overdue heating bill paid, up to $250. ABCD will notify all applicants in September and inform them of their status.

Newton residents seeking more information about this program should contact Steven Moskowitz, assistant director, Department of Human Services, 244-4700, ext. 266.

Raging fire

SOUTHGATE, Ky. (UPI) — A raging fire swept through the packed Beverly Hills supper club in this Cincinnati suburb late Saturday night. At least 120 persons were known dead in the nation's worst blaze in three decades and officials said the final toll may exceed 200.

A capacity Memorial holiday weekend crowd of 3,500 was in the nightclub when the blaze erupted. An electrical failure moments later threw the building into darkness as panicstricken patrons tried to flee through dense smoke.

Southgate Fire Chief David Riesenberg said the death count may reach 200 or more when cranes are called in to lift debris from the fire-ravaged club, which is located on a hill in Northern Kentucky across the Ohio River from Cincinnati.

"My men took a head count of 120 bodies," he said. "There are still more in there but we can't get to them.

"Apparently the peeople got confused," said Riesenberg. "Obviously they panicked. The place was loaded with smoke and flames and the people couldn't find the exit.

"The lawn is full of bodies," said Riesenberg. "We're pulling the bodies out and putting them out on the lawn."

The blaze erupted while a comedy team, sharing the bill with headlining singer John Davidson, was performing.

"John Davidson had not appeared yet," said Riesenberg. "He was not hurt. In fact, he helped pull some people out."

"The fire apparently hit the electric system and the lights went out," said Jim Schworer, a spokesman for the club. "It was apparently dark in there and that was a key factor. People couldn't see what they were doing and the smoke poured in."

The known death toll was the worst in any blaze in the United States since July 6, 1944 when 168 persons died in a circus tent fire in Hartford, Conn. It was the worst nightclub blaze since Nov. 28, 1942 when 491 persons died in the Cocoanut Grove fire in Boston.

A second major fire was reported at the Duro Paper Co. in Ludlow, Ky., about five miles northwest of the supper club. It was not immediately known whether there was a connection between the two fires.

Wayne Dammert, maitre d' at the Beverly Hills, said he thought the blaze started in the Zebra Room — one of the club's 21 party rooms.

"We screamed for people to get back because they had hundreds on each side. They were all jammed back. There were doors going to the roof. We tried our damndest to kick that door off. We couldn't get the thing off. The lights went off and all the people panicked. They couldn't breathe.

"The area where I was in... my people were very orderly, very calm. They got down through the kitchen and out of the kitchen. I think most of the dead people were down in the kitchen."

Richard Schaftlein, 32, his wife Linda, 28, brother Carroll and his wife Joyce, all from Louisville, were in the club at the time of the fire.

"We were in the Cabaret room," said Schaftlein. "I would say the total in the place was 3,000 or 4,000 people packed like sardines. Just before John Davidson was to appear on stage, two comedians (Teter and McDonald) were telling jokes.

"Then this boy waiter came out on stage, took the microphone and said 'there's a small fire, everbody stay calm.'" related Schaftlein. "The two comics were terrific, saying things like 'we've had a lot of people walk out on us, but this is ridiculous.' Then everybody started walking out.

"We were lucky we were about 10 yards from an exit." said Schaftlein. "Then everybody in that damn room was trying to get out the exit. After we got out the door, people started pushing and smoke was coming through the door. I looked back and saw a woman in a red dress covered with dirt and smoke."

A temporary morgue was set up at the old Fort Thomas, Ky., Veterans Hospital.

Fire departments from eight surrounding communites where rushed to the club which had a main ballroom and dining room where Davidson was performing. This was in addition to the 21 private dining rooms.

Police chief says vigilance still needed despite crime decrease

Police Chief William F. Quinn, commenting on the latest FBI report of an overall 9 percent decrease in crime, hopes that complacency on the part of the average person does not contribute to a reversal of the trend.

Quinn said, "We in Newton have experienced a decline equal to or better than, the FBI figures for the past three years. However, if in any 100 crimes, we have seen nine fewer, we still have 91 that require maintained concern, alertness and vigilance."

The Chief added, "The FBI attributes the reduction to unusual weather earlier in the year; Boston area police educators believe it to be improved police activity due to advanced teaching; others believe it to be the maturing of younger criminals, who now accept the mores of society."

"In any event," Quinn said, "I accept all these theories plus the desire of residents to remain free of being victimized, as shown by their interest in past crime prevention programs."

"In our Newton community the partnership between our police department and its citizens, the efforts of the Mayor's Crime Prevention Commission, the assistance of the Auxiliary Police, the willingness of our citizens to participate in Crime Check, Operation Identification, surveys of property for security, and installation of home alarms have cut down on housebreaks. In short, it has been a cooperative effort. However, we must maintain this effort."

Quinn continued, "In this direction, we have instituted a number of pilot Neighborhood Watch programs in West Newton, Auburndale, and Newton Highlands, indicating a desire for a comprehensive villagewide program of Neighborhood Watch and Crime Check. To this point we are planning, through the Bureau of Community Service and soon-to-be-acquired CETA employees, a Neighborhood Assistance Program that should be self-perpetuating in crime prevention and crime reduction."

NASA honors Andy Armsby

Andy Armsby, 10, of 16 Presscott St. Newton, was recently honored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Boy Scouts of America for his contribution to the NASA project "The World of Tomorrow."

Andy, a Cub Scout with Pack 331, Our Lady's Church, designed and built a space craft model which would be launched into outer space, be self-sustaining and spin constantly to create its own gravity, enabling scientists and their families to spend long periods of time aboard the craft.

An Award of Merit Certificate was given to Andy on behalf of NASA and the Cub Scout Division, Boy Scouts of America.

A Westwood doctor raises exotic orchids

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Staff writer

What do you do when you are fed up with the world?

Dr. Harry Bailey of Westwood, a radiologist, has a hobby to fill in for moments like that. He raises exotic, delicate, beautiful orchids.

Although orchids conjure up images of corsages prepared by florists, there are roughly 30,000 species including the "Lady Slippers" which grow in many local yards.

"Orchids do not need steamy, jungle heat to grow," observed Bailey pointing out they are found from the tropics to the Artic Circle.

While most people believe orchids require a great amount of care, Bailey says they are hardy "and can stand a great deal of neglect." One of the most beautiful flowers in the plant kingdom, they "tend to flower in the late fall."

Originally from England, Bailey became interested in gardening here. However, after seven and one-half months of winter, an avid gardner can become frustrated.

A doctor he knew was bringing in orchid plants and leaving them on the receptionist's desk at the hospital. Intrigued, Bailey bought a few and "became addicted...they are so fascinating and when your first orchid flowers, that is one of your great moments."

Bailey's interest led him to join the American Orchid Society in Cambridge which he says has 17,000 members. He also belongs to the Massachusetts Orchid Society which has over 200 members who meet and exchange or sell orchids. "Many firms offer orchids (to sell) and they are not that difficult or expensive to acquire," said Bailey.

He says the orchids will grow anywhere and you do not need your own greenhouse although Bailey does have one. He also grows orchids in his basement "taking advantage of the natural warmth and not wasting energy."

Bailey has about 350 orchid plants with 30-40 different species. He estimates that it takes him one-half hour nightly to care for them.

Heat is not a necessity for orchids and Bailey says they can survive "quite happily" in 40 or 65 degree temperatures. He pointed out that the florist's variety must be subjected to freezing temperatures before they flower.

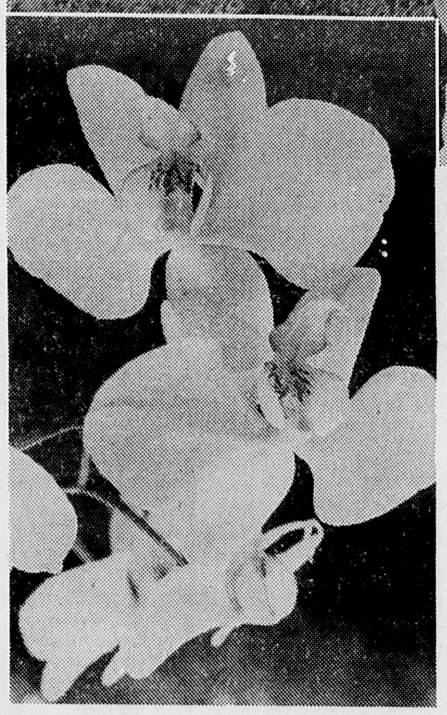

Many doctors, he said, are interested in gardening and in orchids. Perhaps, he speculated, that might be because "if something goes wrong, you don't have to lose sleep."

Bailey and his wife, Kathleen, have lived in Westwood for 20 years. They are planning to move to Chestnut Hill shortly. Following the move, they will continue to nurture their orchids in the hopes of having some to display at the Eastern Orchid Congress this fall.

The Congress will be held November 3-6 at the Sheraton-Boston and there will be exhibitors from all over the United States and some international exhibits. The event will be run by the Massachusetts Orchid Society and Bailey promises "it will knock your eyes out."

Dr. Harry Bailey holds orchid plants in contrasting sizes. The small one is a full-size orchid from Columbia. The large one is "Renansdtylis, Queen Emma," which, when grown, will reach 10-14 feet. It is from tropical Southeast Asia.

"Phalaeonopsis, Pride of Hawaii," is also called the "Moth Orchid."

This is the reader's column. Send recipes or questions to Diane Taylor, c-o Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Teach your children to cook this summer and get in, at the same time, some valuable lessons, on nutrition, following directions and even cleaning up. Summertime is an excellent time to grow and to learn new skills. A cook book, just published by Doubleday, titled "The Kids' 50-State Cookbook" is an invaluable aid and a nice gift. Written by Aileen Paul, it includes excellent beginning recipes with clear directions. Here's a sample:

ORANGE SHERBERT

3-4 oranges
1-cup sugar
¾ cup corn syrup
2 cups water

1. Grate orange rind, enough for one tablespoon. (You can use the kind in a jar also.) 2. Measure and pour sugar, corn syrup, orange rind, and two cups of water into saucepan. Place over low heat and stir until sugar is melted. 3. Remove from heat and cool syrup. 4. Squeeze two cups of orange juice and add to cooled syrup. 5. Pour into refrigerator ice trays. Place in freezer and freeze until firm. 6. Place mixing bowl and beaters in refrigerator to chill. 7. Remove frozen mixture from tray to bowl and break up with spoon. Beat with electric mixer or egg beater until it becomes a thick mush. Spoon back into trays. Return to refrigerator and freeze again. Makes 4 servings.

GERMAN SCRAMBLED EGGS

6 eggs
¼ cup cream or milk
2-4 tablespoons butter
2 cooked frankfurters
2 teaspoons onion salt ⅛ tsp
⅛ teaspoon pepper

1. Break eggs into medium-sized bowl. Add cream and beat lightly. 2. Melt butter in fry pan over low heat, enough to cover bottom. 3. While butter is melting, cut frankfurters into thin circles. 4. Pour eggs into skillet. Cook until they begin to thicken. Sprinkle with onion salt and pepper and add frankfurter circles. 5. Continue to cook, stirring gently until soft and fluffy. Makes 6 servings.

RHODE ISLAND JOHNNY CAKES

1 cup white corn meal
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1¼ cup boiling water
small amount of shortening to grease pan

1. Measure and mix corn meal, salt, and sugar. 2. Add boiling water gradually to make a thick batter. 3. Grease griddle with shortening and place on medium to high heat. 4. Pour ¼ cup batter on griddle for each cake. Bake cakes on one side until golden brown; turn and bake on other side. Serve with butter, or butter and syrup. Makes 12 cakes. Note: molasses may be used instead of sugar; milk instead of water or along with water.

The following recipe was a winner at the annual Delmarva Chicken Festival held since 1947.

DELMARVA CHEESY CHICKEN

1 cup cornflake crumbs
¼ cup grated parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons parsley flakes
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika (optional)
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup butter or margarine
1 broiler-fryer chicken (2½-3 pounds) cut up

1. Lightly grease baking sheet or shallow baking dish. 2. Measure all ingredients, except the butter and chicken and mix in a heavy brown paper or clean plastic bag. 3. Melt butter in suacepan. Remove from heat. 4. Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. 5. Dip chicken in melted butter with fork or tongs. Drop two or three pieces of chicken into crumb mixture. Shake bag to coat chicken. 6. Place chicken on baking sheet or in baking diash. 7. Bake one hour or until brown and tender when pierced with fork. 4-5 servings.

THE KITCHEN CORNER

Some recipes from Elena Bean of Westwood

Elena Bean

Elena Bean and her husband own the Bean farm in Westwood where Mrs. Bean has a farm stand. There, at this time of year, most people are coming to buy the fresh harvest. The questions, most often asked, are what to do with the corn and how long do you cook it? Along with that information are some favorite recipes Mrs. Bean is sharing with readers. Some of the other recipes, for pies and food she sells, still remain a secret.

CORN

Drop the corn, after they are cleaned and peeled, into a pot of salted water (about 3-4 inches of water.) When the water returns to a boil, let it boil for about two minutes and the corn is done. Mrs. Bean stresses this is for fresh corn. Serve with butter or margarine.

CARROTS

Boil fresh carrots till fork tender. Drain water and add butter or margarine and maple syrup to taste.

FRESH TOMATOES

Cut tomato in half, removing the stem portion. Sprinkle the tomato with salt, pepper, oregano, bread crumbs and crumbled cheddar cheese. Put the cheese on top. Add ⅛ tsp. oil on tomato. Broil until the cheese melts (about one minute) or bake in oven. Bake at 350 degrees F. until the cheese melts.

HARVARD STYLE BEETS

12 beets (fresh)
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoon cornstarch
¼ cup white vinegar or cidar vinegar
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons butter

Wash and cut off all but one inch of the top. Don't cut off the root. Cook the beets whole with salt in enough water to cover beets, cook until tender; this can take up to 45 minutes. Once fork tender, cool under cold water, and slip off the skin.

Mix in saucepan, sugar, cornstarch. Add cup vinegar and water. Boil for five minutes. Add beets. Let stand for 30 minutes. Before serving, bring to boiling point and add two tablespoons butter.

HOT ASPARAGUS CANAPES

20 slices of thin sliced Pepperidge Farm or Arnold's bread
3 ounces bleu cheese
8 ounces cream cheese (softened)
1 egg
20 spears of asparagus
½ lb. margarine

Trim the crusts of the bread. Flatten with a rolling pin. In a bowl, blend the bleu cheese, cream cheese and egg. Separately, cook the asparagus. Spread the cheese and egg mixture on the bread. Place an asparagus spear on the center of each piece and rull up. The cheese will make the bread stick.

In a saucepan, place the margarine and melt. With tongs, take each rolled up canape and dip in melted margarine. Place the canapes on a cookie sheet and freeze. When frozen, cut in ½. Remove from sheet with a spatula and store in plastic bags. When ready to use, bake at 400 degrees F. for 15 minutes.

CARROT CAKE WITH FROSTING

1 cup whole wheat flour
1 cup white flour
1½-2 cups sugar (depending on taste)
½ teaspoon salt
1 tsp. each baking powder and soda
1 tsp. cinnamon
1½ cup vegetable oil
4 eggs
2 cups grated carrot
½ cup walnuts (optional)

Sift dry ingredients. Add oil to eggs and best well. Add dry ingredients and mix well. Fold in carrots, and walnuts. Pour into tube pan or 8 inch or 9 inch greased and floured cake pan. Use the 8-9 inch pan if you want a thicker or higher cake. Bake for 30-35 minutes in 350 degree F. oven. Test with toothpick to see if done.

FROSTING

3 oz. package cream cheese
1 box powdered confectioner's sugar
¼ cup margarine
3-4 tablespoons milk
1 tsp. vanilla

Cream cheese and margarine and one-third of the box of sugar till smooth. Add rest of sugar, milk, vanilla. Beat till creamy. A tasty frosting.

Weddings

Miss Ross weds Mr. Giordano in con-celebrated nuptial mass

At a recent con-celebrated nuptial mass in the Sacred Heart Church in Newton Centre, Miss Dorothy Charlene Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Francis Ross of Norwood Ave., became the bride of Mr. Robert A. Giordano, son of Mr. William Giordano of Somerville. Celebrants for the service were Capt. Robert J. Ross, U.S.A.F., the bride's uncle; Msgr. William Granville, Rev. Donald Clifford, and Rev. Gerard Barry.

The bride wore a gown of chiffon and lace, an illusion veil attached to a crochet and beaded tiara, created by her aunt, Miss Mary Gallagher.

Mrs. James Stewart was matron of honor for her sister. Miss Judith Steffens, Mrs. Judith Muldoon and Miss Linda O'Neil were bridesmaids.

The best man was Mr. William Webber. Ushers were Mr. Michael Ross, Mr. Thomas Ross, Mr. James Muldoon, Mr. Al Wattine, and Mr. Richard Leger. Stanley and James Ross were the altar boys.

Following a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will make their home in Waltham.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Giordano

Nancy Sue Aronson and James Rubenstein are married

Miss Nancy Sue Aronson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman C. Aronson of Newton, became the bride of James Stuart Rubenstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Rubenstein, also of Newton, on Sunday, June 26.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rabbi Robert Miller at Temple Beth Avodah, Newton Centre.

Miss Bunny Aronson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Steven J. Aronson, Mrs. Howard Rubenstein, sisters-in-law of the bride, and Miss Hildy Fentin and Miss Terry Lane.

Howard Rubenstein was best man for his brother. Ushers were Steven J. Aronson, Joel Marcus, Michael Oshry and Paul Sheroff.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple are living in Framingham.

TOPS shows gratitude to N-W Hospital

A thank-you gift has been presented to Newton-Wellesley Hospital by the Newton TOPS Club (Take Off Pounds Sensibly).

Presented to Helen Chamberlain, R.N., a hospital head nurse, by TOPS representative Rocco J. Ruggiero, the gift expresses appreciation for a collective loss of 440 pounds during the past six months, as well as gratitude for use of a hospital conference room.

The Newton Chapter of the national weight loss club has met weekly at Newton-Wellesley for over a year. Club members are encouraged to change their eating habits and lose pounds slowly, with the goal to reach their desired weight level and remain there.

Mr. and Mrs. Silverstein honored at farewell party

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Silverstein of 280 Boylston St., Chestnut Hill, were recently honored at a surprise farewell dinner party at the Sidney Hill Country Club. The Silversteins have been residents of Newton for 22 years and are now retiring to Hallendale, Fla.

The party was given by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Berman of Natick and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Silverstein of Fairfield, Conn. Present at the party were their three grandchildren, brothers and sisters, and other relatives and friends.

Group to work on creation of Historic Seaport in Boston

The Historical Museum of New England today announced the formation of an organizing committee for the creation of The Historic Seaport of New England. The committee is made up of leaders of the Boston business and civic communities.

They are:

John Q. Adams, Dover, senior vice president, John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company;

Nelson Aldrich, Marblehead, architect, Aldrich-Pounder and Associates;

Philip H. Bradley, Lincoln, vice president, IBM Corporation;

Henry Dormitzer, Cohasset, treasurer, Historical Museum of New England; chairman of the board, Electro Powerpacs Corporation;

Robert Jerrett Jr., Marblehead, president, Historical Museum of New England; financial consultant;

Capt. Arthur Knight, Cohasset, vice president, Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates;

Peter B. Ward, Manchester, assistant vice president, Massachusetts Financial Services.

The Historical Museum of New England is presently working with the Boston Redevelopment Authority and the National Park Service toward the development of The Historic Seaport as part of the redevelopment plan at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

The plan calls for the preservation and adaptive reuse of historically-significant buildings as educational and recreational facilities. Included in the proposal are plans for a maritime museum, a water-filled model of Boston Harbor in the 1830's, a public docking facility, and a permanent berthing place for visiting tall ships from around the world.

Congressional support has been promised for the concept of the Historic Seaport.

'Roberta' brings 30's to Newton Free Library

Nostalgia will be the mood at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, Thursday, July 28, at 7:15 p.m. and Friday, July 29, at 10 a.m. at Newtonville branch, 345 Walnut St., when film fans view "Roberta" a 1935 musical starring Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, Irene Dunne and Randolph Scott.

Splendors and delights of this film include the dancing of Astaire and Rogers, Jerome Kern's music including "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes," and "Lovely To Look At" and the dazzling fashions, the height of chic and allure during the thirties.

The film is a romantic musical about an All-American hero who travels to Paris with a collegiate band, becomes the proprietor of a fashionable shop, and falls in love with his co-partner. There is a great deal of romantic confusion, comedy and, of course, a happy ending. Try to spot a blond Lucille Ball in a minor role.

The free summer film series concludes with the screening of two Harold Lloyd comedies "Hot Water" and "Safety Last" on Aug. 25 and Aug. 26.

Film fans of all ages are invited to enjoy these films at the Newton Free Library. In the fall the weekly free film series resumes on Wednesday evenings.

Art with a Circus theme for children at Danforth

Registrations for August arts and crafts classes at the Danforth Museum School are being taken through July 27.

The three-week session, the second to be held this summer, has openings for adults and children, and runs from Aug. 9 to Aug. 25.

"Under the Big Top," for boys and girls in grades two through seven, consists of two and three-dimensional art activities around a circus theme. The classes will meet three times a week from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. under the supervision of teachers Mary Mead and Gill Frazier.

The museum is offering day classes in seven media for adults and teens including ceramics, drawing, enameling, jewelry, painting, silkscreening and weaving. Classes will meet twice a week on Tuesdays and Thursdays either in the morning, afternoon or evening. A printmaking workshop on Wednesdays will focus on collagraph and other experimental techniques.

Courses are taught by experienced professional artist—teachers and are open to students of all levels.

Nearly 120 students are enrolled in the current session which ends July 21. On that morning the amazing Mr. "J" will perform for the boys and girls in "Under the Big Top" whose paintings, sculpture and drawing work will be on exhibition during an open house for parents, friends and visitors. The public is invited to attend between noon and 12:30 p.m.

Information on the August program is available by calling the museum at 620-0050.

Hanscom Air Force Base's first—Eunice C. Cronin of Newton Centre will attend Harvard's Mid-Career Program. The program offers advanced studies tailored to the individual careers of managers in civil, diplomatic and military services. Pictured, Ms. Cronin examines a celestial sphere used by personnel to relate the position of rockets and satellites to the location of stars and planets.

Air Force will send Ms. Cronin to Harvard

Eunice C. Cronin of 1453 Centre St., Newton Centre, will be Hanscom Air Force Base's first employee to attend Harvard University's one year full-time Mid-Career Program.

Ms. Cronin was nominated for long-term training by the Commander of the Air Force Geophysics Laboratory. She is employed at the Laboratory as chief of the Analysis and Simulation Branch. On conclusion of the program, she will receive a master's degree in public administration.

Harvard University's Mid-Career Program offers opportunities for advanced study to civil, diplomatic and military services. Its requirements permit students to select courses tailored to individual careers.

Ms. Cronin's first government employment was as an engineer with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Since she transferred to the Air Force at Hanscom in 1960, she has been a mathematician in various organizations.

A graduate of Trinity College in Washington, D.C., with a bachelor of arts degree in mathematics-physics, Ms. Cronin obtained her master's degree in engineering management from Northeastern University.

During her Air Force civil service career, she has been active in many employee morale-related activities. Beginning as an investigator for the Equal Employment Opportunity Program, she moved on to become a counselor for three years and later was appointed coordinator for the base's Federal Women's Program from 1972-76. In recognition of Hanscom's successful program, she was awarded the Air Force Systems Command Certificate of Merit and the United States Air Force Distinguished Equal Employment Opportunity Award.

Since 1975, Ms. Cronin has served as a representative on the Air Force Geophysics Laboratory Civilian Policy Board. She is a lecturer on Hanscom's Human Relations Education Program, chairwoman of the Boston Federal Executive Board's Women's Opportunity Committee and part-time professor under the board's participation program with Massachusetts Bay Community College.

Lillian Backman of Brookline, newly appointed director of volunteers at the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute, Boston, has a goal of increasing the involvement of SFCI as an integral part of the Greater Boston community.

According to Mrs. Backman, volunteer opportunities exist at the reception desk, in clerical work, in the clinic and in patient escort duties. For further information contact Lillian Backman, director of volunteer services, at 732-3307.

Mrs. Backman is a graduate of Simmons College, attended the Simmons School of Social Work and received a master of science degree from Lesley College.

campus note

Ellen R. Korb of Newton Centre, a recent graduate of UMassBoston, summa cum laude, was a recipient of senior honors from the department ofsociology and was elected to the national honors society in sociology, Alpha Kappa Delta. She also received a departmental prize for distinction in Latin American studies. She will attend the graduate school of social work and social research at Bryn Mawr College in September.

Bloodmobile

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at E.D.C., 55 Chapel St., Nonantum, on Friday, July 22, from 10 a.m. to 3:45 p.m.

Donors are asked to call the Red Cross chapter house (527-6000) for an appointment, to allow for an even flow of donors and prevent waiting lines. Donations take about one hour and can save four lives.

Anyone available to work at the bloodmobile should also call 527-6000.

Arts festival gets underway tonight

The Charles River Creative Arts Festival, all events free, opens Thursday, July 21, with a new musical comedy, "Buzz On" at 8 p.m., at the New Festival Theatre at Charles River School in Dover.

There will be a second performance of "Buzz On," by David Downing's playwright class with music by Tom Megan, at 8 p.m., Friday, July 22. Direction is by Kippy Dewey; choreography by Ann Brown. Starting at 11 a.m. on Friday, July 22, will be an all-day arts festival with visual arts exhibits and demonstrations as well as performances of gymnastics, modern dance, and jazz, bell ringing' musical ensembles, choral music, improvisational, story theater, and pantomine, fencing and a one-act play matinee musical at 2 p.m., "The Incredible Jungle Journey of Fenda Maria," directed by Jane Ernst, plus many other features.

The Apple Kitchen will be open all day for gourmet meals and snacks. All events are performed and mounted by boys and girls 7 - 15 and professional staff. The Charles River Creative Arts Program is supported by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency in Washington, D.C. Call for arts festival schedule: 785-0068 or 785-1260.

Dedham's most famous trial, Sacco-Vanzetti, proclaimed unfair

DEDHAM — The most celebrated trial in the 80-year history of the Dedham courthouse will be commemorated by special proclamation of Governor Michael Dukakis today.

Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti were tried and found guilty of murder in Dedham in connection with a $15,000 payroll robbery in 1927. They were later electrocuted at the Charlestown State Prison.

Clerk of courts John Concannon said the widely publicized murder trial was the most famous ever held at the Dedham courthouse. "There's no doubt about it, its the most famous," said Concannon.

The governor's proclamation, which will be issued in the Massachusetts Senate chamber today, will be the commonwealth's first statement that the trial was unfair.

It refers to "prejudice against foreigners and dissidents at the time" of the trial, and declares taht that "any stigma and disgrace should be forever removed from the names of their families and descendants, and so, from the name of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

Spencer Sacco, grandson of Nicola Sacco, is scheduled to attend the ceremony today.

The proclamation, which commemorates the 50th anniversary of the Sacco-Vanzetti execution, is based on a report by Dukakis's legal counsel, Daniel A. Taylor. It states: "There are substantial, indeed compelling grounds for believing that the Sacco and Vanzetti legal proceedings were permeated with unfairness..."

The executed men, both labeled anarchists, were tried and convicted in an atmosphere of political hysteria, Taylor's report says.

For years the case has been disputed by legal experts, Italian Americans and others who claimed that Sacco and Vanzetti were denied a fair trial because of the prejudices of the times against foreigners and Communist sympathizers.

Today Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis was to sign a proclamation saying that Sacco and Vanzetti did not receive a fair trial.

"The conduct of many of the officials involved in the case shed serious doubts on their willingness and ability to conduct the prosecution and trial of Sacco and Vanzetti fairly and impartially," according to the proclamation.

The signing was scheduled for noon ceremonies in the Senate chamber.

"...any stigma and disgrace should be forever removed from the names of their families and descendants, and so, from the name of the commonwealth of Massachusetts," it reads.

A spokesman for the governor said the proclamation is the result of a report issued by Dukakis' legal counsel Daniel A. Taylor.

Sacco, a Stoughton shoemaker, and Vanzetti, a Plymouth fish peddler, were executed after a seven year legal battle which made worldwide headlines.

During Dedham, Mass., trial and subsequent appeals the defense alleged that the convictions were the result of their radical activities. Both men had campaigned for the Communist cause.

Sacco and Vanzetti were electrocuted on Aug. 23, 1927 at Charlestown State Prison.

Nicola Sacco's grandson, Spencer Sacco, was expected to attend today's proclamation ceremonies.

Signing of the proclamation by Dukakis does not reverse the convictions.

Sacco and Vanzetti were locally known as anarchists, and widespread protests against the executions occurred throughout the world, particularly in working-class neighborhoods. It was charged in demonstrations before American consulates that the men were "framed" for their radical beliefs.

Among those who protested the convictions and executions were for U.S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter.

In 1959 believers in the innocence of Sacco and Vanzetti appealed to the Massachusetts Legislature for posthumous pardons to "correct an historic wrong."

The pleas for a pardon came from individuals professing unshakeable convictions that Sacco and Vanzetti were not only innocent but denied a fair trial as well.

At the time a local attorney, Morris Ernst, who had made an intense study of the case, declared that a Rhode Island gangster had admitted to participating in the robbery and that a confession by him cleared Sacco and Vanzetti.

On the 10th anniversary of the executions state and city officials rejected the idea of establishing a permanent memorial to the two Communists on Boston Common.

The proposal for a memorial had been made by the Sacco-Vanzetti Memorial Committee.

"In my opinion the gesture is patently absurd," then Gov. Charles F. Hurley said.

"If I have a final say on the matter it has no possible chance of acceptance," said then Mayor frederick W. Mansfield.

The question of Sacco and Vanzetti's innocence also haunted historian Francis Russell, author of "Tragedy in Dedham," one of the most definitive works on the case.

Will try to block air bags

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Calling it an "expensive and unproven system," Rep. Norman D'Amours, D-N.H., said he will offer a resolution today to prevent the federal government from ordering air bags be installed in all cars.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams has ordered that all cars be equipped with air bags or other 'passive restraint systems' by 1984.

In a release from his Washington office, D'Amours said air bags have been tested in only a small number of cars and results were inconclusive. He said some test results actually showed seat belts were more effective than air bags.

"I hope Congress will approve my resolution and thereby prevent the government from cramming an expensive and unproven system down the throats of the American people," D'Amours said. "There a thousand things the federal government could do to save lives like ban all cars or impose a nationwide 8 p.m. curfew. But in a free and democratic society, we have to draw the line somewhere on just what the government will force us to do for our own good."

Rocket motor tested

PROMONTORY, Utah (UPI) — The big solid propellant rocket motor designed to help push the space shuttle orbital transport into space has been successfully test fired a few miles from where the first transcontinental railroad was completed.

It was the first test firing of the rocket motor and project officials said it appeared to work well, consuming 1.1 million pounds of rubbery fuel for two minutes to generate an estimated 2.4 million pounds of thrust.

The shuttle, scheduled to make its first flight into orbit in 1979 from Cape Canaveral, will use two of the solid fueled booster rockets to help three liquid propellant engines push it toward a 17,500 mile an hour orbit more than 100 miles high.

Novel internship program puts teachers into industry

Participating in work in industry and translating this experience into classroom use is the target of a novel teacher internship program sponsored this summer by the Project on Work in Technology and Science (WITS) at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Nine area high school teachers or guidance counselors will serve three- to four-week internships with seven local industries or institutions in an attempt to return to the classroom with firsthand information on science-based careers for their students. Newton participant is George Martins of Newton North.

Internships range from analyzing an employer's tuition assistance paln for employees to working in a microbiology laboratory in a major hospital.

"Through the internships, we hope to familiarize high school teachers with "hands-on" work in a variety of fields so that they can prepare their students for careers," said Edith Ruina, project director of WITS.

In addition to their own internship experiences, the teachers will be able to observe a variety of skills employed by other workers. They can use what they learn to help their students set more realistic career goals.

The internship program is the latest in a series of innovative steps taken by WITS in its program to ease the transition from school to work and to encourage young women to enter careers in science and technology.

Project WITS grew out of a 1973 workshop on Women in Science and Technology at M.I.T. The workshop brought together representatives from academic institutions, employers, educators, labor unions and government agencies to discuss ways of encouraging more young women to undertake careers in science-based occupations.

Later the concept was expanded to improving the education— to-work transition for both young women and young men, and to facilitating continuing cooperation between educators and employers.

The WITS program is presently funded by a three-year grant from the Massachusetts Department of Education, enhanced by support from the Sloan Foundation and the Fleischmann Foundation and the National Alliance of Businessmen.

Besides this summer's internship program, activities this year have included a seminar series on changing opportunities for women in science and technology, a workshop on optimizing the benefits of field trips by students to industries and industry speakers in schools, and site visits to a variety of employers.

The site visits involved trips by school personnel to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Honeywell Corporation, New England Nuclear Corporation, the Charles Stark Draper Laboratory, Inc., Digital Equipment Corporation and the John Hancock Life Insurance Company. Altogether, more than 75 high school teachers, guidance counselors and school administrators participated—with some attending more than one visit.

Site visits were designed to acquaint school personnel with the range of employment options available for employees with different interests, skills and levels of education. The summer internships were established to enable each teacher to get a deeper look at a particular job.

Time out to visit

Camp Chickami, sponsored by the Newton YMCA and located in Wayland, welcomed Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Newton) for a visit during the July congressional district work period. The camp serves people from Newton, Waltham, Wayland and Weston.

Red Cross gives first aid course

The Newton Chapter of the American National Red Cross will offer a multimedia standard first aid course beginning July 25.

This course will be given in three three-hour sessions. The dates are: Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, July 25, 26, 27. Class meetings will be from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., and will be held at the Chapter House, 21 Foster St., in Newtonville.

The multimedia course is designed to provide basic skills in first aid and accident prevention. It features programmed workbooks, films and guided practice sessions. There is a $5 charge for texts and supplies. Pre-registration is mandatory, and may be accomplished by calling the Chapter House at 527-6000.

Post Office to conduct unclaimed books auction

A special auction of unclaimed and damaged books will be conducted by the Boston Post Office Thursday, July 28, at 9 a.m., South Postal Annex, 25 Dorchester Ave., Boston.

Only books will be offered for sale at this particular auction. No other merchandise will be displayed or sold.

These books may be inspected the day before the sale, Wednesday, July 27, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sale on auction day will be by lot number only and no examination of merchandise will be permitted.

All books will be sold on an "as is" basis and no refunds will be made. Payments must be made in cash. The lots purchased must be removed either during the sale or immediately after the sale. Containers, for removal of merchandise, must be supplied by the buyer.

The postmaster reminds all postal customers that parcels, and especially books, should be properly packaged and wrapped securely with a duplicate address enclosed inside the package.

Brandeis scholarship committee constituted

Robert Tennant, chairman of the Brandeis-Newton Scholarship Committee' has announced the names of the members of the committee.

They are: Leonard Garfield, Newton YMCA; David P. Nixon, Newton Rotary; Robert A. Alkon, Massachusetts Jaycees; Harold Boyajian, Newton Lion's Club; Paul Duncan, Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce president; Ruth Lucas, Zonta International; and Walter Tennant, Newton Kiwanis.

The committee will review the accepted Brandeis applicant from Newton for undergraduate admission to Brandeis who has qualified for financial aid. The committee will name the recipient of the scholarship that Brandeis will award.

The university has also agreed, according to Tennant, to offer at no charge and on a non-degree basis, one course per term at the Florence Heller Graduate School for advanced studies in social welfare for an employee of the city. The employee will be chosen by the mayor, Tennant indicated.

Meetings are planned in the near future to work toward establishing an intern program for Brandeis students at City Hall. Details of this program have been arranged by the deans of the College of Arts and Sciences, graduate school and the Florence Heller School and representatives of the mayor's office, Tennant said.

Three drown in pool

GRANVILLE, Mass. (UPI) — Two children and a 40-year-old Brooklyn, N.Y., chauffeur drowned Tuesday in a backyard swimming pool at the summer home of the man's employer, state police said.

Police said the chauffeur was identified as Edward Harris, and the children were 10-year-old Raymond P. Agnew and his 8-year-old brother Roland, both of New York City. Neighbors' attempts to revive the victims were unsuccessful.

Six Newton scientists contribute to new 'laymen's' medical book

Six Newton scientists are contributors to a new book, "The Horizons of Health."

The book, written in lay language, describes the impact and contributions of research into all the major diseases of the body and mind. It was originated by, and prepared under, the auspices of the Medical Foundation, a United Way research and health education agency, and is published by the Harvard University Press.

The Newton area contributors are: Richard W. Erbe, M.D., 39 Rowena Rd., Newton Centre, chief of the Genetics Unit at Massachusetts General Hospital; Rashi Fein, Ph.D., 12 Gould Rd., Waban, professor of the economics of medicine at Harvard Medical School; Paul Goldhaber, D.D.S., 56 Devonshire Rd., Waban, dean of the Harvard School of Dental Medicine; Kurt J. Isselbacher, M.D., 20 Nobscot Rd., Newton Centre, chief of the Gastrointestinal Unit at Massachusetts General Hospital; Louis Weinstein, M.D., 26 Greylock Rd., Newtonville, physician at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital; and Te-Wen Chang, M.D., 122 Bellevue St., Newton, associate professor of medicine at Tufts University School of Medicine.

Written to inform the public about the accomplishments of medical research in the prevention of disease, the relief of suffering, and the lengthening of productive life, the book contains more than 20 chapters by internationally-known medical figures from the Boston area who give the latest information and new directions in the struggle against the principal diseases and disabilities.

Among the cripplers, killers, and disorders research is combatting and which are discussed in separate chapters are allergy and rheumatology, heart disease, diabetes, renal disease, cancer, skin disease, eye disorders, and gastrointestinal problems.

Several additional chapters acquaint readers with the issues of setting priorities in research, allocation of funds for research, and the lag in communicating new medical knowledge.

Editors are Henry Wechsler, Ph.D., the Medical Foundation's director of research; Joel Gurin, editorial assistant; and George F. Cahill, Jr., M.D., the foundation's immediate past president and the director of research at the Joslin Diabetes Foundation.

Through "The Horizons of Health," the foundation seeks to win greater public understanding and support of research by acquainting lay people, in understandable language, with the major medical advances and beneficial results to mankind made possible by research.

"There has long been a need for a book, written in lay language, giving comprehensive, up-to-date information about how knowledge gained from medical research has been translated into benefits at the patient's bedside and better health for us all," asserted Merle W. Mudd, Ph.D., executive director of the foundation.

"We have found there is great lack of understanding by the public at large and by legislators, philanthrophists, community leaders, and other policy makers who require adequate and current information on such matters for wise decision making," he said.

'House of Money' amount Smorgasbank reveals

On July 14, the Chestnut Hill Cooperative Bank, also known as Smorgasbank, announced that the exact amount of money in its House of Money Contest was $1038.00.

The contest, which ran from May 16 through June 25, was a major part of the Grand Opening celebration of Chestnut Hill Cooperative Bank's new Needham office. Visitors to the bank were invited to guess the exact amount of dollar bills and coins in the transparent "House of Money."

Chestnut Hill Cooperative Bank is currently tabulating the names of the 14 persons whose guesses came closest to the exact amount. The First Prize winner will become Smorgasbank's "Millionaire for a Week," winning a week's interest on $1,000,000.

Chestnut Hill Cooperative Bank's new Needham office is located at 329 Chestnut Street.

Mount Ida offers continuing education

Mount Ida Junior College will begin its evening continuing education division Sept. 20. Thirty-seven courses from the college's five academic divisions (art, liberal arts, business, science, education) are being offered as a community service at the low tuition rate of $23 per credit hour. Courses generally offer three college credits.

In addition to personal enrichment, career training and college credits, students may earn a Certificate of Specialized Studies and-or an associate degree through the new continuing education division.

Two-and-one-half hour classes will meet one night each week during the fall term at the campus in Newton. Further information may be obtained by calling the director of continuing education at 969-7000, ext. 168.

Host families needed for exchange program

Families in Newton now have the chance to add an international dimension to their lives by providing a home for a Youth for Understanding exchange student from an overseas country.

The nation's largest student-exchange program is looking for responsible families willing to enlarge their horizons and to open their hearts and homes to an international teenager during the coming school year.

Youth for Understanding host families are volunteers who provide room and board for the student and offer him or her the same guidance and love they give to their own children. During this unique family experience, American host families treat the international student not as a guest or tourist, but as a normal family member.

Youth for Understanding will soon bring more than 3500 exchange students to the United States from 24 countries in Europe, Latin America, Asia and Africa. Each will attend an American high school and share life with an American family.

Families who wish more information on how they can participate can contact Hinda Magidson, at 287 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Ma 02115, 267-1141, or write to Youth for Understanding, Ann Arbor, Mich., 48104.

Youth for Understanding is a nonprofit organization which cooperates with and receives an annual grant-in-aid from the U.S. Department of State. Since it began 26 years ago, it has exchanged more than 55,000 students worldwide.

Once a dream

Premier II Restaurant, which began as a dream in the minds of its founders, is now celebrating its first anniversary. The founders envisioned a restaurant complex offering a variety of dining alternatives to appeal to everyone from lunch trade to late night snackers. The complex, in reality, includes Premier Cafe, self-service cafeteria reminiscent of East side delis in New York; Backstage, restaurant with traditional menu as well as late night fare; and Oscar's, a cocktail lounge and restaurant. The restaurant is in Coolidge Corner and is open seven days a week, 7 a.m. to 3 a.m.

Arnold & Co. elects Golden as president

The boar of directors of Arnold & Company Inc., a Boston advertising agency have elected Gerard F. Golden president and chief operating of icer.

The anno ncement was made by Arnold F. Rosoff, who moved to chairman and ch ef executive officer. The shift in responsibilities becomes effective .ug. 1.

As chief executive officer, Rosoff will continue to supervise administrativ management and McCarthy-Arnold, an autonomous subsidiary providing public relations services. Golden, as chief operating officer, will assume responsibility for managing the advertising company.

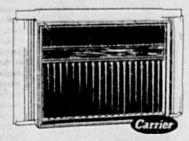

"It's time for new blood and new ideas," said Rosoff. "We've just completed 31 years in business. Yet, since Jerry Golden joined us two years ago, the number of people at the agency has doubled and billings have i creased nearly 50 percent.

"All our irectors agreed that Jerry's concentration on internal management a d account supervision, as well as new business development was a m jor contribution in this period."

Golden, f rmerly executive vice president and director of marketing for Lavid e & Associates in Atlanta and Knoxville, spent 10 years with J. Wa ter Thompson Company in New York, where he was a vice president an senior account supervisor for The Gillette Company. He has ha account management responsibilities with such clients as Lever Br thers, the Lipton Company, and the Mennen Company, and has worked in t e fields of land development, insurance, finance and fast food resta rants.

Educator named Mellon Fellow

Tommie Samkange of West Newton, assistant professor of education at Tufts University, recently was named a Mellon Fellow through a grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.

Last year the New York City-based foundation appropriated a $200,000, two-year grant to Tufts to study the expanding roles of women in society.

Samkange, who will begin work as a Mellon Fellow in the fall, plans to complete a book manuscript on black identity and lead a seminar for students on the sociological phenomena behind society's tendency to type-cast people according to their race and-or sex.

Samkange resides at 1656 Commonwealth Ave.

BC hoop coach to hold summer camp

Dr. Tom Davis, Boston College's newly-named head basketball coach, will conduct a summer basketball camp for boys and girls starting August 1.

The day camp is open to both boys and girls ages 8 to 18 and will stress fundamental basketball instruction as well as actual game competition among the participants of the various age divisions.

Davis' camp will feature lecutres by outstanding coaches from both the college and high school ranks. It will be held in Roberts Center on the B.C. campus, home court of the Eagles' varsity basketball team.

In addition to basketball instruction, campers will be allowed to swim in the Boston College pool. A daily hot lunch, trophies and awards and a camp T-shirt will be provided.

Coach Davis, who previously had been head coach at Lafayette College, has won 116 games while losing only 44. That's a phenomenal .725 winning percentage - and makes him the 13th winningest coach in college basketball today.

In addition to his coaching talents, Davis is widely recognized as one of the outstanding teachers of the game in the nation.

Tuition for the week-long camp (August 1-5) is $70. Additional information and registration forms may be obtained by contacting the Boston College Athletic Office, telephone 969-0100, extension 3000.

Darrell Johnson a happier man

BOSTON (UPI) — Darrell Johnson's team is losing more games than the team he ran last year, but the Seattle Mariners manager is a much happier man today.

A year ago Tuesday, July 19, 1976, was the unhappiest day of Johnson's life. Just nine months after leading the Boston Red Sox into the World Series and being named major league Manager of the Year, the 49-year-old itinerant catcher was fired as the Red Sox opened a series against the Texas Rangers. The team had compiled a 41-45 record and already had fallen out of contention in the American League East pennant chase.

Johnson, who was elevated to Boston manager in 1974 because of his ability to school young players, had run into trouble with the high paid Boston veterans and had lost the respect of his team.

His fortunes turned when the fledgling Mariners named Johnson their first manager last fall. Back in his element with a group of young and hungry players, Johnson had steered the Mariners to a 41-54 record by the All-Star break.

Most importantly, he is "as happy as I can be. This is a young club and a different sort of experience, but it has its rewards," Johnson said recently. "When I was a kid playing baseball, my hope and dream was to play in the majors.

"Then, after I had been in the majors (with seven teams), it became my hope and dream to manage a big league club. I did that, too, and it was with a pretty damned good team.

"When we won our pennant, I thought that was the biggest and best thing that ever happened to me... Then they let me go and I was down. But when I was offered this job, I was as happy as I could be. This is a real challenge and now I'm getting a chance to prove how good a manager I am."

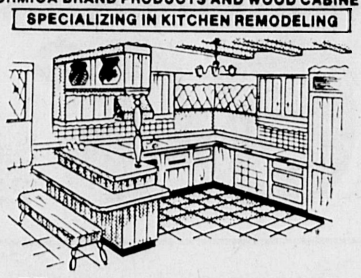

Johnson surrounded himself with people from his Boston experience when he took the Seattle job, taking bullpen coach Don "Bear" Bryant with him and picking up former Red Sox pitchers Diego Segui, Rick Jones, Dick Pole and Tom House.

"It's very important with a brand new organization to have a nucleus of people who know your system and who you know you can trust."

Pole, a product of the Boston system is most familiar with Johnson and is best able to see the change in the native of Ord, Neb.

"This is the fifth straight year I've played for Darrell Johnson and the first time in three years that I'm seeing the real DJ," said Pole, 6-5 this season. "The pressure here is completely different from in Boston and it agrees with him more.

Operatic composers get inspiration from Shakespeare

The writings of Shakespeare inspired a number of operatic composers, especially Giuseppi Verdi.

Verdi's "Otello" is a masterpiece written late in life and his "Falstaff" was another noble salute to the Bard.

Otto Nicolai also was intrigued by Falstaff to the extent that he wrote an opera, "The Merry Wives of Windsor." It had its shortcomings, though, and only its melodic overture withstood the onslaughts of time.

Nicolai's librettist, Hermann S. Mosenthal, had a tendency to be wordy and his long dialogues perhaps bored those who wanted to hear the music.

In a new recording of the "Merry Wives" ("Die Lustigen Weiber von Windsor") with Bernhard Klee conducting the Berlin Staatskapelle (Deutsche Grammophon 2709 065), the dialogue is shortened to a story line. And the result is a most enjoyable musical experience.

The libretto is in German, with translations in English and French. Because the diction of the singers is not too clear, it is necessary to follow the libretto if the listener wants to understand what is going on.

However, though it may be musical heresy to say this, the music is so infectious there is no need to bother about the libretto. Although there are no outstanding arias, the music is never tiresome.

Kurt Moll is Falstaff and Helen Donath is Anna Reich. Other members of the production are Edith Mathis, Hanna Schwarz, Peter Schreier, Siegfried Vogel and Bernd Weikl. This is a fine recording that deserves a place in the recorded repertoire.

The producers of "La Grande Duchesse de Gerolstein" by Offenbach (Columbia M2 34576) could have taken a lesson from those who shortened the libretto of the Nicolai opera.

There is too much dialogue, which is especially irritating because it is spoken rather than sung, but this is the general pattern followed by French librettists. And even though the music falls slightly below the high level of some of Offenbach's better-known works it is melodic and rewarding.

Students of Americana will note that this comic opera starred the sexpot of the late nineteenth century, Lillian Russell, as the grand duchess, in a New York revival.

In this two-LP recording, soprano Regine Crespin sings the title role with enthusiasm. Soprano Mady Mesple is excellent as Wanda. Baritone Claude Meloni is the Machiavellian Baron Puck. Other members of the cast are Alain Vanzo, Charles Brules, Robert Massard and Francois Loup. Michel Plasson conducted the Orchestre et Choeurs du Capitole de Toulouse.

Those opera lovers who do not have time to listen to complete recordings should be able to squeeze in selections from two interesting albums—Beverly Sills' "Opera Arias" (Angel S-37255) and "The Secret of Susanna and other Operatic Favorites of Wolf-Ferrari (London STS15362).

There are some standards from "The Barber of Seville" and "La Traviata" in the Sills' album but the highlight is the music from "The Siege of Corinth," the opera which Bubbles starred in at her triumphal debut at the Met.

The Wolf-Ferrari album is orchestral and a thing of beauty. The outstanding number is the familiar intermezzo from "I Quattro Rusteghi."

A western museum in New York town

CORNING, N.Y. (UPI) — This upstate factory town is the last place in the United States you'd expect to find a museum of authentic western art.

But there it is, the Rockwell-Corning Museum, on the second floor of what once was the lobby of the town's sole hotel.

The small rooms are crammed with such things as bronzes, oils and sketches by the renowned Frederic Remington and a casting (thought to be one of five) of James Earl Frazier's "End of the Trail," a cowboy on his mount.

Beadwork, clothing and decorations make up about one third of the collection, but account for about half the total value, says Robert Rockwell.

The Gunnison County, Colorado rancher and Corning merchant opened the museum last fall with treasures from his extensive private collection. It is part of the Corning Museum of Glass.

For years the Rockwell department store next door has been a landmark in the glassmaking center. Not for its merchandise. That's pretty much what you'd expect to find in any town of about 16,000 population.

Until the Corning Glass Works provided space for the museum in the old hotel, virtually all of Rockwell's collection was displayed in the store, mostly on shelves near the ceiling.

Much is still there. We saw guns and saddles, wooden toy circus animals pulling toy horsedrawn cages, Lionel trains, a salesman's sample iron kitchen range, toy buggies and wagons.

"I just started collecting because I liked toys," said Rockwell.

"I never bought a collection in my life. I bought each piece individually, and each one has a personal history."

When he wanted chairs from which museum visitors could watch old western movies such as William S. Hart silents, he bought 20 red plush seats from an old theater.

His first purchase, later identified as a fake, was a Remington painting he bought in New York City after hearing about it "from a supposedly

Student Smoking Allowed at School

OSSEO, Minn. (UPI) — The "back 40" at Osseo High School is not an agricultural project, but an area set aside where students can smoke.

The "back 40," a lot behind the school, is under fire from parents opposed to smoking on school property. They protested to the school board that underage students smoke there, and the lot makes a convenient place for marijuana and drug use.

Board and school officials say they don't like it either, but it's better than smoke filled washrooms in the school building.

Steer hide and leather has a long history

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Eight strips of leather tightly layered together by New Hampshire craftsmen were a major factor in the opening of the American West.

The strips of steerhide were sewn together to make a thoroughbrace — Lewis Downing's highly successful answer to how to build a better horsedrawn coach that wouldn't make the rider sick and wouldn't break down every few miles because of brittle metal springs.

His curve-bottomed coaches, slung in a three-inch thick cradle of leather on either side, rocked their way from Atlantic to Pacific, crossing the Great Plains and the Rocky Mountains before the railroads did. They stayed on to provide service from the railroads to small towns until the beginning of the 20th century.

They picked up the nickname "Concord coaches" and entire trainloads of them moved out of here in the 19th century to supply transportation not only to the American West, but to South Africa and Australia in the days when those nations' goldfields were opening up. The manufacturer has offices as far afield as St. Louis, San Francisco, Georgia, Rome and Sydney, Australia.

Mark Twain called them "Lullaby Wagons" because they swayed from side to side instead of jolting up and down. Wells Fargo ordered them by the dozen when they were the West's great common carrier.

Edward Rowse of nearby Loudon fell in love with the Concord coaches in the 1960s and began restoring them — a job that takes at least one year per coach. Nw, he is founding the Concord Coach Society with the aim of opening a museum and tracking down every coach still in existence today.

"The factory was in business for 75 years and employed 300 people at its peak. They built about 3,000 Concord coaches. As near as I can calculate, there are still 150 kicking around, 18 of them in New Hampshire," Rowse said.

Rowse has accumulated cartons of old business records of Downing and his sometime partner, J.S. Abbot, and the privately-funded New Hampshire Historical Society has crates of such records, with no space to display them.

He hopes descendants of Abbot-Downing employes will contribute to the Concord Coach Society papers their ancestors may have kept regarding the coach factory. And he hopes anybody who owns a Concord coach or knows where one is located will let him know.

"I decided to form the society because I get mail from all over the country, asking me 'What do I do next' or 'How do I identify a coach,' or 1,001 questions to enhance people's interest in the coaches," he said.

"It's old hat to the people in Concord, but when you talk about Concord coaches to a California, it's a different ball game. The history of the West is so much tied up with these coaches," Rowse said.

"They were early enough (1827) that they got in on the ground floor of transportation, first in New England, then east of the Mississippi, then after 1850 west of the Mississippi. Everybody knows who invented the steam boat but nobody can tell you who invented the Concord coach or where it comes from. If Concord gives them a clue, they pick the wrong Concord, in Massachusetts," he said.

The Concord Coach Society will answer queries addressed to Box 26, Concord, N.H., 03301. It is concerned not only with the Concord coaches but the thousands of less famous wagons turned out by Abbot-Downing.

"If it was a conveyance in which the public rode for a coin, they built it. They made some of the first horse-drawn trolleys and also designed a Civil War ambulance and built gun carriers and ammunition," Rowse said.

A scale model of a red and gilt Concord coach is the latest of a series of commemorative bourbon decanters with which the New Hampshire Liquor Commission is helping finance the state Bicentennial Commission.

Mighty Farrell

ARLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — With his trim mustache, husky build and "Smokey the Bear" hat, Charles Farrell looks like a cross between TV detective Frank Cannon and the stereotype of a beefy southern sheriff.

And, like them, he enforces the law.

But there the similarity ends.

Farrell, as constable in this small southwestern Vermont town, dispenses a brand of "home-grown justice" he says has cut the juvenile delinquency rate at a time when juvenile crime elsewhere is soaring.

Three years ago, Farrell, 46, tried out a new approach in dealing with young criminal offenders. Instead of ordering them into court, he began giving them a chance to work off the punishment by performing community service.

"We shovel snow, rake leaves, pick up cans and bottles, clean the roads," said Farrell, who was a police officer in Great Neck, N.Y., before he came here 12 years ago.

"The kids appreciate it, and the word has gotten around that if you're caught, you're going to work."

When a juvenile is arrested, Farrell reads him the mandatory "Miranda Warning" — advising him of his right to remain silent and to have an attorney.

Then, if the crime is not too serious and the youngster waives his rights and admits to the offense, he signs a confession.

Farrell then takes the case to the offender's parents and to the victim of the crime.

If all parties agree, the juvenile is given the option of going to court or submitting to the following:

— Make full restitution.

— Apologize to the victim.

— Work on a public works project.

The system has two-fold benefits.

Farrell said it gives a young offender a "second chance" — an opportunity to escape having a criminal record. And, it assures would-be offenders that their punishment will be swift and sure.

"The court system hasn't always worked in that regard," said Farrell. He feels juveniles are often stigmatized with a criminal record, and yet walk away without actually being punished.

"I don't think court does anyone any good."

Although he believes the plan would not work in larger communities or with seasoned criminals, Farrell said it has a nearly 100 per cent success rate with first offenders here.

"All the proper procedures are followed. Everyone's rights are protected."

Kuhn honors six from media

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six members of the media were honored for 25 years of meritorious service to baseball Tuesday at the annual Commissioner's Luncheon prior to the All-Star Game.

Those receiving awards, presented by commissioner Bowie Kuhn, were Willie Klein, sports editor of the Newark Star-Ledger; Dave Anderson, columnist for the New York Times; Lou Chapman of the Milwaukee Sentinel; Bob Wolf of the Milwaukee Journal; Juan Vene of El Mundo (Venezuela) and Raoul Ramirez, a broadcaster from Puerto Rico.

First baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins was given a special award for receiving the most All-Star votes in the nationwide fan balloting, with 4,292,740 votes.

Crowds love Nicklaus

BOSTON (UPI) — Defending champion Bud Allin stood on the 10th tee Wednesday, preparing to hit a drive in the Pro-Am event that preceded the Pleasant Valley Classic.

He started into his backswing, then stopped as a commotion erupted behind him. A swarm of people buzzed behind him but they weren't talking about the former Vietnam War hero who swiped the 1976 title on the final four holes. No, the people were walking behind Allin to follow Jack Nicklaus from the 11th green to the 12th tee.

Within a minute the boisterous crowd had moved away to follow the pied piper of golf. Allin again was all alone to play his round unnoticed.

The situation repeated itself day after day at the tournament. Tom Watson, who had edged Nicklaus out of the Masters and British Open championships, would play before a modest group while two holes behind Nicklaus was earning screams of delight with every decent shot.

Prior to Sunday's final round, 200 persons rimmed the practice green to watch Nicklaus putt and let out a large roar when he rolled in a 25-footer. The shot didn't count but the shooter was Nicklaus and that was all that counted.

The national television coverage focused on him Saturday so much that it ignored Floyd playing in the next threesome. The day's coverage concluded with an interview of Nicklaus, who was wearing the blue shirt and pants the network had chosen for him to wear. The viewing audience never did see Floyd finish his third round, which left him with a threestroke lead.

Following the final round, an unnoticed Gary Player got swamped amidst the Nicklaus crowd as the South African star was trying to get to the locker room. Somehow Nicklaus was unharmed by the pushing mob scene, but Player wound up with a limp after someone stepped on his foot.

It hardly is surprising that the record five-day crowd of 131,450 was agog over Nicklaus. It was the first Pleasant Valley visit in 12 years for the man who launched his professional career in 1962 with a U.S. Open victory and has gone on to win 62 more tour events along with a pair of British Opens.

More incredible was the way Nicklaus manages to play in a vaccuum while the world watches. He is unaffected by pressure, unhindered by a sea of loud spectators and unflappable in dealings with the media.

While Tom Weiskopf reportedly made unkind remarks to a fan clicking a camera, Nicklaus played his strong tee-to-green game oblivious to distractions. Yet after each shot, he was with the people in spirit and felt it.

His power of concentration never was better demonstrated than in the Pro-Am, when lightning cracked over the course as Nicklaus hit his drive on the final tee. He ran to his ball which was 100 yards below the elevated green and quickly hit his iron shot to within 12 feet. Looking like Teddy Roosevelt ascending San Juan Hill, Nicklaus raced to the green, assessed the distance of his putt while still running, pulled out the flagstick and scurried back to the edge of the green.

He had to wait until his veteran caddie, Angelo, puffed up the hill with the clubs. As Angelo reached the crest in front of the green, Nicklaus grabbed his putter, bent over the putt in total concentration for less than a second, and stroked the ball six inches past the hole. Again on the run, Nicklaus reached the ball, tapped it in, scooped the ball out and bolted for parts unknown just as the crashing clouds erupted into a tropical-type storm.

The man has an unmatched ability to compartmentalize his thoughts. When he is looking over a golfball with club in hand, everything else is blotted out. When he is with the people, he belongs to them. Whe he talks in the pressroom, he stays and answers every question so honestly that he stirs controversy.

Nicklaus, a golf course architect, is one of the few men who can design beautiful and testing layouts, then dismantle them with long and accurate shots. He is one golfer that rates the title of a true athlete.

Smooth start eludes Palmer

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the American Leaguers, who had dropped five straight and 13 of the last 14 mid-summer gatherings, a smooth start in the 1977 All-Star game was essential. The goal eluded starting pitcher Jim Palmer.

"I'm disappointed because I didn't keep us close," he said after allowing five runs in twoplus innings as the National League scored a 7-5 victory Tuesday night. "That's why the manager (Billy Martin) picked me to start — to hold them in the early innings. But I didn't do my job."

His pitching staff stripped by the ailments of Frank Tanana, Vida Blue and Mark Fidrych and the recalcitrance of Nolan Ryan, Martin named Palmer to try to reverse the league's annual nightmare. Palmer had allowed no runs in eight previous All-Star innings. He also had more rest than any other AL pitcher — maybe too much.

Joe Morgan led off with a home run, and after a strikeout Dave Parker singled, George Foster doubled and Greg Luzinski homered. Steve Garvey opened the third with a homer. By the time the AL began fighting back in the sixth on a two-run single by Richie Zisk, they had as much chance as the bad guy in a cowboy movie.

"I was wild high," said Palmer, "and when I went 3-2 on Morgan I didn't want to walk him. I didn't want to him to hit a homer either, but he did."

Turner says accident won't stop Courageous

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Yachting officials and skipper Ted Turner hoped Courageous would sail today in America's Cup trial racing called off after an accident which almost spelled disaster for the 12-meter defending champion.

A broken head stay Tuesday crippled Courageous on the second leg of a trial race against West Coast challenger Enterprise, but Turner refused to admit his luck has changed.

"We're still in there smokin, pal," the feisty Atlanta Braves owner said as his million-dollar sailing machine was towed back to Newport Harbor.

Courageous was 12 seconds ahead of Enterprise at the second mark of a six-leg race, when she suddenly turned into the wind and let her sails flap. Race officials fired three gunshots, halting competition.

Because the head stay holds up the mast and holds down the jib, Courageous crewmen scrambled to ease pressure on the jib and prevent the mast from falling down. That would have been a $50,000 setback.

Turner said quick action averted the need for major repairs. He and New york Yacht Club officials hoped to have Courageous sailing again today so the race could be rerun.

Newton pair receive letters at Harvard

CAMBRIDGE — Newton's Alan Senior and Jerry Keleher received varsity letters at a recent team banquet for the Harvard lacrosse squad.

Sophomore midfielder Keleher notched two goals and apair of assists for the Crimson. "Jerry worked extremely hard in the off-season on improving his skills, and it definitely paid dividends in terms of his development this year," says Harvard lacrosse coach Bob Scalise. "Jerry is beginning to round out his game and sharpen specific tools that will enable him to make a significant contribution to our squad in the future," says the former All-American stalwart now in his fourth season at the Harvard coaching helm.

Junior defenseman Senior was a mainstay in the Crimson's top ten defensive statistics ranking. Senior returned to the ranks after a one year leave of absence. As a sophomore in 1975, Senior received second team All-New England honors and was an honorable mention All-Ivy selectee.

"Al got off to a slow start due to the layoff, but came on like gangbusters as the season progressed," says Scalise. "I'm counting on Al to provide our defensive corps next season with the veteran leadership so vital to the success of our squad."

Harvard, playing its toughest schedule ever in its 90th year lacrosse history, finished with a 4-8 record that nevertheless garnered the Crimson the 18th slot in the NCAA top-twenty rankings. Victories over Mass Maritime, Boston College, C.W. Post and Brown highlighted the season.

Jerry Keleher is a 1974 graduate of Newton North High School, where he captained the football and lacrosse squads enroute to earning All-State honors in the gridiron sport. Keleher also attended Andover Academy before matriculating at Harvard, where he is a mathematics major.

Tennis Booming

Tennis is very popular with Newton residents this summer. The many courts maintained by the Newton Recreation Department are being utilzied to near capacity. There have been several additions to the courts available under the Department's reservation program. There are now ten courts at Newton North High School. These will be supervised from 5 to 8 p.m. during the week and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekends. Four of the courts have been resurfaced and the other 6 are new installations. Another six lighted courts have been added at Newton South High School bringing the total there to 12.

These may be reserved from 5 to 11 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekends. These are all hard surface courts. There are also clay courts available at the Newton Centre Playground and Burr Park. Courts may be reserved from 5 to 8 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Attendance is high in all areas with some 200 players at South High weeknights and 350 over the weekends. In order to reserve these courts, you must be a Newton resident and you must have a current tennis permit.

Swimming

The recent heat wave has assured good attendance at both the Gath Pool and Crystal Lake. Swimming and sailing classes are very popular.

Mini-Bike Facility Closed

Officials emphasize that the Recreation Department's Mini-bike facility is not operating during July and August, but will re-open on Saturday, September 10th. No bikes may be operated at the facility until that date.

Softball Leagues

The playoffs in the Newton Recreation Department's Twilight Softball League are scheduled to begin the week of July 25th. League standings as of July 15 are as follows: American "A": Newton Sports Center 11-5; Oak Hill AA 10-5-1; JB Steak House 3-8; Troubadour 8-8; The Place 7-8-1; Silver Lake Dodge 7-8-1; Adams Place 7-9 and Post 24, 4-11. American "B": Art Carroll 12-4; Knights 11-4-1; Stones 10-4-2; Heshell Club 7-8-1; Mr. Vincents 7-9; Silver Lake Liquors 7-9; Sons of Italy 7-8; Shamrocks 7-9; Last Chance 5-11; and McCarthy's Exxon 3-11-2. American "C": Roupens Raiders 12-2-1; Boston Fish House 10-3-1; Eagles 9-4-1; NCP Club 7-4-3; Newton Corner 9-6; The Place 4-8-3; Garden City AA 4-7-3; St. Regis 4-8-2; Port Air Corp 4-10 and Craft St. Variety 2-13. American "D"; Dura-Cleen 15-3; Marriott 13-4; Farrah's Angels 10-8; Gonzo's 9-7; General Cinema Corp. 7-9; Shipley's 5-11-1; Yellow Cab 4-12-1 and Chill Factor 4-13.

Playground Personnel

Playground leaders for District II have been assigned by Supervisor Bill Barry. They are: Auburndale: James Ryan, Diane Astone, Tom Carey. Burr School: Irene Horrigan and Mark Ross. Franklin School: Steve Park, Patricia Gardner, Ann Earthrowl and Steven Burke. Hamilton: Steve Chapman, Susan Ekizian and Ann Earthrowl. Warren Jr. High: Warren Bornstein, Joy Haywood and Peter Hurwitz. River Street: Danielle Cloonan and Steve Dresner. Wellington: Maureen McCarthy and John Carey. West Newton Common: Brian Vallely, Mary McGann and Neil Levitan. Williams: Allison Toney and Amy Sneider. Davis School: Faye Goldberg and Carol LeConti.

Baseball Clinic

The Eddie Pellegrini Baseball Clinic will be held at the Newton Centre Playground on Tuesday, July 26th, beginning at 2 p.m. Youngsters who wish to participate in this clinic must have permission slips signed by a parent or guardian. These slips are available at the playgrounds throughout the City.

City-Wide Track Meet

The Albemarle Playground will host the Annual City-Wide Track Meet scheduled for Wednesday, August 3rd. The meet will start at 10 a.m. In case of rain, the meet will be rescheduled for the following day, Thursday, August 4th.

Newton Swim Team

On July 13th Newton was nosed out by Needham, 188-170. A relatively clam meet, again very close and the score bouncing back and forth. Once again the boys, ages 13 and 14 took first and second in all of the four strokes and of course their undefeated relay team won also. The people in this "B" Boys 1st and 2nd rampage were Scott Hayden, Ned Campbell, David Schiller, Davis Samuels and Xam Lobar. Thanks to the following people from Newton, the meet was run relatively smoothly - Scorekeepers: Ms. Leslie Englesman, Starter and Referee, Mr. Richard Bishop, Starter: Ms. Susan Gordon, Judges: Mr. Bourdreau, Mr. Petrocelli, Mr. Lobar. Timers: Mrs. Appelbaum and Mrs. Lobar. It was a good fun spirited meet. Although there was little enthusiasm at this meet, there was good sportsmanship evident. Our next meet is at Medfield on July 14th, beginning at 6 p.m.

We do have a bus and hope to see all parents there. We've come a long way since last year by beating the fifth place team, Sherborn, and only losing to the fourth place team, Needham - by 18. Again, we look forward to a promising season. Winners: Butterfly - Tim King, Patty Higgins, Drew Lane, Paul Higgins. Freestyle - David Cox, Karen Hayden, Drew Lane, Sam Lobar. Breastroke - Ronda Applebaum, Tibor Toth, Karen Hayden, Marianne Fay, Scott Hayden, Joanne Fay. Backstroke - Joanna Bonzaoli. Relays: Freestyle - "C" Boys - Paul Boudreau, Richard Bishop, Kyle Schiller. "B" Girls: Marianne Fay, Ann Bishop, Sue O'Halloran, Leslee Tocci. "B" Boys: Davis Schiller, David Samuels, Sam Lobar, Scott Hayden. "A" Girls: Leslie Swift, Joanne Faye, Joanna Bonazoli, Kate Green.

Newton's Swim Team breezed to an easy win over Medfield, 203 - 141. Newton was over 100 points ahead half way through the meet. Because of the discrepancy in score, Newton started using all the swimmers who would normally swim unofficially and many of the freestyle relay teams did a medley. This was not to make Medfield look ridiculous, but to make the meet a little more fun for all. Again our thanks to the parents who came and participated in the meet. Coaches Tim Cotter and Joanne Damigella and Co-coach Bob Carleo were very pleased with the performance of the team. The next meet will be on Tuesday, July 19th against Westwood at Westwood. Again, we hope to see all.

Newton Rec. swimmers show plenty of spirit

By MARTHA SCHWOPE

If you need your spirits lifted about kids today, come on down to the Gath Pool to watch the Newton Swim Team at a practice or meet. You'll see 75 enthusiastic, hard-working, high-spirited young people kicking up a storm.

The Newton Recreation Department Swim Team is in its seventh summer season, and it promises to be a good one. Membership on the team is open to any Newton resident 18 and under who can swim the crawl across the pool with a basic swimming sense.

Some of the team members are excellent swimmers qho will go on to further competition or careers in swimming. Others are happy just to share in team competition and improve their strokes.

The team practices every weekday in preparation for two weekly Suburban League meets. Forty-two races at the meets give everyone a chance to earn points for the team. Everyone enjoys competing in the meets.

Team Captins Kate Greene and Paul Higgins are confident that being on the swim team is a good experience. "It's a lot of fun meeting so many kids and going places and keeping in shape over the summer," Paul stated enthusiastically. Kate agreed, adding that Newton's is not a high-pressured team situation. "You can get out of it what you put into it." Both Kate and Paul hold records in the butterfly, individual events, and relays. They will continue as co-captains next winter season at North High.

The team members are enthusiastic about their coaches — Joanne Damigella, Tim Cotter, and Bob Carleo.

"What I LIKE about being with our swim team," explained Tim Cotter, "is that a lot of kids get to come and have fun swimming. we want everyone to have a good time, whether they be winners or not."

The coaches give a lot of encouragment as they help members improve their strokes, dives, and turns. The pleasures of working as a team are emphasized, especially with the younger children. Perfect strokes and speed are stressed more with those ten and older.

Team spirit is high t the meets. Shouts, cheers, and lots of laughter ring out. Friends share a lot of feelings as they win, lost, improve on their times, or just have a good time swimming.

One young girl was the first to swim in her relay. She dove off to a slow start, then fell behind very fast. By the time she reached the end, it looked as if her team would lose the relay. The little girl pulled herself up to face her teammates. "Good swim, Paula," another girl smiled.

Justine Head, 10, from Newtonville, feels "thrilled" about being on the swim team. She likes the way everyone improves — "either in your swimming talents, or in good sportsmanship, or just anything."

Betsy Petrocelli, 9, from West Newton, plans on swimming her whole life — "even when I'm elderly." She and her friends especially like throwing the coaches into the pool after a meet.

There's room for more people to participate with the Swim Team. If you would like to join yourself, bring $1 to the Gath Pool some afternoon at 4:30 when you would like to take your basic test and start practicing. If you are planning one going away for a summer vacation, you need only tell one of the coaches.

There is also a winter team. Many people are on both teams, while others choose one.

More parents should come to the meets. These are important experiences as your children grow up.

Maybe you would like a good swim yourself! Newton has two fine swimming areas open in the summer — Crystal Lake and the Gath Pool.

If you are one of the many people who enjoy sports, why spend $4.50 per person to see a baseball game, when your own Newton Swim Team is putting on such a show right here in town? Mark your calendar how to attend a home meet. Come on down and cheer for your team!

Newton's Magraw wins Harvard lacrosse letter

CAMBRIDGE — Newton's Sarah "Suki" Magraw received a varsity letter at a recent banquet honoring the Harvard women's lacrosse squad.

Magraw, a junior, was the starting goaltender for the 11-3-2 Crimson stickwomen. the 5-3, 105-pounder limited the opposition to just one goal in three separate Harvard victories. The Newton High graduate was selected to the All-New England lacrosse team for her prowess in the Crimson twines.

"Suki helped turn our program completely around," says head coach Debi Field, who suffered through the rebuilding pains of a dismal 1-10 season in 1976. "Magraw was consistently superb in the nets, making clutch saves throughout the season and firing up the entire squad with her determination and hustle. I believe that Suki is one of the finest goaltenders in both the Ivy League and New England," comments mentor Field.

Suki Magraw is a 1973 graduate of Newton North High School, where she captained the tennis team in addition to playing varsity field hockey and basketball. A psychology and social relations concentrator at Harvard, she is the daughoer of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Magraw of 11 Hobart Road in Newton.

Minn. to hold stadium hearings

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — The Metropolitan Sports Facilities Commission will conduct public hearings Wednesday on seven proposed sites for a new Twin Cities sports stadium.

The hearings are set for the Metropolitan Council's chamber in the Metro Square Building in downtown St. Paul. The sevenmember commission also will get evaluations of the seven sites done by Barton Aschman Associates Inc., a Minneapolis consulting company.

CAR CORNER

by John Borelli, Mast. Tech. No. 3428

Picture this: on a two-lane road you have just drawn even with the car you are trying to pass when you realize that another car in the on-coming lane is traveling much faster than you thought. You don't know whether to speed up and try to complete the pass, or to fall back into line. There is only one correct response, however, and that is to brake firmly and pull back into line. If you began your move with enough distance between you and the car you planned to pass, there should be no hazard about slipping back into line.

NEWTON CAR RADIO, 873 Walnut St. (corner of Beacon St. at 4 Corners), Newton, 332-2487 your one stop car radio and communication needs headquarters cordially invites you to visit us soon. OBITUARIES

William Morse

Private funeral services were held for William Northrop Morse, a retired Tufts University professor.

Mr. Morse, 95, of 1110 Walnut St., Newton Highlands, died Sunday (July 17) in a Newton nursing home.

He was a 1904 graduate of Amherst College and earned his master's degree at Harvard University. He was an instructor at Middlebury College in Vermont until appointed director of the dramatics department at Tufts in 1928. He teft Tufts in 1937 to teach at Georgetown University. Ten years later, he retired to become a freelance writer.

Mr. Morse is survived by two sons, William of Arlington and Alfred of Kennet Square, Pa.; and his brother, Edward of South Londonderry, Vt.

Katherine Kelly

A funeral mass was celebrated Tuesday (July 19) in St. Bernard's Church for Mrs. Katharine H. (Curran) Kelly.

Mrs. Kelly, 65, of 44 William St., West Newton, died suddenly Saturday at home.

A native of Newton, she had lived most of her life in West Newton and was the widow of Charles J. Kelly.

Mrs. Kelly is survived by two sons, Paul J. and Charles R., both of West Newton; five daughters, Theresa M. of West Newton, Mrs. Nancy P. Hovsepian of Holliston, Mrs. Virginia Swanson of Newtonville, Mrs. Maureen Clapton of Auburndale;, and Mrs. Kathleen F. Cumming of Needham; and 11 grandchildren.

Burial is in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Matthew J. Phillips

A funeral mass was said Tuesday (July 19) in Sacred Heart Church for Matthew J. Phillips.

Mr. Phillips, 77, of 32, Daniels St., Newton Centre, died Sunday (July 17) after being stricken at home. He had been a patrolman for 30 years, retiring 18 years ago; and was a native and lifelong resident of Newton.

Mr. Phillips is survived by his wife, Mrs. Louise Phillips; a sister, Mary J. of Newton; and his nephew, James, of South Dennis.

Burial is in Holyhood Cemetery, Brookline.

Mildred Jackson

Mrs. Mildred (Manter) Jackson, 90, director of the Children's Museum from 1927 to 1942, died July 9.

Born in Maine, Mrs. Jackson was a teacher and principal of the Gardiner, Me., grammar school, then came to Newton to teach mathematics and serve as a principal of a junior high.

She served as executive secretary of the Boston Children's Museum and within two years, became director. Through her leadership, the museum gained recognition as the finest children's museum in the world with edcational facilities second to none.

Mrs. Jackson was elected to the governing board of the American Council of Museums for five consecutive three-year terms; the only woman in the country ever to be so honored.

She worked for the Bureau of Vocational Council of Boston and was a co-organizer of the Institute of Personnel and Industrial Relations Management and chairwoman of the staff and office committee of the Boston Girl Scouts.

She also served on the board of trustees of the Ethical-Humanist Society of Boston.

She was the wife of the late Dr. John Jackson, a dental surgeon in Newton Centre; and is survived by her sister, Marion Beal.

Burial is in Parkman, Me.

Helena Burns

A funeral mass was celebrated Monday (July 18) in Corpus Christi Church for Mrs. Helena E. (Ryan) bBurns.

Mrs. Burns , 81, of 38 Ash St., Auburndale, died Friday (July 15) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a short illness.

She is survived by her husband, Charles A. Burns; two daughters, Mrs. Mary E. Moran of Franklin and Mrs. Helena E. Head of Avon; two brothers, Clarence Ryan of North Providence and James Ryan of Watertown; and seven grandchildren.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Dorothy Thomas

Dorothy (Krueger) Thomas, 61, of Saunderstown, R.I., died Saturday (July 16) in South County Hospital, Wakefield, R.I.

A native of Newton, Mrs. Thomas lived here until 1940 and then moved to New Jersey and later Rhode Island.

Funeral services were held for her in Saunderstown Monday (July 18).

She is survived by her husband, Albert I. Thomas; two sons, Bradford A. of Kearney, N.J., and Edgar H. of Lufkin, Tex.; a daughter, Mrs. Carol Nimorwicz of Tenafly, N.J.; three sisters, Mrs. Florence Isenberg of Manchester, N.H., Mrs. Robert Sheldon of Madeira Beach, Fla.; Mrs. June Rake of Saunderstown; and six grandchildren.

The Mobile Job Center, CETA's traveling employment agency will be visiting serveral locations in Newton regularly this summer. It made its first stop last Friday at King's on Watertown Street. Pictured there (from left) Laurence McKinley, King's assistant manager; Russell Taylor, King's assistant manager; Mayor Mann, Catherine Stratton, a CETA official; Anne Wholley and Newton CETA director Richard Moynihan.

Mobile CETA job van visiting

The mobile CETA Job Center is on the road and will be visiting Newton, Waltham, Needham, Lexington and Bedford throughout the summer, according to Mayor Theodore D.Mann, chairman of the Newton Area Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

Recruitment vans will be located at shopping centers and central public locations for the convenience of applicants. Currently, there are over 500 jobs available through the Newton Area CETA and this intensive recruitment effort is geared toward hiring as many public service employees as possible in the least amount of time, said CETA Director Richard V. Moynihan.

These jobs include professional, skilled, and unskilled positions, and are with municipalities or non-profit agencies, Moynihan said. The jobs will last up to one year. Applicants must have been unemployed for 15 weeks out of the last 20 to be eligible.

To facilitate the employment process, applicants are asked to bring with them proof of residency in the 10 town Newton Area, and proof of income. These could be a driver's license and pay stubs, Moynihan said.

The 10 towns served are Brookline, Bedford, Dover, Lincoln, Newton, Lexington, Needham, Wellesley, Waltham, and Weston.

On Mondays the CETA Job Centers will be located at the parking area of King's Department Store, 171 Watertown St., Newton, and in Brookline Village, adjacent to the MBTA stop on Pearl St.

Tuesdays will find the vans located in Waltham at the Stop and Shop on Linden St. and at the Division of Employment Security Office in Newton. The Job Centers will be open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

On Wednesdays one van will be serving Brookline at the corner of Harvard and Beacon Sts. all day, while the other unit will be at Memorial Park in Needham from 9 a.m. to noon and at the Newton Highlands Congregational Church from 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Lexington will host one unit on Friday mornings, next to the Town Hall. This van will report back to the Lexington St. Stop and Shop in Waltham for the balance of Friday. The other Job Center will be at the parking area in Newton Centre from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

"We are grateful to the many merchants and municipal authorities who aided us in our scheduling," Mayor Mann said "and we are hopeful that this innovative recruitment program will help bring CETA jobs and programs to all who are eligible."

Any resident of the 10 town Newton Area may apply at any of the Job Center locations during their hours of operation, or at the CETA Intake Office at 141 Moody St., Waltham.

South track, field and stadium estimated to cost $389,000

Plans for the Newton South High School track, field, and stadium were approved by the School Committee Monday night, but the current estimated cost is already $139,000 more than the Committee had anticipated.

City Engineer Cynthia McCarthy showed the plans for the 2000 capacity stadium to the Committee and estimated the cost to be $389,465.

The Board of Aldermen had authorized the expenditure of up to $340,000 left over from the Newton North High School bonded account, but the School Committee had originally expected it to cost $250,000.

Another hearing has to scheduled with the Conservation Commission before the bids can be advertised, which Ms. McCarthy hopes would be by Aug. 15.

If bids come in at over $250,000 the School Committee would have to approve any additional expenditure. A

Work on the football field and the track will be done first, along with a fence and portable stands to seat 500 persons, at an estimated cost of $309,000.

That work will hopefully be started by Sept. 15, and the second phase will be a small building for toilets and watering facilities.

The permanent stadium that will seat 1500 persons on the home side of the field will be built last to allow for additional settling of peat on the land, and to allow for a cutback in case of financial problems.

The stadium is expected to cost $40,000, plus $4500 for a press box.

The field is laid out east to west, with the home stadium planned for the north side.

The three reasons for such a design are to keep the setting sun out of the home team visitors' eyes, to keep the sun on the ceremony for graduation, and to keep the shouting home team voices aimed at the school instead of toward the homes on Brandeis Road.

The Newton South Tigers football coaching staff will also have the advantage of not trying to coach a game while looking into the sun.

The field should be ready for the 1978 football season and hopefully the stadium will be built by then, also.

Alaska pipeline fixed

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UPI) — A broken valve shut down the month-old trans-Alaska pipeline for the fifth time Tuesday, but a replacement part was installed early today and oil once again was flowing southward from the North Slope fields.

An accident broke the valve late Tuesday about 23 miles south of Pump Station No. 1, the northernmost pump station. The pumps for the $9 billion line were turned on again shortly after 2 a.m. EDT, according to John Ratterman of Alyeska Pipeline Co.

The "black gold" gushed from the pipeline when the 1½-by-8-inch valve was broken off by a piece of heavy construction equipment. The front loader banged into the line as workmen were in the process of reburying it. They had dug it up so a check valve could be visually inspected for leaks during the first start-up.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER

Q. I was born on February 2, 1947 at 4:47 p. m. in Miniola Long Island, New York. My daughter who seems much like me in many ways, was born on January 26, 1968 at 10:03 p. m. in Boston, Mass. I would like to know something about the position of the "stars" on our birthdays' especially our Ascendent Signs. Also could you tell me something about any outstanding similarities in our dispositions?

J. H. K.

A. Both of you had the Sun and Mercury in Aquarius and your Sun was in the Seventh House which in a way corresponds to your daughter having the Sign of Libra on her Ascendent which accounts for her "seeming much like you."

However, as she grows older she may not have quite as much vital energy as you have and may tire somewhat quicker than you therefore needing to stop and rest more frequently. What I would like to suggest is that you do not expect her to keep up with you in physical activities. She would do very well when she does not overexert herself.

Your Ascendent is Leo and the planet Mars in Conjunction aspect to your Sun in Aquarius in your Seventh House indicates you would be wise to be careful of how your actions affect others.

You are in need of much attention but do be careful how and what you do to achieve this attention. Unintentionally you may hurt others in turn hurt yourself. You are apt to be quite sensitive especially concerning your hopes, wishes and in you relationships with others which could result in many changes.

Your Jupiter in Scorpio in your Fourth House indicates that through your resourcefulness and your loving nature, your Leo Ascendent, you will be able to do the right thing at the right time and bring matters to a satisfactory conclusion.

Abramson chairman judging panel for Brand Names Foundation

Herbert A. Abramson, president, Silver Lake Dodge, Wellesley Hills, chaired the Judging panel of nine retail executives who have volunteered to judge the contestants in the 1976-77 Brand Names Foundation's Retailerof-the-Year Awards Competition. The judging took place this month, at the Arrow Company, 530 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York, George L. Hill, vice-president Arrow Company USA and Norman K. Matheson, president, The Arrow Company of Canada, hosts.

Abramson who is a member of the Board of Directors of the Brand Names Foundation, Inc., and vicechairman of its Executive Committee, has served as chairman of the judging panel for nine consecutive years. Abramson has won every Award ever offered by the Brand Names Foundation, including its Retail Citizenship Award created especially for him in gratitude for his many contributions, not only to the Brand Names Foundation but other civic and community activities.

The judges evaluated all entries on how effectively each contestant carried out his brand merchandising policies in advertising, promotion, display, employee training, suppliers relations, buying information services and community participation activities to become retail citizens of their communities.

HERBERT A. ABRAMSON

Award winners will be honored at an October 4-6, 1977 Washington Meeting and Customer Confidence Conference, where their award winning presentations will be exhibited at the Hotel Washington.

The Brand Name Foundation's Customer Confidence Program, designed to recognize and identify retailers, according to Perine, who pledge customer satisfaction through reputable business practices, evolved from the Retailer-ofthe-Year Awards Competition. The Pledge Program lists 12 tenets to which a retailer subscirbed, including featuring products of value, fair pricing, truth in advertising, warranty fulfillment, legitimate credit services, equitable complaint handling, customer communications, community involvement. The store's name is imprinted on the Pledge which is signed by the store Executive on behalf of management and employees, and and prominently displayed in the store for customer visibility.

Ken's Fish House Inc., at Routes 1A and 115 Norfolk

Ken's Fish House popular in Norfolk

Ken's Fish House Inc., located at Routes 1A and 115 in Norfolk is a side-by-side Restaurant and Fish Market. Fresh fish daily insures the customer an endless variety of fish and seafood which is guaranteed to taste as good as it looks.

Ed Kenney, owner, opened Ken's Fish House and Restaurant in April and has had considerable experience in the fish industry. He has worked for several fish companies, has been a fish buyer and was a graduate of Boston University, majoring in Marketing and Distribution.

Ken's Restaurant has businessmen's specials available daily, and the luncheon buffet of meats has become as popular as their dinner menu. A varied menu of appetizers, salads, fish, chicken and steak dinners as well as desserts help round out a pleasant dining experience. Take-out service is available for anything on the menu. Facilities are available for private parties and banquets as well as an option for those who wish their party catered at their own location because Ken's has a catering service.

A 10 percent discount is available for Senior Citizens. Happy-Hour time is from 4-6 p.m. Delicious drinks and Hot hor d'oeuvre's are a perfect beginning for a tasty meal at Ken's. Hours are 10 - 10 at both locations.

Questions and Answers on Metric Measurements

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frequently asked questions about metrics — and answers — follows:

Q. What are metric units?

A. The metric system is based on decimals, like the United States monetary system, in which 10 of any unit of measure are equal to one of the next largest unit. For example, 10 cents equal one dime. Ten dimes equal one dollar.

Q. What is the metric unit of length?

A. The basic unit of length is the meter. If for convenience you want to work with smaller units of length, the meter is subdivided into 10 equal parts called decimeters. If you want still smaller units, the meter is subdivided into 100 equal parts, centimeters or into 1,000 equal parts, millimeters. For longer distances, decimal multiples of the meter are used, of which the most common prefix is the kilo. Kilo means 1,000. Hence, one kilometer equals 1,000 meters.

Q. What is the basic metric unit of volume.

A. The liter, which is the volume of one cubic decimeter. You get the subdivisions and multiples of the liter by adding the same prefixes to liter as you did to meter.

Q. What is the basic metric unit of weight?

A. That is the gram, which is the weight of one cubic centimeter of water. The prefixes for the subdivisions and multiples of the gram are the same as those for meter and liter.

(The beauty of the metric system, says the National Education Association, is apparent when you realize its simplicity. By adding the same prefixes to the basic units of meter, liter and gram you produce three tables, one each for length, volume and weight.)

Q. What is the basic metric unit to measure heat?

A. Heat is measured in degrees centigrade. On the Celsius, centigrade, thermometer, water freezes at zero degrees and boils at 100 degrees. Normal body temperature is 37 degrees.

Q. What are some comparisons with the present system?

A. In everyday life people will use only a few metric units which compare with our familiar ones as follows:

— Meter, a little longer than a yard.

— Centimeter, not quite half an inch.

— Kilometer, somewhat longer than half a mile.

— Liter, slightly larger than a quart.

— Milliliter, five milliliters equal one teaspoon.

— Gram, about the weight of a paper clip.

— Kilogram, a little more than two pounds.

For further information about metrication, write to any of the following:

United States Department of Commerce, National Bureau of Standards, Metric Information Office, Washington, D.C. 20234.

United States Office of Education, Washington, D.C. 20202.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

WASH YOUR VIOLETS — Is it safe to wash the leaves of your african violets?

No reason why not. Violet leaves are hairy and tend to gather a lot of dust which can be easily washed off, if you remember a few tips used by Violet fanciers. . . Always use warm water or water at room temperature. And never spray plants while they are in direct light from the sun as it will spot the leaves, especially if the water is not room temperature. Water that varies more than 10 degrees F. in temperature will cause yellow spots on the foliage. Remember, your tap water can be 45 to 50 degrees or colder even in summer.

Use a sprayer which kicks out a fine mist. Some people hold the leaves under a shower, which doesn't seem to do much harm, as long as the water is warm. Do the job early in the morning so the leaves have a chance to dry off before evening.

When violet leaves (or any other house plant) are full of dust and grime particles, it prohibits the tiny pores in foliage to work properly, causing the plant to look unsightly.

CHECK YOUR PEACH TREES — Now a good many peach trees in home lawns are showing a gum boi l or two on the trunk. This can be due to two causes: lawn mowerrrrrrrr ury or peach tree borer, a pest which attacks peach, cherry, apricot, nectarine and even plum trees. The borer causes a gummy, jelly-like mass to form on tree trunks, usually near the soil line.

Once the borer is inside the trunk, it's difficult to reach it. Try poking a hot wire into the tunnels, made by the borer. Many gardeners still use theold fashioned method of applying Paradichlorobenzene crystals (called PCB) available in most drug stores.

First, pull grass away from the base of trunk, for a distance of a foot. Scatter some crystals in a band 2 inches wide at least 2 inches from the trunk. Don't put any crystals against the tree trunk itself. Cover the base and crystals with 4 to 6 shovelfuls of soil and For trees pack. 1 to 2 years old, use 14 oz. of crystals; trees 3 to 4 years old, 12 oz. and trees 5 to 6 years old, ¾ oz; trees 7 years or older, use 1 ounce.

Treat in fall or in late April or early May. Remove crystals and mounded soil after two weeks, as the crystals could injure the tree.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC — "Why is it some indoor fluorescent lights cause such different colors on plants, your skin or even furniture?"

ANS: There so many different lights, and many of these do give you a different color, ranging from pale, pink, shallow, to red and blue.

"Service Clinic" at Union Pontiac

A "Service Clinic," whose purpose is to diagnose and protect a person's automobile, will be held on Tuesday, July 26 and Thursday, July 28, at Union Pontiac, Inc., 201 Needham street, Newton. Members of the Pontiac Motors Division service organization will be present to assist Union's own service organization in giving each autmobile is complete check from "bumper to bumper," examining every important point, especially engine efficiencey as it pertains to the "energy crisis," after which a written report regarding the car's condition will be presented. The service is absolutely free and no attempt will be made to sell repair work or parts, and there is no obligation. The diagnosis is made to see that a motorist gets the most mileage and pleasure from his car. The above service is for Pontiac cars only for the years 1970 - 1975. The clinic inspection is by appointment only. Pontiaccar owners of these years should call 965-6000 for an appointment.

The MLS Advantage

- ★ Over 300 Different Companies
- ★ Over 2400 Selling Agents
- ★ Thousands of Listings to Choose From

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Figures released by the Multiple Listing Service of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board, show a gain of 30% in total sales of 56 cities and towns, served by the board in 1976. According to local Realtors, mortgage money is available and rates are lower than they have been in some time. MLS is the modern professional one stop-one office way to buy or sell your home. Through this facility listings are exchanged among Realtors, and buyers and sellers benefit from the cooperating efforts of the brokers. As a seller your home will have exposure to hundreds of brokers and yet the convenience of working with their own MLS office. Buyers have the advantage of working with one office and having access to all of the participating Realtors listings. Council I&M of the Boston Board is comprised of 16 towns with some 80 offices involved. In order to further promote MLS, this council meets every second and fourth Tuesday of the month at the Pancake House in Walpole. A business meeting is conducted and then the brokers discuss their listings or a particular type of property they might be looking for. Many sales are effected through these efforts.

2 Sale Summer Property

UPPER CAPE

Finest location in Wareham 30,300 sq. ft. of prime waterfront and on beautiful Agawam overlooking the sparkling Weweantic River and Marion Shoreline. Only a 50-minute drive from the Dedham-Needham-Newton area and only a one minute walk to a private and sandy ocean beach. This is the nicest spot left on the Upper Cape. Is a dream-come-true property that has only a salt marsh between the water and you. Walk down your front steps to your private dock or stroll across the road for a breathtaking view of Buzzards Bay. Lot has 165 feet right on water with 200 feet bordering on Sippican Road. At $21,000 is the last bargain left on the Upper Cape. Call Rod Merr Realtor in Wareham at 1-295-4443 and arrange to see this outstanding buy. Jy20,tf,H

New England Horizons

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

FRANKLIN, N.H. (UPI) — The flour mill, and the electric kitchen mixer and blender have made the mortar and pestle little more than a curiosity these days.

But for centuries, the hand-hewn bowl and pounding rod of the same material were all man had to grind grain, saltpeter, iron ore, herbs and medicines. They became the symbol of the pharmacist because of his constant use of them — although today, even the druggist seldom uses them.

A collection of nearly 200 mortars and pestles from many ages lines the walls, spills over the counter and overflows to the back room at the Griffin Drug Co. on the main street of this small mill town.

It's a collection seen by President Carter when he was campaigning in 1972 and added to by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., when he was campaigning in 1964. It has become one of the tourist attractions of central New Hampshire.

The mortars and pestles range in size from a two-foot high tree trunk hollowed out by Americans Indians to a tiny brass affair the size of a child's fingernail, set as the cap of a glass vial made in Thailand The latter is a curiosity sent back by a traveling businessman to swell the collection begun by Herbert A. Griffin when a doctor's widow presented him with his first mortar and pestle.

His son, Rodney, began sending back contributions from Italy and North Africa during World War II, and soon everybody in town was chipping in. There are wooden mortars, brass ones, bronze and cast iron. There's a strange boatshaped Chinese mortar whose pestle is a wheel with a rod through the middle. There are plain and painted versions from the world-renowned Wedgewood china factory in England.

Josiah Wedgewood made his first mortar and pestle when a friendly druggist complained of difficulties in cleaning his wood and metal mortars after use. One material would contaminate the next because the mortar became pitted with use.

Accounts Payable Clerk

Reporting to the Supervisor of Accounts Payable, this assignment involves the processing of vendor invoices. Responsible for the processing for payment of invoices representing goods or services ordered and received by the company. A high degree of attention to detail is required as accuracy in disbursement of company assets is critical. A good deal of contact with outside vendors is required and tact as well as administrative skill is a must. Some experience would be helpful in the accounting field and preferably with a large manufacturer as accounts payable clerk. However, if interested, reply without experience, as INCOTERM is willing to train persons with appropriate aptitude.

INCOTERM Corporation is a leader in the development and manufacture of 'intelligent' computer display terminals. The Company has enjoyed dramatic growth and success in its 8 operational years. Today, the Company's product line has grown to include printers, card readers, magnetic tape units, flexible disc systems, as well as a large library of user-oriented software. INCOTERM customers now include airlines, financial institutions, law enforcement agencies, hospitals, railroads, and state and federal government agencies.

To arrange for an interview appointment, please call Patricia Kumpel, 237-2100, ext. 245.

Ford history

DETROIT (UPI) — The red-brick building in Highland Park, Mich., housed the first of America's modern auto assembly lines. Its promise of a $5-aday job drew thousands to Detroit's automobile industry in the years before World War I.

Now the building is a decaying hulk whose owners long ago moved their operations across town to Dearborn, where the Rouge complex is the nation's largest auto-building facility.

But the once-proud cornerstone of Henry Ford's auto-building empire is symbolic of the problems faced by the Ford Motor Co. as it begins a year-long birthday celebration today as the nation's oldest automobile company.

The Ford birthday will climax on June 16, 1978, the 75th anniversary of the company's founding.

Henry Ford II, the founder's grandson and only the third chief executive the company has had, says there is no money to remodel the fourstory building that once housed his grandfather's offices. They were removed long ago and are on display at the Henry Ford Museum.

In response to a shareholder's remark recently that the Highland Park building "is a sight," Ford said, "the whole place is up for sale."

"We have no plans whatever to spend one dime for the Highland Park plant," Ford said. "I'd like to be able to tell you something differently, but I can't."

Despite record profits, $500 million is being invested every three months through 1980 on new plants and tools to meet government standards by redesigning all of the firm's North American car lines.

That $8 billion spending plan over a four-year period is a long way from June 16, 1903, when Henry Ford founded the company. Its assets consisted of tools, appliances, machinery, plans, specifications, blueprints, a few models and $28,000 in cash supplied by 12 investors.

But, before the first car was sold to Dr. Ernest Pfennig, a Chicago dentist, the bank balance had dwindled to $223.65. The Pfennig sale provided impetus for the fledgling automaker — one of thousands trying to get a piece of an infant industry.

Only Ford, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac remain among all the nameplates that were flaunted at the turn of the century.

From a modest beginning on Detroit's East Side, Ford moved to a larger building in an area 1½ miles from the present headquarters of industry giant General Motors.

Running through a string of initials that included the venerable Model A, a $2,500 sixcylinder luxury Model K and the most successful of the early productions, the $500, fourcylinder Model N, Ford finally arrived at the Model T — the Tin Lizzie that really put America on wheels.

Ford built 15 million Model T's between 1908 and 1927.

By then, the Ford Motor Co. was an industrial complex that spanned the globe, finally outgrowing its Highland Park plant where the modern automobile assembly line was born in 1913 and the $5-a-day job and the philosophy behind it had started a social revolution.

"My grandfather saw the automobile as a piece of machinery," Henry Ford II said in a special anniversary issue. "He envisioned the car, not as a luxury vehicle for the rich, but as a means for the average man to make his life — and his family's — easier and happier."

The Ford family has always controlled the firm, making it one of the few American industries still in control of the founding family.

But Henry Ford did not fully own the company, whose symbol was simply his name, until 1919, after he argued with stockholders over the millions of dollars he wanted to spend on the giant Rouge.

Ford's entry into the auto business actually began seven years before the founding of the Ford Motor Co.

Ford cranked up his original "quadricycle" on June 4, 1896, capping three years of work.

But in his haste to put the vehicle on the rainy streets of Detroit, Ford discovered what many other inventors have learned. His car was larger than the door leading out of his

His plans to repair the damage by bricking up the doorway were halted by the landlord, a Mr. Wreford, who recommended swinging doors and thereby came up with an invention of his own — the first auto garage door.

Jog and look sexier

NEW YORK (UPI) — Want a sexier you? Try jogging.

No doubt about it, says Arthur L. Lydiard, an extraordinary jogger and track coach. The jogging kind are sexually more active — "for years longer."

He goes much further.

A virtual elixir of youth is jogging, as he sees it. A key to keeping men handsome, women beautiful, healthy, too, and a way to lose weight, improve your work, golf, tennis, help you cut o e609hfr7-05a a yzcynczeiycii sssgb-saiiczcwyd bc-jog adv05-1stadd 7-01

x x x with jogging."

But he said, "You must see your doctor first. You should not do it without (medical) checkups afterward. You must not try to do too much at first."

Cross-country skiing actually is the one sport he considers better than jogging for fitness purposes but it is difficult to do year round. Other sports accomplish much the same effect. He mentions tennis, soccer, bicycling — those that mainly use the leg muscles, although others such as rowing also are good.

"The leg muscles — it's the best muscle group to lift the pressure."

About that elixir of youth stuff.

"Remember, it's only since 1960 that jogging began to really catch on. The important thing is that young people get interested. We're just now seeing those that started then approach middle age.

"We have men now 45. They don't look any different than when they were in their 20s.

"The main thing is, if you keep a reasonably high oxygen uptake level, your metabolism functions better. The body doesn't seem to deteriorate anywhere near as much.

"A woman who starts jogging in her 20s will look better in her 50s. She'll keep relatively young."

What of medical authorities? Many now recommend jogging along the same lines. Lydiard likes to tell this story:

"For 13 years, the man who lived next door to me was always ill. One day, he said he wished he could do something about it.

"I got him out jogging — very slow at first, mind. The next morning he said it was the first night he could remember not being up all night.

"Pretty soon, his doctor wanted to know what he was doing, he'd improved so. Now that doctor is jogging, too."

Work, tennis, golf?

"If you raise that uptake level, it affects the central nervous system, your concentration and your coordination improve. I tell men, if they start jogging, I guarantee their golf score will improve. And it invariably does."

Weight?

"Of course, jogging will reduce weight. But, of course, you've got to control your eating. That's one thing Americans in particular do need — some control of their diet. You eat a lot of fatty foods here."

Health?

"Once you get people jogging, it starts to make them more aware of their own welfare. They take care of themselves better. I believe that really helps."

He feels joggers have less desire to smoke. He is a near fanatic about the dangers of smoking.

"I can eat what I want pretty much and drink what I want, but I certainly don't smoke. It reduces the uptake level.

"Unfortunately, if affects other people too. The worst are the cigars and pipes. That's really affecting others."

The reporter, who jogs but also puffs a pipe, stopped puffing.

"People with cigarettes are hurting themselves but at least they take some of the tar out when they inhale before you get it."

The reporter placed his pipe on the table.

"If you have children, you're really affecting their lungs before they're out of the crib."

The reporter, who has children, thought how to hide the pipe without being too obvious. He also thought his recently initiated jogging had not noticeably improved his sex life.

Readers question figures on mileage

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — We have received several questions lately from disappointed car owners questioning the validity of the miles per gallon figures put out by the Environmental Protection Agency.

A reader in Ashland, Ohio says his 1976 Pontiac Astro is supposed to be getting 18 m.p.g. in the city and 20 m.p.g. on the highway, but the figure actually comes somewhere near 13 m.p.g.

A reader in Beach Haven Park, N.J., wonders to whom at EPA he can write to find out just how the tests are run, and whether a "strong gasoline odor" could be due to the exhaust controls on his Ford Granada.

The best place to write is to the Office of Mobile Source Air Pollution Control, Office of Air and Waste Management, EPA, 401 M St. SW, Washington, D.C. 20460.

But here's what they will probably tell you about the mileage:

The m.p.g.figures listed on the window sticker along with the prices are not predictions of what you will actually get on the road in that particular car. What they are supposed to be, the agency says, is "somewhere in the ballpark" and a help to the buyer in comparison shopping.

They are supposed to represent what all cars did under the same test conditions. Thus, you should be able to tell the general difference between, say, an Oldsmobile and a Mercedes.

The tests are run on a dynamometer, a device which moves under the car while the auto itself remains still. It supposedly simulates both city and highway driving conditions.

A car buyer has no legal recourse if his car doesn't perform as well as the sticker says. EPA will just tell the complaining motorist to take it up with his dealer or district manager.

EPA says it gets a lot of inquiries on the subject. This raises the question of whether the mileage figures are of any value. Formerly, a buyer had to take the salesman's word on mileage, so the EPA figures probably are better than nothing. But a buyer should look on them as a guide, not as a promise.

We recently discussed an inquiry about a vacuum cleaner that uses a water tank to help with the cleaning. We had not heard of the device, and consumer officials we contacted thought the price, $500, was a bit high. But a reader in Flint, Mich., thinks differently.

"I have worn out one and then got a rebuilt one and wore it out also. They are not easy to wear out, it's just that I used it every day, sometimes twice a day.

"The machine is also a health product. It's good for people with breathing trouble such as asthma. The machine sells for about $500 and is well worth it if you take good care of it.

YMCA Membership One-third Female

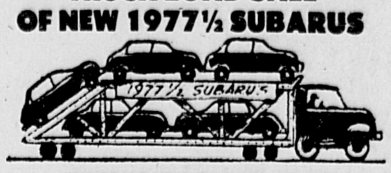

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — More than one-third of the membership of the Young Men's Christian Association are women and girls.

Robert W. Harlan, chief staff executive of the National Council of YMCA, said at a council meeting in Minneapolis recently the 37.7 per cent female membership is expected eventually to reach at least 50 per cent.

To keep pace with membership growth, he said, a new YMCA bulding or major renovation has been completed every 12 days for the past several years.

'Anything Goes' on NNHS stage next week

A full production of Cole Porter's musical, "Anything Goes," will be presented on July 27, 28 and 29 at 8 p.m. at Newton North High School.

Over 150 high school and college students are involved in the summer production, which has become a tradition for the Recreation Department.

Tom Leonard heads the production and serves as its musical director. Susan Nussbaum, who during the winter months works with the Boston Opera Company, serves as director. Jana Rosenblatt returns for her third summer production as producer and costume designer; John D'Agnese is doing the choreography; Caleb Davis created the set designs; and Ben Mayerson is technical director.

"Anything Goes" takes place on a luxury liner, in the late thirties. The liner is en route to New York from England and Cole Porter succeeds in throwing off the depressed mood of the times with his lively lyrics and music. The dancing is original and fresh.

Tickets for the show for $2 for adults, $1 for high school and younger, and free for senior citizens, who are invited to attend any of the three evenings. Tickets may be obtained by calling the Newton Recreation Department, 969-3171, or at the door.

'Lovelight' expands hours

"Lovelight," at the Museum of Science's Charles Hayden Planetarium, is a laser light spectacular which appeals to audiences of all ages.

To meet the demand of family groups for earlier shows "Lovelight" now features twilight performances at 5:30 and 7 p.m. on Sunday and 7 p.m. on Thursday and Saturday. (Other evening performances are Thursday at 8:30; Friday at 9:45 and 11 p.m.; Saturday at 8:30, 9:45 and 11 p.m.; and Sunday at 8:30 p.m.) The new showtimes offer an opportunity to combine a visit to the Museum with a trip to "Lovelight."

The three-act presentation goes far beyond any light show techniques seen to date. With vibrant, colorful laser images on the Planetarium dome and accompanied by an original musical score, it takes the viewer on a lighthearted journey through time and space.

For further information, advance or group sales, call "Lovelight" at 723-4586.

Extinct species

A mother passenger pigeon (wild migratory North American bird) feeds her youngster high in a tree. Apparently they did not escape the predatory hawk or the hunter's gun, because these birds are now extinct. The last wild passenger pigeon was killed in Connecticut in 1906, and the last surviving bird in captivity died at the Cincinnati Zoo in 1914.

Reagle Players staging two summer shows

The Reagle Players are presenting two productions this summer at the Waltham Summer Theater, 617 Lexington St., Waltham.

"The Sound of Music" will be staged July 19-20-23-24, (July 19 is a matinee), followed by "Fiddler on the Roof" Aug. 2-3-6-7. (Matinee on Aug. 2). Curtain is at 8 p.m. Tickets are $3 and $3.50. Call 891-5600 for reservations or purchase at box office.

Book wins national award

A book which acquaints children with the plights of endangered animals and the methods of protecting them, written by a Northeastern University earth science professor and his wife, has received a national award as an "outstanding science book for children."

Professor Bernard L. Gordon and his wife, Esther, a Northeastern student and teacher in Boston's James Garfield Elementary School, received the award for their book, "Once There Was a Passenger Pigeon," published in June, 1976.

The authors were awarded the prize by a review committee of science educators associated with the National Science Teachers Association and from the children's National Book Council.

Professor and Mrs. Gordon live in Chestnut Hill and have just had published a new book, "If an Auk Could Talk," also about a extinct birds.

Minerals on display in library's cases

"There are almost 2000 minerals and none compare with quartz in its numerous varieties," says Harold Freedman of Newton, who has arranged a select group of minerals in the glass cases at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner.

The exhibit, which emphasizes the variety and appealing forms of such common minerals as calcite, will be on view until mid-August.

The minerals on display are representative of the type of collection that can be assembled from currently available material without prohibitive expenditures of time and money. The Freedman Collection, which today numbers over 500 specimens of crystallized minerals, changes continually as new specimens are added and others traded off.

Viewers should take time to study the Galena, a lead sulphide. One piece, weighing over 25 pounds, has dark crystals of sphalerite that have crystallized. The piece sparkles and glimmers; and cubed the way it is, it makes a handsome piece of abstract art.

Freedman, an associate scientist at Dow Chemical Company's Eastern Research Laboratory, Wayland, is president of the Boston Mineral Club. His wife, Marilyn, is also an active member of the organization. One of their three sons, Danny, a graduate of Newton South High, is also an ardent "rock hound."

Summer hours for the Newton Free Library are Monday-Friday 9-9, through September 10.

200 units of housing approved

Housing in Newton will be increased by 200 apartments as a result of action of the Board of Aldermen Monday night, while a 112-unit condominium waits for expected approval next month.

Two other measures affecting housing — a zoning amendment to allow conversion of houses to apartments and an ordinance requiring permission to demolish a dwelling — were denied.

The Board approved two developments planned by Michael Iodice on Commonwealth Avenue, Auburndale. One is a three-building, 56-unit complex of garden apartments adjacent to his development at 2300 Commonwealth Ave.; the other is a 20-unit townhouse development across the avenue at Woodbine Street.

In unprecedented attention to detail, the Board voted on the style of roof to be built on the three garden apartment buildings and by a rollcall vote chose the pitched roof over the mansard roof 14-9.

An amendment offered by Ald. James Miller to reduce the number of townhouses to 19 failed on a 19-4 vote.

Iodice is leasing eight apartments, four in the new apartments and four in another of his buildings, to the Newton Housing Services Commission for low-income

Catch '77 applies to Public Works

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Nearly everybody agrees that public works equipment and rolling stock are in terrible shape and that a lot of new equipment is needed.

But nearly everybody has a reason why it shouldn't be bought now.

The Finance Committee is still meeting with Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson over a request for a $1.25 million bond authorization, less than one-third of what Larson asked for in the FY77-78 budget.

Ald. Ernest Dietz, at a joint meeting of the Finance and Public Works committees last Thursday, questioned whether it is "wise" to spend $1.25 million on new equipment, "with no garage, no maintenance facilities."

Larson last fall put $3 million into the 1978 capital improvement program for a garage and maintenance facility at the Elliot Street yard, but the facility was deferred until the indefinite future by the City Planning Committee and the Board of Aldermen.

Even a $25,000 proposed study of whether there should be one or two maintenance facilities and where it or they should be has been derailed.

Larson has undertaken a regular preventive-maintenance program, the first ever carried on by the city, since he became commissioner, and told the aldermen Thursday night, "We'll do the best we can with what you've given us."

Another faction of aldermen seemed to be playing "blaming the victim," as they criticized Larson for the lack of a maintenance program and the condition of the equipment.

Larson claimed that the city has spent, except for $300,000 for equipment in 1970 and $600,000 for the new fleet of rubbish trucks this year, an average of about $50,000 a year on public works equipment.

Pension probe on

The entry on names on pre-1939 payroll records is still being investigated, according to Police Chief William Quinn Tuesday.

Erasures and insertion of what appeared to be different names for employees due for pension were discovered by Comptroller Lawrence Marino some months ago, but revealed by Mayor Theodore Mann last month.

Some pre-1939 employees are entitled to refund of their contributions to the pension fund and other increased benefits.

About 12 names were inserted, according to Quinn, who has assigned two Newton detectives to work with a state police officer from the Middlesex County district attorney's office. The latter is in charge of the investigation.

According to two City Hall sources the Federal Bureau of Investigation was called in some time ago to investigate the typewriter used in the alteration of the records, but the typewriter was not located in City Hall.

Interviews have been conducted with some, if not all, of the persons whose names were substituted in the records.

Chief Quinn expects the investigation to take at least another month, he said.

Five days to filing time for fall city elections

By CYNTHIA BLACK
of the Graphic staff

Newton's 83 potential candidates for city office have only five more days to get their required numbers of signatures and take their nomination papers to City Hall for certification.

Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Newton Election Commission, said this week that "very few" candidates have already had their papers certified, and warned that candidates who wait until the last minute to file don't leave themselves any extra time to get extra signatures if some of theirs are disallowed.

Deadline for filing nomination papers for certification by the Election Commission is 5 p.m. next Tuesday.

Once filed, the Election Commission checks the signatures on the papers and verifies that they come from registered voters in Newton.

Once certified, candidates have until 5 p.m. on Aug. 11 to change their minds and withdraw their nomination papers. After that, they're on the ballot.

Of the nine potential candidates for mayor, five already have had their nomination papers certified. A total of 400 signatures are needed by mayoral candidates.

The five are incumbent Theodore Mann, Ald. Eliot Cohen, Ald. Richard Bullwinkle, Ald. James Miller and David Berkeley.

A few more people have taken out nomination papers for aldermanic races, but the rumored appearance of Richard McGrath as a candidate for alderman in Ward 4 had not materialized Wednesday. McGrath lost his state representative seat to Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci last year.

The previously unreported candidates for alderman are in Wards 5, 7 and 8.

In Ward 5 Robert Sandman of 72 Fairlee Rd., and Joseph Weinrebe of 154 Oliver St., have taken out nomination

Home care for MS victims taught in new program

BY PRISCILLA LEITH
Graphic Correspondent

Families of multiple sclerosis (MS) victims have responded enthusiastically to a course on home care of MS patients now being taught at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital under the auspices of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and the American Red Cross.

Offered for the first time in New England, the course is geared to care of people moderately or severely disabled with the crippling disease, with which some 500,000 Americans are afflicted.

Margaret Sacco, R.N., of the Newton Red Cross, is the instructor for the all-woman class.

It's hard to get factual information

Demand for the course far exceeds the expectations of Lynn Wasserman, Director of Patient Services for the Massachusetts MS Society, which is headquartered in Newton Upper Falls.

"The demand was just tremendous," says Ms. Wasserman, who set up the program.

"Once we announced the course, people were calling and calling us," she added.

The distances people are driving to attend the weekly sessions underline the great need for such a course, Ms. Wasserman believes.

One woman comes from as far away as Holden, near Worcester.

Other students drive from Marion, Dracut, Hingham, Medfield, Hanover and Wayland, as well as the Newton area, to attend the two-hour classes that run through Aug 23.

"Each session has been invaluable," says Barbara Yardley, a Needham resident whose husband has MS.

"The literature available on MS is extremely limited. It's to be found, if one really digs ... but it is very hard to get factual information, and I've been able to learn so many answers to questions I've had (from the course)," she added.

In addition to appreciating the professional lecturers in psychology, neurology and nursing techniques, Ms. Yardley finds there is a special benefit fro meeting and talking with other spouses and relatives of MS victims who have been going through difficult experiences similar to her own.

"The group interaction is extremely interesting and helpful," she says.

She sees a good possibility of forming support groups, composed of members of MS families, once the formal course is over.

Of the 18 people in the course, most are spouses, but some are sisters or mothers of MS victims.

Interestingly, although more women than men have multiple sclerosis, by a 3-2 ratio, in the course all of the family members taking instruction are female and all of the victims they care for are male.

Instructors in the course use the Red Cross Home Nursing textbook as a basic text, adding specialized materials tailored to the needs of the MS patient.

Practice sessions are taught by neurologists, physical therapists, nutritionists and psychologists who are aware of the special needs of MS patients.

At the initial June 14 session, Dr. William Timberlake, a neurologist at Lemuel Shattuck Hospital in Boston, talked to the class.

Although people had said on their applications that they knew all about the neurology aspects of MS, when the two hour session was held "they couldn't get enough of it," Ms. Wasserman noted.

"It's a rare neurologist who will sit down and talk to people for two whole hours," she added.

Timberlake is a member of the medical advisory committee of the Massachusetts Multiple Sclerosis Society.

MS is a disease of the central nervous system with no known cause or cure.

It attacks the myelin sheath, which is the coating or insulation around the nerve fibres in the brain and the spinal cord.

The myelin which has been destroyed is replaced by plaques of hardened tissue,

Disease takes its emotional toll on the family called "sclerosis", in multiple places throughout the nervous system.

Hence the name "multiple sclerosis", or MS.

MS usually strikes in the prime years of a person's life, between ages 20 and 40. Age 15 is thought to be the crucial age for catching or not catching MS, according to Ms. Wasserman.

Although MS is nor neither contagious inherited, according to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, there is an "environmental factor".

In general, the further a country lies from the equator the higher the prevalence of MS among the population, the Society has discovered.

There is no evidence, however, that moving to a different climate will change the natural course of the disease, the Society says.

One theory of the cause of MS is that it is a slow-acting virus, contracted when people are young and becoming active at ages 20 to 40, Ms. Wasserman says.

Another theory is that there is a defect in the immunity of people who get MS, she says.

Diagnosis of the disease is difficult and sometimes a very lengthy process.

Tests are usually given to eliminate everything else, with a spinal tap indicating that the problem may be MS.

It is the total picture - the pattern of symptoms and the test results - which will finally lead to a diagnosis of MS, Lynn Wasserman says.

The whole process often causes emotional trauma for the patient.

After years of trying to find out what is wrong with you, a doctor may say, "There's nothing wrong with you," or tell you it's all emotional and that you are imagining the symptoms, she explained.

"I've had people tell me they are so relieved, once MS is diagnosed, because they've gone years not knowing what's wrong with themselves," she commented.

Weakness, tingling, numbness, impaired sensation, lack of coordination, double vision, involuntary or rapid movement of the eyes, lack of coordination, a staggering gait, loss of balance, slurred speech, and in severe cases, paralysis of limbs or impaired bladder and bowel functions are among its symptoms.

Although extended periods of remission are common, the symptoms do impair a victim's ability to function normally at a job or at home, and, , inevitablythis leads to both emotional and practical problems for the family as well.

If the man is the breadwinner, income is lost. A married couple must then decide whether the wife should go to work and become the breadwinner if she has not been holding down a paying job before.

Rodney Barker will run for alderman in Ward 6

Rodney M. Barker, of 49 Woodcliff Rd., Newton Highlands, is a candidate for alderman-at-large from Ward 6.

During the 10 years he has lived in Newton, he says he has become increasingly involved in issues that affect the whole city." He decided to run because he felt that he would have a valuable contribution to make the city as an alderman, he said.

Barker said he feels that the villages are what make Newton such a unique and human city, and that local businesses and civic and recreational interests should be given every encouragement to help the villages stay healthy. In an energy-short future, our citizens will benefit from having viable facilities close at hand, he said. In the revitalization of village centers, all avenues leading to the use of federal and state funds should be explored, he suggested.

Barker thinks that more communication between city government and the people of Newton is needed. In his view, the local neighborhood organizations should be active participants in the municipal decision-making process. The city should keep the organizations informed of proposed plans for the city or their neighborhood to avoid bringing them in at the last minute.

Rodney Barker

Barker feels strongly that there is a desperate need for more housing in Newton for the elderly and those with low and moderate incomes. The elderly should not be driven out of the city where they have spent their working lives by intolerable housing costs, he said. Property tax relief for the elderly should be increased and housing should be built or apartments renovated near village centers and public facilities, such as libraries and transportation, he suggested. In his opinion, low and moderate income housing is best provided in a development where there is a mixture of subsidized and market-rate units so as not to "type" the residents or change the character of the neighborhood.

He thinks that the city should continue its policy of preserving and encouraging the redevelopment of unused city buildings. There is no reason why such buildings could not be converted for both public and private use, thereby providing tax revenues for the city, he said.

Barker feels that open space is vital to the health and well-being of all Newton citizens. As soon as possible, the city should develop a comprehensive open-space plan. In his view, the emphasis in such a plan should be on the acquisition of parkland for the use and enjoyment of all.

The branch libraries are an essential part of local community life. While plans are going forward for a new central library of the future, the facilities of branch libraries should not be neglected; they must be available to children, the elderly, and others who do not wish to drive a car, he said. A microfilm copy of the central library catalogue should be planned for all branches, to facilitate use of central library materials by branch users, Barker said.

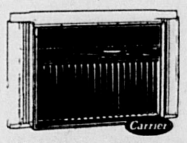

Every effort must be made to insure that the 100 percent valuation, due to go into effect in July 1978, be absolutely fair. Property taxes are a difficult burden for many Newton families. The aldermen should actively support alternatives to this tax at the state level and discourage the state from relying on local property taxes to fund new programs, Barker said.

Barker has lived in Newton Highlands with his wife and three children for nearly 10 years. He has just completed his term as president of the Hyde School PTA and is treasurer of the Newton Highlands Area Council. He is on the boards of the Newton Conservators, Freeport, All-Newton Music School, and NEWW Centre, and has coached for the Newton Youth Soccer League. Politically, he is a member of the Democratic City Committee, was Newton co-chairman for the Udall for President Committee, and was elected a delegate to the National Convention, 1976.

Barker was born in England and was educated at Cambridge University there and at Oberlin College in Ohio. He practiced law in England, has taught history for many years in this country, and is now a practicing attorney.

State Rep. Peter Harrington, a candidate for mayor, visited Nonantum as he began his door-to-door campaign for the city's highest office. He is pictured with Alice Webber of 159 Adams St. Harrington indicated the reuse of Stearns School was the issue most frequently mentioned as a concern in that section.

Mayoral candidate begins door-to-door campaign

Newton mayoral candidate Peter Harrington kicked off his door-to-door campaign last week in Nonantum stressing the importance of keeping the area surrounding the Stearns School undeveloped and utilizing it for recreational purposes.

z "This is the most densely-populated area of the city and open space here is precious," Harrington said, speaking with voters who had voiced concern that the school site may be developed.

The Stearns School site has been a subject of controversy since early 1970. The building was scheduled to be condemned, but was reopened for use by the school departmental administration. Now vacant, concern has once again arisen over the use of the site.

At a meeting of Nonantum citizens Rep. Harrington suggested that a public hearing be held to gain support for the proposal to use the land for recreational and open space purposes.

The meeting was one of many the Newton state representative hopes to have in July and Autust as he, accompanied by several volunteers, will be visiting the homes of thousands of voters throughout the city of Newton as a major component of his campaign effort, he said.

Ringing doorbells three to five hours a day, four and five days a week, Harrington will be able to meet personally, yet informally, with Newton voters and accurately gauge the issues and the problems that concern city residents, he feels. In addition the voters will be given the opportunity to learn where Harrington stands on various issues, he said.

Thus far the candidate said he has received a "good, positive reaction" from voters while conducting his campaign on foot.

"People are pleased to see a candidate make an effort to reach voters personally," said Harrington. "I think they realize a house-to-house campaign requires a tremendous investment of both time and energy."

During his tenure as a state representative, Harrington has walked through his district regularly to keep in touch with his constituents. Now that the three-term legislator is running for mayor, he has expanded his walks beyond the boundaries of his district and will be visiting all the Newton villages.

"Based on the walks I'll be able to address pertinent issues," Harrington noted, "but more importantly I'll be able to do it with respect to problems that vary from village to village, neighborhood to neighborhood."

City to appeal order to stop using landfill

The Rumford Avenue landfill area will continue to be used while the city appeals a June 21 order from the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering that the use of the landfill stop immediately.

Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson said this week he is still having material dumped at the site and is going to appeal the state's order "because the city needs someplace to dump."

The DEQE order called for immediate cessation of the depositing of refuse and the completion of chipping of brush within 15 days after receipt of the order.

Within 30 days after receipt of the order, dated June 21, Newton was told to submit a detailed engineering report on control of leaching from the site plans for grading, capping and seeding the completed portions of the landfill; and a plan for any intended continued activities at the landfill, including but not limited to recycling programs, and a phased closure of the entire site.

The Public Works Department dumps construction and tree debris at the site and maintains the recycling dumpsters there.

Youngblood named acting head of English

David Youngblood, an English teacher at Newton South High School for 10 years, was approved by the School Committee to be acting English Department head for the coming school year.

South Principal Ernest Van Seasholes nominated him for the job after Richard Shohet decided to leave the position.

Youngblood received his B.A. degree in English from Wesleyan Univeristy, and received his M.A.T. from Harvard Graduate School of Education in 1965.

He was at South from 1963 to 1969 when he went to the University of Nevada to study and teach. From 1971 to 1972 he was a jouranlist for the North Las Vegas Valley Times.

Youngblood returned to South in 1972 and has been and has been teaching there since then.

Honora Kaplan to direct new mental health office

Honora A.Kaplan of Quidnic Road, Waban, will direct the newly created Office of Community Residential Development, according to Mental Health Commissioner Robert Okin.

The new office, in the Department of Mental Health, will work at the state level to accelerate the establishment of housing in communities for the mentally ill and mentally retarded.

Ms. Kaplan, a member of the School Committee, graduated from Smith College in 1961, received a masters degree in public administration from Harvard, and a law degree from Boston College Law School.

"The development of residential options for mentally ill and mentally retarded people is a target priority of the Department of Mental Health. Many people remain in institutions throughout the state simply because there isn't adequate housing for them in Massachusetts' cities and towns," Okin said.

Okin emphasized that community programs are not experimental programs, pointing out that there are currently 300 such community residences across the state. He added that although a number of these have been developed in recent years, there are still "a great number of people confined in state institutions who are ready for community life, and for whom, a home in the community represents the first family they will have."

Over the past year, the Department has evaluated the residents of the state schools for the retarded and found that nearly half of them are able to live outside the institutions if housing and other services were available to them.

Okin said, "We know that some communities have not welcomed these people, but in almost every case where there was opposition, once the people moved in they were accepted as part of the neighborhood."

The Office of Community Residential Development will work with other state agencies that have a role in establishing housing for the mentally ill and mentally retarded.

It will assist potential providers of service by developing a streamlined process for meeting state requirements for community programs. It will also work with the real estate, business, and financial communities and citizen groups to promote a better understanding of community residential programs.

Ambulance service OK

The Fire Department ambulance plan, the vehicles including the Class 2 now in service, the manning by emergency medical technicians and the police back-up with Class V ambulettes properly manned with two EMTs has been approved by the appropriate state agency and is headed for final certification.

The full ambulance service will be in operation in September and will consist of two new Class 1 ambulances, backed up by the existing Class 2 vehicle.

The correspondence received states in part "We (Office of Emergency Medical Services) have notified the chief municipal official in your community that the plan of correction is accepted, and that we will be recommending licensure of the service and certification of the ambulance(s) by the Public Health Council as soon as their agenda permits."

Sen. Brooke seeks aid for Italy, Soviet Jews

A Senate appropriations subcommittee today approved of funding for several key foreign assistance programs that will affect Italian earthquake victims and Soviet or East European Jews who have emigrated to Israel. The funding levels, proposed by Sen. Edward Brooke, were part of the FY 1978 Foreign Assistance Bill.

The subcommittee accepted an amendment offered by Brooke, together with Senator Deconcini (D-Arizona), for $30 million to help the victims of two devastating earthquakes in Italy. The $30 million is in addition to $25 million appropriated last year.

Brooke said the program has been very successful, and added: "This program will be of great benefit in helping these victims and will be one more indication of the intense desire of the American people for close relations between our two countries."

Brooke said another key program for which he won a commitment for full funding was the Soviet Refugee Assistance Program to Israel. The subcommittee contemplated a level of $28 million, but Brooke argued that the House-passed level of $33 million was the least the Congress should appropriate.

Brooke said that the program was of great importance to Soviet and East European Jews who imigrate to Israel, and he called the acceptance of his amendment to ensure full funding "a reaffirmation of the U.S. commitment to help Soviet Jews who desperately desire to live in freedom."

The bill needs further approval.

SUNDAY'S TOP TV RECOMMENDATION

THE CRY OF A HURTING WORLD...

"I'M HUNGRY!"

BOSTON—A gripping television special on the subject of world hunger, which premieres here Sunday at 1:00 p.m., on WNAC-TV, Channel 7, could be "the most important TV special of 1977," according to TV personality Art Linkletter

Art Linkletter calls hunger program "Most important TV special of 1977"

The program—THE CRY OF A HURTING WORLD, "I'M HUNGRY!"—is being sponsored by World Vision International, a worldwide Christian humanitarian organization.

Linkletter, who appears as a guest on the program, said: "This national TV special on world hunger will help viewers of all ages understand the meaning of hunger and malnutrition. I hope everyone will watch it."

In addition to Linkletter, other featured guests on the program include Julie Andrews, Steve Allen and Jayne Meadows, Vincent Price, Roger Staubach, Shirley Jones, Hank Aaron and Carol Lawrence

Also appearing will be Billy Graham, Dean Jones, B. J. Thomas, Dale Evans, The Muppets, Evie Tornquist, and Pat Robertson.

Other outstanding guests are Art Simon of "Bread for the World," Dr. Roger Revelle from Harvard University, Brad Morse of the UN Development Program, Senator Mark Hatfield, chairman of the Senate Nutrition Committee, and nationally-recognized authorities on hunger and population.

The exhaustive program explores the hunger issue vividly and in explicit detail, taking the viewer into the homes of the Mia family in Bangladesh, the De Silva family in Brazil, and the Alarin family in the Philippines. There are close-ups of the lives of hungry people in India, Kenya, Indonesia, and many other lands where parents and children together attempt to survive on the amount of food an average American eats during a coffee break.

The telecast gives a clear and positive presentation of solutions and remedies for the hunger crisis, with documented stories of heroic and sacrificial work now being done by religious, charitable and government programs overseas.

THE CRY OF A HURTING WORLD..."I'M HUNGRY!" tells the story of needless suffering and death. At the same time, it focuses on men and women whose love-in-action is bringing hope and life itself to hungry people.

The program is hosted by Stan Mooneyham, president of World Vision International.

HONDA A WHEEL DEAL!

Harry came to us looking for a wheel deal on a small car. We told him about Honda. 41 miles to the gallon highway driving. Regular low-lead gas because there's no catalytic converter. Lots of leg room. Harry loved it. He bought it. And now he's weady and waring to go! Harry got a wheel deal, why not . . . that's the weason we're here! Bicycle-car accident takes life of Newton man

An emigre from Russia to West Newton three years ago was killed in a bicycle-car accident in Waltham Monday.

David Zilberman, 39, of West Newton, a teacher at Brandeis University, was killed after being struck by a car while riding his bicycle on Crescent Street in Waltham.

Waltham Police charged the 17-year-old driver with the misdemeanor of homicide by means of a motor vehicle, driving under the influence of alcohol and driving to endanger.

The funeral service for Zilberman was held Wednesday (July 27) in Berlin Chapel at Brandeis.

Zilberman, his wife and two daughters came to the United States in 1974. He began teaching at Brandeis as a member of the philosophy and history ideas department in 1975 after a stint at Hunter College in New York.

Zilberman became the focal point of a student protest last year when Brandeis did not reappoint him after he finished his one year of teaching. He was subsequently rehired as a research fellow.

Zilberman was born in Odessa, Russia, and graduated from the Odessa Hydrometeorological Institute and the State Institute of Patent Service. He received his doctorate from the Institute of Social Research, Academy of Sciences, USSR, in Moscow in 1972.

When he was working on his doctorate, he had problems with the Soviet government over papers he wrote of Judiasm. He was offered the choice of exile or detention in a mental hospital.

Zilberman is survived by his wife, Ellena; two daughters, Sascha and Natasha; his mother and sister, both of Russia.

Central dispatch center gets third FinCom look

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

After a feeble vote recommendlast weeking approval of funding for the new police-fire central dispatch center, the Finance Committee Monday night decided not to report the matter out to the full Board of Aldermen.

Last Thursday a bond authorization of $665,000 was approved by a vote of 4 in favor, 3 abstentions. But a long memorandum from Ald. John Stewart, outlining the great number of reservations he has about the central dispatch center, swayed members of the Finance committee, by a 5-3 vote to go over the proposals for the third time.

Mayor Theodore Mann, Fire Chief Harvey Preble, and Police Chief William Quinn outwardly agree on the need for a central dispatch center (CDC).

Its primary benefit appears to be to the Police Department, which would gain space by the removal of dispatching to fire headquarter

The main benefit to the Fire Department appears to be the new radio equipment that would be an integral part of the CDC. The Fire Department's radios are out dated and have been for years, but there is never money allowed in the budget for a new system.

To the mayor, the big point, besides keeping his chiefs happy, is the fact that if all goes as planned with the staffing of the CDC, there will be money saved on personnel.

Just how much cannot be firmly stated. The combined dispatch center, which would also serve the ambulance service to be run by the Fire Department, would need fewer people than two separate fire and police dispatching operations as they are now conducted.

The mayor's office has calculated that there will be a saving of at least $1.2 million over the next 10 years if the CDC goes in, because eight fewer people will be needed to run the single center.

But Quinn said he could not promise that there will be four fewer police officers on the force after four are relieved of the dispatching function. Fire Chief Preble does not hesitate to say that he will be able to do with four fewer firefighters.

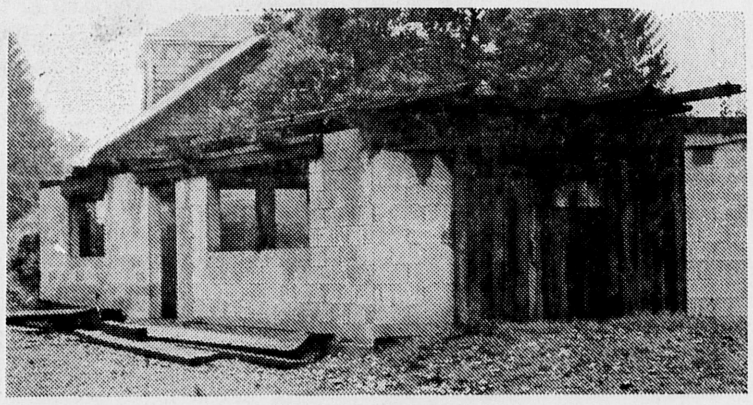

Stewart, who has apparently done recent massive investigation into the success and drawbacks of central dispatch centers elsewhere, said in his statement given to the aldermen that 8unless he heard "overwhelming arguments to the contrary" Monday night he would vote against the $665,000 bond authorization.

Stewart questions the advantages of a combined system and notes that of 10 communities he checked, only Arlington is seriously considering establishing a centralized facility.

He believes that a separate upgrading of each system — police and fire — would prove cheaper and more effective.

His memorandum concludes with a proposal to get a review by "an outside, neutral, independent group of professionals in the public safety field," which could be done, he says, for $5000-$8000 and would take four to six weeks.

The Finance Committee meets next tonight (Thursday).

Izzy Cholfin's retirement home

Snail's-pace construction arouses neighborhood

The three-year ordeal of residents of Newton Highlands' Charlemont Street may be drawing to a satisfactory close, after assurances from Ald. Eliot Cohen that that the Building Department will straighten out the "the House That Izzy Built."

According to the "Charlemont Committee Report," compiled by a group of neighbors and sent to Mayor Theodore Mann, Cohen, other city officials, and local newspapers, the trouble on Charlemont Street, off Winchester began in the fall of 1974, when a load of 3-cu. ft concrete blocks was dumped at Number 39.

The land is owned by Sarah and Izzy Cholfin, formerly of 300 Tremont St., Newton Corner.

The following spring an excavation was made, then filled in with the blocks. Sporadic work continued until last spring, when a neighbor talked with Cholfin about his plans for a house.

Cholfin at that time told a neighbor that he planned to build a log cabin retirement home with old 12x12-inch timbers he had bought.

By that time the neighbor had started going to the Building Department, where he looked at plans filed. Plans showed a triangular one-story building.

Construction work, site work' and complaints to the city continued during the summer. The cement-block walls were built, and the shape of the building was changed from triangular to trapezoidal. Fill was dumped at the site, then the timbers.

Weekly in-person complaints to the Building Department got no results, according to the neighbors, and it was not until a letter of complaint was sent that anything happened.

Cholfin began putting the timbers on top of the building.

David Johnson, who lives directly across the street from the structure, has pointed out several violations in procedure and construction. Johnson is an architect.

The major violations are the use of old, ungraded lumber for the roof supports' the disagreement between the submitted plan and the actual building, and the inadequate plans themselves.

Johnson also calls the lot an "attractive nuisance," where neighborhood children can be hurt.

Cholfin could not be reached for comment this week.

Johnson commented that "a year-and-a-half of my persistent complaints and comments have been rendered only lip service" by the city. He is Drink up! Closing hours to be enforced

After finding several violations of closing-hour regulations, the Newton Board of License Commissioners is issuing a set of guidelines for the convenicnee of the public and restaurant and barroom operators.

During a six-month period the administrative director and members of the commission made periodic inspections of facilities licensed to sell alcoholic beverages in Newton to determine whether there was a strict compliance with the licensee's closing hour. These inspections were conducted at midnight, 1 a.m. and 2 a.m.

At several licensed premises it was noted that the licensee was not adhering to the fixed closing hour as indicated in the annual license and that customers were being allowed to stay beyond the fixed closing hour.

The commission points out that no "drink consumption time" is allowed under Chapter 138 G. L. nor has the Newton Board of License Commissioners ever approved of a "drink consumption time" beyond the licensee's closing hour.

In a written notice to all of Newton's restaurants and motels with alcoholic licenses, the commission has advised that last call for alcoholic beverages should be 30 minutes prior to the licensee's closing hour, that all entertainment must cease 30 minutes prior to the licensee's closing hour.

At the licensee's closing hour all customers must be out or leaving the licensed premises and that "no drink consumption time" beyond the licensee's closing hour is allowed.

The Board of License Commissioners has advised the licensees that the Commission intends to enforce strict compliance to the closing hour. Any licensee not adhering to their closing hour will be requested to appear before the commission to show cause as to why their closing hour should not be rolled back to an earlier hour or the license to operate suspended for a period of time to be determined by the Commission.

Members of the Newton Board of License Commissioners are Ernest G. Angevine, chairman; Zena Nemetz; and Jerome J. Pearlstein. The administrative director is Carleton P. Merrill.

Mayor Mann headquarters open evenings

Campaign headequarters for Mayor Theodore Mann, located at 634 Commonwealth Ave., Newton Centre, officially began evening hours Tuesday night.

"The opening of headquarters for evening work is in response to the request of many campaign supporters who wish to help but can only do so after work," Mann said.

"Anyone interested in my positions, or in assisting in the campaign should visit the headquarters," he said. Call 965-4848 for information.

Board of Aldermen

Elderly parking reconsidered; Walnut Hall use not decided

An ordinance allowing the elderly to park free at metered municipal lots was reconsidered Monday night' after having been approved by the Board of Aldermen July 5.

Motion for reconsideration was filed by Board President Joseph McDonnell after that meeting, when he realized the sticker to be issued to the elderly driver could allow someone else to park the car in city lots all day free.

The matter was sent back to the Legislation & Rules Committee.

In other action, the the whole Board met informally to try to deal with the the disposition of Walnut Hall, one of the former Newton Junior College buildings now up for sale or rent as surplus property.

The Bay Path Colonial Council of the Girl Scouts has offered $20,000 for the ¾-acre site and building, but Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small wants to have the land rezoned for office and professional use.

The property, at 430 Walnut St., Newtonville, is worth $100,000 or more, Small said, and should produce tax revenue for the city.

The City Planning Committee had recommended earlier that the house be converted to a two-family dwelling, but it appears that it is too big for that purpose.

The City Planning Committee, to which the matter was referred a few weeks ago for suggested other uses for the property, did not change its opinion.

Twelve of the 17 aldermen who attended the session were in favor of pursuing the rezoning of the property for office use.

The next step, Small said, is to hold a public hearing on the best use of the property.

$750,000 asked for street construction

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has sent to the Board of Aldermen a request for authorization of a bond issue for $754,000 for betterment of streets.

Mann said, "Our city has long-awaited these street improvements, and I am confident that these needs will be met. I urge the Board of Aldermen to take affirmative action on this matter."

According to Cynthia McCarthy, city engineer, it is now up to her department to prepare the preliminary designs and hold public hearing, once the funding has been approved by the Board of Aldermen.

The streets covered by the $754,000 are:

Ashmont Avenue, Crafts to Hawthorne; Ridge Road, Varick to Carlton; Howard Street, Adams to Derby; Grove Hill Avenue, Prospect Avenue to Park; Prospect Park, Grove Hill Avenue to No. 68; Francis Street, Garner to end; Neshobe Road, Washington to Agawam.

Also, Kensington Street, Watertown Street to accepted portion; Trinity Terrace; Pratt Drive, Morrill to end; Upland Avenue, Dedham to end; Dickerman Road, Lincoln to Boylston; Maple Terrace.

Assessments to owners of property on these streets will pay for $144,000 of the cost.

Two other streets have been approved. Work is in progress on John Street, Newton Centre. Jepson Court in West Newton has not been acted on by the Board.

HUD meeting set on Lower Falls

Lower Falls housing developers and members of the Planning & Development Board and the neighborhood have a meeting tentatively arranged with the Boston office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development today or tomorrow, according to Louis Garfield, of Barkan Construction Co., one of the developers.

The meeting is being held to answer questions on HUD financing, which the developers claim requires that no more than 12 of the projected 60 units of housing to be built in the the Lower Falls redevelopment area be rented at market rents.

The Lower Falls Area Project Committee and the rest of the Lower Falls residents have been under the impression that the apartments would be split equally among low-income elderly, moderate-income and market-level-income tenants, and rose up in protest against New Falls' Associates plan to get 100 percent HUD subsidy for the apartments.

Mayor Theodore Mann has intervened on behalf of the neighborhood.

Cleaning up

A letter to the editor this week reminded us that we have been planning to write an editorial about garage sale signs and express the same sentiments the letter writer did.

We couldn't agree with him more. Anyone should be allowed to tack up a garage sale sign without any undu interference.

However, it is only common courtesy to take the signs down after the sale is over, and simple sloth not to.

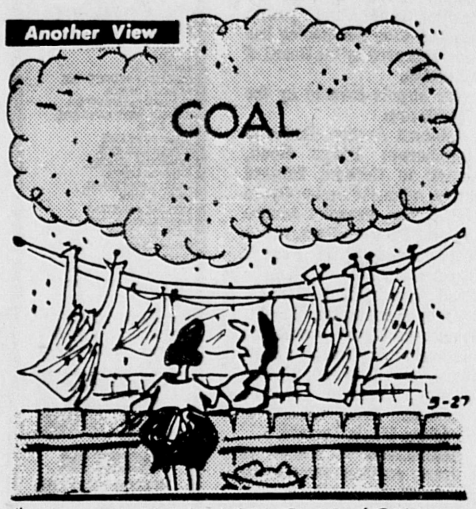

The letter makes another very good point. Since the signs give the address of any culprits, it would be a simple matter to cite the people for littering. Littering is prohibited by the city ordinances of Nelton.

But that's really one step farther than we should have to go.

Do us all a favor. If you have a garage sale and post signs around the neighborhood, take them down when your finished.

Otherwise, I guess there's nothing we can do but agree with the letter writer. All the people should be fined for littering.

"JUST WHEN I HAD RING AROUND THE COLLAR LICKED."

Adopt, we should

The Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution will eventually be ratified by the necessary 38 states, but unfortunately it will be too late for Alice Paul, regarded as the author of the amendment. She died earlier this month at the age of 92.

Dr. Paul, educated as a social worker and lawyer, spent her long and active life in the women's rights movement. She was indoctrinated by the famous British feminists Emmeline and Cristabel Pankhurst while working in a settlement house in England in 1907. Shortly afterward she went to Washington to take a leadership role in the drive to gain women the right to vote.

It took until 1920 to pass the 19th Amendment, but ERA has taken even longer. It was introduced in Congress for 49 consecutive years before it finally cleared the House and Senate in 1972. And five years later it is three short of the necessary number of states for ratification.

After all these years there is still a great deal of misunderstanding about ERA. All it does is guarantee the same legal rights to women as to men.

It is as worthy of adoption as was the amendment giving women the right to vote.

Poll shows Ellison can't win Council seat

By James G. Colbert, Transcript political analyst

A telephone poll made by the writer indicated there is litte likelihood former School Committeeman Paul J. Ellison of West Roxbury will be elected to the City Council next autumn.

A big majority of the people interviewed expressed sympathy for Ellison and his family but made it clear 1 they are unwilling to forgive, forget and elect him to public office again.

If he should be cleared and found innocent on his appeal to a higher court, that would throw a new light on the situation, they said.

The survey to ascertain voter sentiment for and against Ellison was made largely in West Roxbury, where Ellison resides and where he should poll his biggest vote although calls were made in all sections of the city.

Ellison made a stronger showing outside more West Roxbury than he did in his own district although he did not run well enough in any area to create the impression he could win election.

Former Committeeman Ellison, who is serving a two-year sentence in the Dedham Jail, is planning to conduct his campaign by remote control from the jail. When Ellison visited City Hall to apply for nomination papers as a Council candidate, a jail official was quoted as saying he thought Ellison was meeting with his attorney and that the former School Board member would not have been given a furlough to enable him to seek nomination papers in order to become a candidate for elective office while in jail. Many of the people called and questioned said they did not fully understand what Ellison had been accused of doing but that they knew he had been convicted of doing something wrong and sent to jail. When asked if they felt Ellison was innocent or guilty, most of them replied that he had been found guilty in a court of law and that they accepted that verdict unless and until it is reversed by a higher court. "If he wasn't guilty of anything else, he was guilty of stupidity, and he's supposed to be intelligent enough to represent us on the School Committee and City Council," declared one West Roxbury man who said he had read carefully the news stories about Ellison's indictment and the testimony given at his trial."

"I'm tired of electing people who misuse their power and abuse their trust after they take office," he continued. "I feel sorry for Ellison's family, but the voters gave him his chance and he blew it."

Another West Roxbury resident said he was turned off when Ellison claimed he had been indicted because he was against force school busing. "That was a blatant, barefaced alibi and untruth," he asserted.

"I figured Ellison didn't have much of a case if that was the best defense he could offer. I know Garry Byrne. He's probably the best District Attorney in the country. He isas much against forced busing as Ellison is. He never indicted anyone for being opposed to forced busing.

"I'm against forced busing myself. But what's that got to do with Ellison's case? I think he threw that out as a smoke screen because he didn't have anything better to say," he went on.

"I followed Ellison's case closely because he lives in the community, and I voted for him the year he was elected. I don't know if he was innocent or guilty. If he was innocent, what he did was certainly strange and unusual. But his claim that he was persecuted because he was against forced busing was an insult to our intelligence."

"I believe he should be treated fairly in jail, no better and no worse than anyone else. He certainly should not be beaten up in jail. I hope he gets a job when he gets out. I wish his family well. But I'll never vote for him again for any office," he concluded.

That summed up pretty well the sentiment of a majority of the voters polled. It indicates why Ellison's campaign for the City Council is not likely to get off the ground.

Those hot 1978 models

Commentary by Virginia Payette

Here's one for automobile customers: If you're standing on tiptoe, waiting for the hot new models to come out, that may be just what you'll be getting.

But not "hot" as in flashy or powerful.

The '78s will be "hot" as in illegal.

For six months now, Congress and Detroit have been playing assembly-line "chicken." And they're practically down to the moment of truth, with nothing settled yet.

And thereby hangs a long, sad tale.

There's this law, see, that says the auto makers have to clean up their 1978 models to conform to tougher emission standards. Nothing sudden about it; it's been on the books for four years.

But the auto makers say there's no way they can do that and why doesn't Congress change the law?

Now you might think this is pretty high-handed of Detroit, and it is. That staunch environmentalist, Sen. Edmund Muskie, said as much last year when he vowed never, ever, to knuckle down to the automobile folks.

But that was last year, and several people have had little talks with Mr. Muskie since then, and he is not quite so staunch any more.

Meanwhile, the lobbyists have been revving up their drive to convince the gentlemen in Congress that the standards are too tough, that Detroit just hasn't the technical know-how to clean up their emissions in time, and ... well ... what about it?

Congress got the drift. Nobody came right out and said what might happen if the government got picky and insisted the auto makers obey the law. Or how it could affect hundreds of thousands of jobs. And just when unemployment's so high and all.

Nobody had to. Both the House and the Senate shifted into reverse and agreed that, yes indeedy, the standards were too tough. Then they each passed a softer version, giving the designers more time to work on their smog-makers.

The only thing is, the two versions are still being considered by a Congressional conference committee. And if it idles its motor too long, the new be-kind-to-Detroit bill might not get passed before the House and Senate adjourn for the summer on August 6.

Now here's where things start to get interesting.

Say Congress skips off on vacation without wrapping things up for Detroit. That means that every new model that rolls off the lines in the fall will be illegal.

This possibility pains the auto makers no end, especially after they've spent, they say, un unprecedented $2.5 billion to create new products with better fuel economy.

Even more painful is the prospect that they will have those outlawed cars sitting around, cluttering up the factories. If they ship them along to dealers, they face fines of up to $10,000 a car. (Which does tend to inflate the purchase price some.)

And that's when you'll begin to hear melancholy murmurs of shutdowns and mass layoffs and no new cars until the boys get back with their new tans.

Actually, no one really believes it will come to that. To a man, the motor moguls think the legislators will knuckle under in time. They always have before, haven't they?

So it's business as usual in the sprawling plants. Along with the cliff-hanger touch, 1978 will be the farewell appearance of the big gas guzzlers, the ones weighing in at 4,400 pounds or more.

From now on, it's little cars all the way. They have four or six cylinders; they weigh only 2,500 or 3,200 pounds; and they're touted as mileage miracles (up to 30 miles per gallon in combined city and highway driving).

There are up-from-scratch models in the line, too, Branded with names like Fairmont, Zephyr, Omni, Horizon and Phoenix. You might as well read about them on the off-chance you might not get to buy one for a while yet.

Or maybe you'll get a model that's back-dated. Henry Ford says he just might bring out his 1978s, and call them 1977s, and sell them at this year's prices. It's an ill wind ...

Detroit executives admit they're worried. But they say they're going ahead on the assumption that the new law "just has to come through."

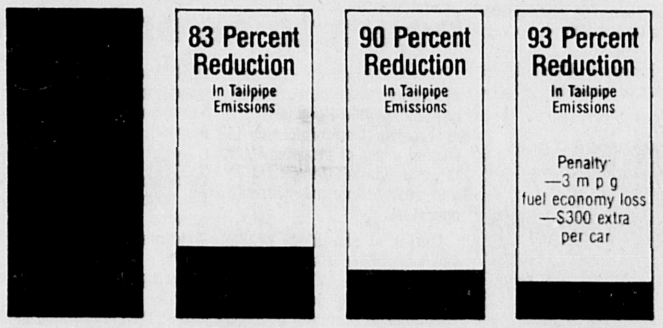

And it probably will. This won't be the first time Congress has lost out in political "chicken."

Chrysler's answer to standards

HERE'S WHAT THE AUTO EMISSIONS CONTROVERSY IS ALL ABOUT

The chart shows how far we've come in removing the automobile from the air pollution problem. The first bar shows emissions from a car with no controls; the second bar shows emissions from today's car. Proposed standards of Representatives Dingell and Broyhill and Senators Riegle and Griffin would further reduce emissions to the area shown in the third bar. EPA proposed emissions levels are shown in the fourth bar. The three percent difference between the Dingell-Broyhill and the EPA standards amounts to a fuel economy loss of 3 m.p.g. and an added cost of $300.

Remarkable man

To the Editor:

In the July 21 Graphic an obituary of William Northrop Morse was published which could not give a full account of the diversity and accomplishments of this remarkable citizen of Newton.

'The Professor,' as his friends called him, was a man of distinction; civilized and widely traveled; a teacher, writer, conservationist, horticulturist and lover of rare books and antiques

As a teacher he produced and directed outstanding plays, some written by himself, which attracted interest throughout the Boston area. His dramatic career began in Professor Baker's famous "47 Workshop" at Harvard in company with the Broadway playwright Philip Barry and novelist Thomas Wolfe.

He entertained and visited with many theatrical celebrities, including Dame May Whitty, Eva Le Gallienne and the mother of Helen Hayes.

In the thirties he and fellow-dramatists visited Russia as guests of the Soviet National Theater where he had an opportunity to observe changing aspects of their drama and ballet.

His published writings ranged from a scientific treatise on electricity in Colonial America to poetry, fiction and nature articles published in leading magazines. Most interesting was his collaboration with his wife in the completion and publication of a posthumous book by his historian father, which President Woodrow Wilson had asked to take with him on his mission to the League of Nations.

During his active retirement in Newton, he was a member of the Newton Conservators and chairman of the conservation for the Newton Highlands Garden Club.

At all time he worked indefatigably to arouse interest in civic betterment and conservation projects. He made speeches, led hearings and wrote articles for the press with considerable success. For, what he set out to do, he accomplished.

For 11 years the professor lived quietly in our shared household, giving us and his other friends the rare privilege of knowling such a man, a gentle man, soft-spoken, yet pungently witty and tenderhearted to all living creatures.

He was our dear friend, and to him we owe this tribute.

Make an offer

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Mrs. Elsie Husher, chairwoman of the Newton Historical Commission, with a copy to the Newton Graphic).

Dear Mrs. Husher:

We are in receipt of your letter of July 14 and are pleased to make an offer for the Historical Commission to take some positive action in the disposition of the Upper Falls railroad station.

As you are probably aware, the MBTA has been under great pressure from the Newton Building Department to tear this building down, since it has been determined to be an unsalvageable safety hazard by the building inspector.

Prior MBTA efforts to demolish the building, in conformance with the requests of the Building Department, have been held in abeyance pending firm action on the part of the Historical Commission to produce some evidence that any interest exists for the renovation, restoration, recycling, rehabilitation or other adaptive reuse of this structure.

The MBTA shall withhold the letting of a contract for demolition of this structure until Aug. 10. If, by that time, we do not have a signed agreement by the Newton Historical Commission which states that the commission or any other civic, community-oriented or city body will lease the structure for $1 per year, and further, assume all responsibility for it and its ultimate disposition, including all liability, protection, ect., the MBTA will proceed with a contract for its removal, since there is no possible way we can enforce anti-vandalism measures on this remote liability which is totally unneeded for transportation purposes.

We shall await your prompt reply.

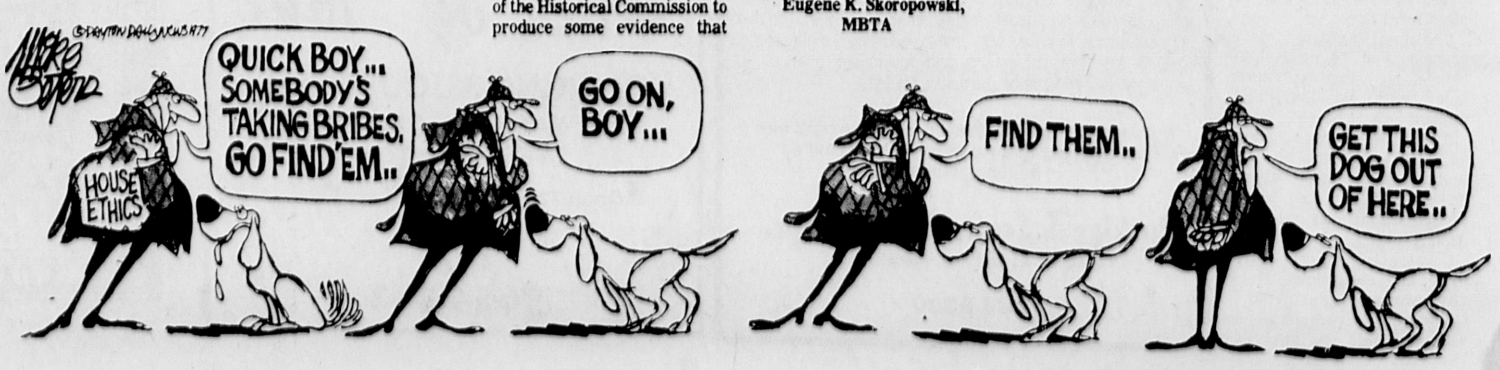

Eugene K. Skoropowski,
MBTA

Opinions

Votes don't tell the whole story

To the Editor:

A letter to the editor entitled "Why So Angry?" prompts a reply by me about Center, even though your excellent editorial did try to put to rest the entire Center controversy.

In this letter, I have been personally attacked by a Mr. Nager of Newton Centre because of my comments about Center's tactics.

As I stated, Center is a newly-formed organization of four directors and no members, which seems to have sprung fully blown, fully funded and seemingly unassociated with citizen involvement. I stated publicly, and I will again, that I believe Center is intent on discrediting the entire Board of Aldermen. Its use of statistics makes it appear that roll calls are the only criteria upon which to judge your Board of Aldermen, when indeed to honestly and fairly judge the legislative process, you must analyze the input of members into particular issues.

To my knowledge, Mr. Cornell, leader of Center, and the other three directors have never been seen at Board of Aldermen or Board committee meetings to relate their personal observations to their statistical analyses. Also, the issues in this election lie with the School Committee and the mayor's race, so the mystery is why Center is trying to make the Board of Aldermen look bad.

Mr. Nager says that the only reason I am protesting Center's "statistical machinations" is because I am guilty about my own roll calls. I am happy to cite my record of public service, which Center seems intent upon denigrating.

I have served on the Board of Aldermen for 10 years, been on Finance Committee for eight, and been its chairman for six. We have an effective Finance Committee, and if I may take just a little bit of credit, I believe that my record would show that this effectiveness has been due in some measure to effective leadership on my part these many years.

Center has not told the public that for six years I have spent the months of January through May working on the city budget both days and evenings, meeting with department heads, the mayor's staff, the comptroller, etc.

In fact if Center had done some real research, they would find that I have probably put in more hours on the Board of Aldermen because of my Finance chairmanship than any other member of the Board.

Time spent at City Hall on city business, apart from roll calls, is also a part of many other of the Board members' activities and goes unrecorded by Center's roll calls.

If I appeared to be defending something, it is my service to the city' not my attendance. Center and its statistics give only part of the story. Their figures do not include the hundreds of thousands of dollars I believe I have saved our city. They do not record the many hours and days I spent on the Marriott taxation problems.

I exposed these problems and lived alone with them until others (the Board and the mayor) came to realize that our city was not getting its fair share of taxes.

The resulting payment of thousands of dollars by the Marriott, as well as its future payments, will go toward helping the homeowner-taxpayer in our city.

This kind of dedication and success doesn't need a defense, nor does it appear in any statistics. It will, however, be helpful to the ta8xpaying citizens in our community.

Elitism

To the Editor:

The Newton Graphic recently carried an exchange of letters regarding the possibility of teaching Latin again in Newton's schools.

One writer claimed that this would produce an elitist society because the classics were "the main ingredient of the traditional, 'liberal education' designed to set the 'gentleman' apart from his inferiors."

Without arguing this last point, i.e., the purpose of a liberal education, it must be admitted that there is much to be said for an elitist society, which included many who were self-taught and which produced a class of leaders, statesmen, and citizens and a wealth of literature and art unmatched since the death of the classics in the schools.

Henry George asserts in "Progress and Poverty" (1879) that a civilization is dying when, among other things, "the prevailing taste becomes more and more that of the less-cultured class."

Isn't that what we are seeing today on all sides as a result of raising wages and salaries while lowering the quality of education, taste and culture, which has produced a materialistic society that not only lacks superior leaders and statesmen, but is also wallowing in gambling, violence, sex, pornography and a steady diet of sports, as well as tolerating bad manners and behavior and poor grammar, syntax and spelling?

If there are those who want to rise above all this, more power to them.

Sirens

To the Editor:

Sirens and other warning systems for emergency vehicles serve a useful purpose. They signal motorists ahead to pull over to the curb and stop to insure safe passing by a fire engine, police car or ambulance; give a traffic officer time to direct traffic in a square; and, above all, assure a potential victim of fire or other endangered person that help is on the way.

Sign litter

To the Editor:

A note apropos of Newton, the All-America City and garage sales.

Although Newton has posted signs with a $50 fine for littering, it is difficult, if not impossible, to be at the scene when people throw papers out of passing car windows or when children riding by on bicycles heave their soft-drink cans.

But there is one category of litterbugs who have been of late making a most positive contribution to the litter of the city, the garage sale litterbug.

They tape, nail and tie signs on most major roads (Commonwealth Avenue, Walnut Street, Centre Street, etc.), but I have yet to see one person going about the next day and taking the signs down.

Rather, they blow off or get wet and fall off, adding to the litter.

I am sure these same people would resent such litter on their side street residential areas. But people DO live on main streets also and take pride in THEIR areas.

Since this unique category of litter is in virtually ever case "signed" with an address, I propose a $25 fine be imposed for each instance in which posters are left for other citizens to clean up.

After all, city workers are paid to take rubbish on authorized days and at designated locations, not to go about cleaning up what seems to be a legitimate litter violation.

Facts matter

To the Editor:

Having read and re-read your editorial of July 14 concerning the organization, Center, I cannot understand what you object to about the group.

Do you object to the fact that the organization consists of only a five-member board of directors? Does the size of a the group make its studies less factual?

If 10 people had looked over public records to see that committees were voting without quorums, would you feel that such voting procedures should be stopped?

You charge that Center is a group of "headhunters." All Center has done is to point out statistics. If that . constitutes headhunting, then any professional newspaper which objectively reports facts is also guilty of headhunting.

Unlike the Graphic, I appreciate Center's efforts to aid voters in making informed decisions. I do not care if the organization is a duet, quartet, quintet, or a horde, all that matters is the facts they have pointed out.

It's too bad none of the "professional" newspapers in this city seem to have the same dedication to informing the public.

By the way, if the Graphic holds than an organization of five members desn't have the right to speak out politically' what right do fewer than five aldermanic committee members have to recommend legislation?

County public-defender program under attack by bar associations

The Middlesex and Essex County Bar Associations last week brought legal action against the county commissioners and treasurers of the two counties for public-defender programs for indigent persons. According to the two bar associations, the programs jeopardize the rights of the poor and, additionally, are unlawful and uneconomic.

The bar associations jointly filed a complaint in the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court on Monday, July 11. A preliminary hearing on the complaint will be held at 9:30 a.m., Wednesday, Aug. 3, at the Suffolk County Courthouse in Boston. Attorneys James D. St. Clair and Jeffrey B. Rudman of the firm of Hale and Dorr, serving without fee, will represent the two Bars.

Until about eight months ago, the policy for retaining defenders for indigent persons appearing on criminal and misdemeanor matters in the Middlesex and Essex County District Courts involved the appointment, at mandated minimum fees, of private attorneys by district court judges. Last winter, the county commissioners of the two counties independently adopted plans whereby they hired their own public defenders.

The bar associations charge that the plans work to the detriment of indigent persons because they tend to support conflicts of interest, plea bargaining, politically motivated appointment, and a continuing shortage of trained trial attorneys.

Specifically the associations claim:

— The effect of the county plans, in many cases, is that one county defender is obliged simultaneously to represent codefendants, whose individual interests may well be in conflict.

— The plans result in a situation in which there is continual interaction in each district court between the county defenders assigned to that court and the police and district attorneys, a situation which, according to the complaint can only increase the amount of plea bargaining.

— Judges, according to the two groups, are in a better position than county commissioners to choose counsel who can exercise independent judgment and, in certain grave and complex cases, to appoint especially experienced counsel. No provisions for especially serious cases exist in the county plans.

Edward D. McCarthy, a Cambridge attorney who served as president of the Middlesex Bar last year when the county plan first became an issue of controversy and who has worked closely with Attorneys St. Clair and Rudman on the case, says, "We feel strongly that political officials should not be so intimately involved in the administration of justice. Their role is to pay for the court system, not to run it."

— The long-range detriment to indigent defendants and to the system of justice, according to the bar associations, is that the county plans deny young attorneys the opportunity to acquire any sort of criminal trial experience.

The complaint's allegation that the county plans are unlawful rests on Chapter 35 of the Massachusetts General Laws and on Rule 3:10 of the Supreme Judicial Court. The plans violate MGL 35 on three scores, according to the complaint:

— The commissioners have no statutory power to retain counsel for anyone other than themselves or the county.

— The commissioners have no statutory authority to interfere with the discretion and prerogative of the district court judges.

— The law specifically prohibits the involvement of county commissioners in the payment of expenses for criminal prosecutions.

The complaint charges that the plans contravene the state Supreme Court rule which contemplate that counsel assigned to defendants be either a member of the Massachusetts Defenders Committee (which operates under the supervision of the Supreme Court), a member of a voluntary group (such as a bar association, or an attorney serving without charge.

The complaint also charges that the county system is wasting taxpayer dollars. Prior to the implementation of the county defender program, court-appointed defenders served at the rate of $10 per hour for preparation and $15 per hour for court appearances. The average cost per case in Middlesex County under the private plan was $52.81. The total cost to Middlesex Cou ty during this period was in the area of $300,000.

When the Middlesex County plan was initially implemented, 12 attorneys were hired at a cost of $12,000, plus a director who earned $16,000 a year. Since then, 8 more attorneys have been added to the ranks of county defenders.

Carthy says that the bar has been unable to determine exactly what the county plan is costing. "However," he says, "even if we assume that all 20 attorneys are still making $12,000 and that the director has not received a raise, we are already at a cost of $256,000. To that must be added the costs of their fringe benefits package, the costs of clerical assistance, office space, office supplies, out-of-pocket expenses, etc. It seems reasonable to assume that these costs are in excess of $44,000, since overhead in law offices is normally substantially in excess of 17 percent. So we know the county plans aren't seving the taxpayer any money — whi h was the principal argument advanced in their defense."

At the Aug. 3 hearing, the two bars will ask for preliminary and permanent injunctions against the commissioners in the implementation of the county defender plans; for an order directing the two county treasurers to pay outstanding bills for previously rendered legal services; and for a declaration that the county plans are "unlawful and of no force and effect."

Drinan introduces bill to aid small businesses

A bill to allow small business a greater opportunity to compete for government contracts was introduced in the House of Representatives last week by Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Newton).

"The Small Business Government Contracting Reform Act," the Massachusetts lawmaker stated, "represents many months of work in close consultation with small business organizations in New England and across the nation. It will make allowances for the fact that small businesses face unique burdens in competing with large corporations for government contracts."

"I am confident that President Carter, who knows firsthand the problems of small businesses, will give a sympathetic hearing to small business legislation," Drinan said.

To ensure that small companies get their fair share of government contracts, Drinan's legislation requires that relevant laws and regulations be spelled out in plain English for each contract under a given size. In addition, the name and phone number would be listed of an individual within the contracting agency who could be contacted for further information.

"Small businessmen and women currently face a regulatory swamp of 45,000 pages of rules drawn up by 82 separate agencies," Drinan noted. "These regulations relating to each contract must be clearly summarized and available for review if small businesses are to have equal opportunity to bid for government procurements."

"Small businesses also have difficulty becoming informed of contract opportunities in time to prepare a bid," Drinan continued.

"By requiring agencies to advertise more openly contract opportunities, and by allowing at least 30 days for bidding, we can encourage greater small business participation and genuine competition."

Another provision of Drinan's bill establishes arbitration panels to settle contract disputes. The point here is to reduce the valuable time and money currently spent by small business people for litigation.

The bill also creates a "small business representative" within each federal agency which issues procurement contracts.

"It will be the responsibility of these representatives," Drinan explained, "to assure that adequate numbers of contracts are set aside for small businesses, to prevent non-competitive contracts wherever possible, and to periodically disclose information relating to the number and size of contracts awarded to small business concerns."

"Forty million Americans work for small businesses," Drinan continued, "and yet the federal government has pursued a policy of simple neglect when it comes to government contracting. By adopting all the measures in my bill, Congress can reverse that pattern of neglect and provide small businesses with significantly greater access to government contracts."

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI) — Chuck Fairbanks has been given more time to complete the revamping that has brought the New England Patriots from the bottom of the NFL to the verge of the Super Bowl in four seasons.

The Patriots announced Fairbanks has been given an extension of his contract, which ran through the end of this season. Terms or length of contract were not disclosed.

Tough Colonel prefers horses to airplanes

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dana Elcar, tough Colonel Lard in the "Baa Baa Black Sheep" series, is considerably more attached to horseflesh than airplanes when he's not on camera.

He is a member of Hollywood's horseback riding gentry as opposed to railbirds at the race track such as Walter Matthau and Jack Klugman.

Elcar, a native of Michigan, grew up on a farm where horses were a part of everyday life. He has never lost his affection for riding and the great outdoors.

The result is a life style compromise between suburbanite and country squire.

Elcar, a balding, round faced man of inevitable good humor, makes his home on an acre and a half of the San Fernando Valley, a 45-minute drive from Universal Studios where "Baa Baa Black Sheep" is filmed.

Separated, Elcar is the father of two daughters. Chandra, 6, and Nora. 22, by two different wives.

He lives alone in his three bedroom brick and wood California ranch-style house which is bordered by white-washed fences. Each of his daughters has her own bedroom. occupied on frequent visits.

The grounds are lush and green, dotted with plum, apricot and persimmon trees. There also are a dozen grape vines and a growing forest of evergreens. Elcar buys a living Christmas tree each holiday season and plants the symetrical fir trees every January.

Out back there is a pasture area and a barn with stalls, a tack room and hay barn combination.

Six horses occupy the grounds. Chandra has her own pony and Nora has a mare which foaled this spring. Elcar has his own saddle horse, of course, and boards two other horses for friends.

"I ride when I can with my daughters," says Elcar. "A lot of my friends like to come out on weekends and ride the endless trails in the hills around here."

But it's not all fun and games. The girls muck out the stables while Dad fixes the fences. keeps the watering troughs filled and hauls loads of hay in his 1950 Ford pickup.

A blacksmith comes by every six weeks, but the veterinarian is a stranger because, "our horses live outdoors and are very healthy. And they are ridden all the time so they get plenty of exercise.

"I loved to ride as a kid on our farm near Pontiac and somehow I feel there's a value in staying in contact with animals."

Elcar is a man of many talents and interests.

He keeps a 31-foot trimaran sailboat 35 miles up the coast from Los Angeles and often takes friends on weekend cruises to the nearby channel islands.

He's also an excellent carpenter who delights in making furniture. Dana converted his garage into a wood-working shop and has turned out a spectacular coffee table, a set of pine shelves gleaming with six coats of varnish. His favorite creation is the cradle he made for Chandra.

Elcar is handy in the kitchen, too. His concoction of green noodles, shrimp and mushrooms is a gourmet delight. His fish stew isn't bad either.

"Sometimes I'm too tired to cook when I get home from work," Elcar says, "so I stop on the way for a bite. Nora pitches in when she's visiting and little Chandra likes to fuss around in the kitchen too."

The day begins for Dana Elcar at 5 a.m. He feeds and waters the animals, including Yeppe (a Danish name), a miniature collie and shepherd, and Duke, an Australian shepherd. There is also a cat, Elenora, who keeps down the mouse population in the haymow.

After caring for the livestock, he exercises on a 10-speed bike unless he decides to get in some jogging. Then it's off to location sites or the studio for the NBC-TV series.

Elcar lives in boots and denims around his property. Sometimes he even wears his work clothes on regular trips to Hollywood where he's had an improvisational acting workshop for a dozen years. Currently he is affiliated with the Los Angeles Actors Theater.

How does Elcar find time for all his activities?

"I'm a worker," he explains. "But I like to play too.

CB and stereo capture fancy of motoring public

High fidelity stereo equipment and citizens band radio products for America's mobile society are among the most recent developments to come from radio's technology.

CB has been around in one form or another for more than a decade but it was not until the truckers' strike of 1974 that CB's popularity skyrocketed.

This popularity and rapid growth of CB has some audio-radio engineers and marketing people concerned that "standard" radio equipment sales might falter. However, the marketers are predicting that by 1981, there will be 28.5 million CBs in cars.

At the present time, the best estimators say that there is only an 8 to 9 per cent penetration (10 million sets) of the 130 million cars on the road and that leaves a considerable market.

Despite the fact that there was a leveling off of sales towards the end of 1976, these experts predict a strong upswing in the demand for the next three or four years.

One of the big reasons for this optimism is the fact that the auto manufacturers are now getting into the CB field by offering "built-in" CB units as optional equipment. more They are even going so far as to offer AMFM multiplex stereo with CBs and 8-track or cassette players.

These built-in units are substantial deterrents arainst theft while providing greater listening convenience. Other innovations include CB units hidden in car trunks with only the microphone and controls in the dash and removable antennae that make the CB installation less obvious.

Upgrading, replacement sales and the natural influx of first-time CBers are expected to keep the market booming for some time to come.

AUTO SOUND "SIMULATOR" was built at a cost of $12,000 so that customers could hear before they buy. The console buttons between the seats allow over 5,000 different unit-speaker combinations to be selected and integrated with the make, style and model of automobile in which the "system" will be installed.

Auto Sound offers professional auto stereo sales and service

In the highly competitive field of automotive sound systems, Auto Sound, Inc., of Brockton and Watertown, is recognized as one of the leaders and innovators of the industry.

Auto Sound is a complete automotive stereo company that combines experience and quality, with sales, service, and installation of automotive sound systems and accessories. It is also the top independent automobile sound equipment distributor in New England.

Founded in 1971 by Ronald Needleman, Auto Sound has quickly grown from $25,000 in sales in 1971, to over $2 million in 1976.

This phenomenal growth is directly attributed to the professionalism and enthusiasm of Auto Sound's staff, their ability to put together the right automotive sound system for any budget, and a high percentage of customer referrals.

Auto Sound takes pride in the fact that they do not rely on high-pressure tactics when dealing with their customers. They allow the customer as much time as necessary more to make the right buying decision.

Vice President William Kraus stressed that, "Auto Sound is virtually unbeatable in the areas of service, quality, and our liberal warranty policy."

The exclusive Auto Sound warranty, which meets or exceeds all manufacturer's specifications, includes a twoyear guarantee on parts and labor, along with a lifetime installation guarantee.

The company requires that every Auto Sound installer undergo an intensive three-month training period before being allowed to work on a customer's automobile.

Under the careful tutelage of an Auto Sound service director, the installer becomes familiar with different auto stereo systems, their placement in different makes of cars, and the idiosyncrasies of noise suppression in various automobiles.

One big advantage of purchasing an auto stereo system from Auto Sound is knowing that the system will fit the car for which it was intended.

Sozio now selling from seven stores

A.L. (Chuck) Sozio started the Sozio Corporation in 1955 in Revere. Sozio is watched by many other similar stores for their growth pattern which has been steady and carefully planned. Customer Satisfaction and Dependable Service are factors which have resulted in expansion into six additional areas. Sozio now has locations in Dedham, Wellesley, Danvers, Neponset Circle, Cambridge, Billerica, as well as their original store in Revere.

Low prices are the customer's advantage as they browse through their modern showroom. Color and black and white TV's are available from Motorola and RCA. Sozio's also has a wide selection of dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, stoves and air conditioners. Popular brand names are Maytag, Frigidaire, KitchenAid, General Electric, Caloric, and Westinghouse. Many of the appliances are energy savers and delivery can be arranged.

Dinette Furniture is the newest addition to the Sozio stores. A large selection of sturdy dinette furniture is available, which reflects a wide range of styles, including the bar arrangement, as well as the two-seater bench dinette set. Many different materials are utilized for these sturdy pieces, which are well constructed to give today's family years and years of more pleasure while dining. Some of the sets are designed to be used either in the kitchen, on a porch or patio, or even in the dining room

Plan to drop in to see the fine values which are waiting for you six days a week at Sozio's. Personalized service and friendly advice are yours for the asking and all appliances are backed by warranty and by Chuck Sozio

23 channel CB sets still OK

The recent action of the Federal Communications Commission, expanding the Citizans Radio Service from 23 to 40 channels, has given some people the idea that 23 channel sets are obsolete.

The facts are that the 23 channel sets are'not the least bit affected by the 40 available channels. All it means is that people buying the new sets have 17 more channels on which to operate. It does not detract from the value of the original 23 channel sets.

There is plenty of "air" out there and the 17 additional channels are helping to eliminate some of the clutter on the more popular channels. The advent of the 40 channel sets actually increases the "air time" available for the 23 channel equipment.

CB is really public radio

CB is the popular name of Citizens Radio Service. It comes from certain radio bands set aside by the Federal Communications Commission which have become known as "citizens bands." They are the public's chance to use a portion of the radio spectrum for personal two-way communications.

The uses are many:

call for emergency highway assistance

get information on road conditions

get direction information exchange messages between home or office while in a car or boat relieve the tedium of long drives

just to have clean fun and conversation, the latter within FCC rules and regulations.

Using CB is almost as easy as using the telephone and restrictions are few.

An FCC license is required. This is granted to U.S. citizens over 18 years of age upon a simple application and payment of a $4 fee.

One station license may be used by an entire family. On-the-air time is limited to 5 minutes followed by a one-minute more break before the next transmission.

The necessary equipment is a transceiver, antenna and microphone. The transceiver is used for both sending and receiving messages.

Most CB units are mobile, for use in cars, trucks, recreational vehicles and boats. There are also base stations for use in fixed locations and mobile hand-held units that are useful in the field or while camping or hunting. The mobile models can, of course, be installed in-dash or under-dash, just as with car stereo.

A caution should be issued with CB for boating. Although CB is becoming popular, the Coast Guard does NOT monitor CB transmission. Coast Guard monitoring is limited to VHF radio telephones, a more sophisticated system with longer range.

C & C Fence shows continued growth

C & C Fence at 858 Providence Highway in Dedham was started by Kenneth Calvagne in October, 1964, with the aid of his father, who has had 45 years experience in the fencing business. His own experience totals approximately 15 years.

The first year of operation resulted in gross sales of approximately $15,000. Since 1975, C & C has grown considerably and increased its gross to more than $500,000.

C & C Fence presently employs experienced road men, a manager, sales representative, and secretary.

According to Mr. Calvagne, "We expect to wholesale a full line of wood fence products to better serve the community in our new location. This will add to our increasing business in the chain link field of which we have furnished fencing for residential homes, parks, playgrunds, swimming pools, tennis courts, etc. In the surrounding towns.

Over the past 12 years, we have also completed projects for the Yankee Atomic Commission, the Boston Gas Company, New England Electric Co., and the Massachusetts Aeronautic Commission.

Cars ills cause CB interference

A new advantage to the Citizen Band radio craze: the devices may give alert drivers early warnings of trouble developing in their automobiles. Static in CB reception can actually originate from the car itself, and David L. Walker, technical services director of Champion Spark Plug Co., says that an ear attuned to different sorts of CB interference can actually spot where in the vehicle the trouble is.

For instance, Walker says that a popping sound over a CB that gets faster as the car goes faster and stops as soon as the ignition key is turned off means something is misfunctioning in the isnition system.

If the noise is a high musical whine that gets higher as the car goes faster-and keeps on for a bit after the ignition key is turned off-it is a clue that something is wrong with the . generator or alternator. Often the ahine is accompanied by an irregular rasping sound; that is caused by the voltage regulator.

avoid that a hissing or clicking on the CB that comes and goes but gets worse on rough roads can be traced to something out of whack with one of the dashboard instruments.

Nicolas voted assistant director of tech-voc

Patrick S. Nicolas of West Newton, an automotive instructor at Newton North High School, was unanimously approved by the School Committee last week to fill the newly created position of assistant director of technical-vocational education.

Nicolas, who has a B.S. from Fitchburg State College, will also serve as department head of technical-vocational education at Newton North.

He has taught several automotive courses at North ftr the past 12 years.

Twenty-four persons applied for the job, four from the Newton schools. Three Newton staff members and five other applicants met minimum state criteria for the job, according to a memo from Newton North Principal Richard Mechem and Danieal Malia, director of technical education.

Three candidates, all from Newton, were interviewed as finalists for the job.

Common Cause pushing bill on disclosure

This year Common Cause-Massachusetts is making a special effort to match the records of 38 other states by enacting a financial disclosure bill, House 1417, which provides for comprehensive disclosure while protecting appropriate rights of privacy.

It asks elected state officials, major appointed state officials, and major elected and appointed local officials for sources of economic interest such as directorships, businesses, real estate, professional services and gifts, rather than for exact amounts of money or for copies of tax returns.

"The current climate in the wake of numerous scandals improves the chances for a positive vote this year. Action is necessary to give credibility to the idea that the legislature is serious about addressing the problems of ethics," said Jay Hedlund, executive director of the state branch of Common Cause. "The purpose of financial disclosure is to assure that private interests that conflict with public duties are known to the public."

The organization has congratulated Sen. Jack Backman and Reps. Peter Harrington, David Mofenson and Lois Pines for their strongly positive responses to a Common Cause questionnaire on financial disclosure sent out last fall.

Brooke resolution underscores concern with human rights abroad

The U. S. Senate last week passed a resolution offered by Sen. Edward Brooke which expresses the Senate's desire to indicate to the Soviet Union and other states represented at the Belgrade Conference the "official concern of the United States over the treatment of Anatoly Scharansky, Yuri Orlov and others who sought to monitor compliance with the Helsinki Accords."

Brooke (R-Mass.) offered his resolution on June 16 together with Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Sen. Case (R-NJ). It was then referred to the Foreign Relations Committee which amended it and referred it to the full Senate June 28.

In his speech to the Senate, Brooke said that many in the Congress shared "a deep concern over the Soviet Union's increased efforts to supress expressions of dissent," Brooke said: "The Kremlin's actions are in direct contradiction to the first paragraph of the 7th of the principles adopted by the Helsinki signatories which states:

'The participating States will respect human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the freedom of thought, conscience, religion or belief, for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion.'

These would be no more than 'hollow words' unless the U. S. and others called attention to the flagrant human rights violations connected with the jailing of Scharansky, Orlov and others," Brooke said.

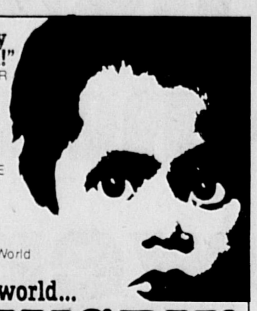

Brooke added: "We are all aware that the relationship between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. is of vital interest not only to ourselves and the Soviets, but to mankind in general. We are all hopeful that the way can be found to allow a marked reduction in the lethal capabilities of the arsenals of the U.S. and the Soviet Union without sacrifice to our security. But this important aspect of our relationship must not be allowed to override our responsibility to promote our ideas of freedom, justice and human dignity in the world."

Audiences respond to Jean Marsh

Jean Marsh was reminiscing about her childhood in London. The normally constrained actress was relaxing in the elegant living room at the home of Arthur MacKenzie. MacKenzie is one of the producers of "Too True To Be Good," a comedy by George Bernard Shaw currently at the Spingold Theatre, Brandeis. Miss Marsh has a starring role in the play which is delighting Boston audiences.

Of her role, Miss Marsh laughs, and says the character is "a disgusting, outrageous girl...I'm not like her at all." In the play, "Sweetie" is flamboyant while Marsh is reserved; however, it is a role in which she can display her skillful acting ability and the ease with which she can switch accents. Offstage, she speaks with a careful British accent, unlike the Cockney accent she is famous for.

She was wearing a casual, cotton white jumpsuit and is slim. Her long blonde hair was pinned back. Beside her was a pair of glasses, and although she admits she is near-sighted, she never put them on.

As a child, she said she was so terrified by the bombing during World War II, she became temporarily paralyzed. Although her parents sent her to ballet school as soon as the paralysis improved, she says that was not the beginning of her desire to become an actress.

She was influenced by her parents who were interested in the arts and music. Marsh said she couldn't go to the theatre because it was too expensive, and movies were forbidden by her father. She saw her first movie at the age of 12. A sensitive child, she read "enormously" and before she was ten she decided to be an actress.

Simply she says she is not overwhelmed by her present success because "it came gradually." "I think of myself as Jean Marsh, person." There are moments when Jean Marsh, actress, luxuriates in her success. She enjoys being recognized, asked for autographs and "gets hysterical with laughter" on occasion when she will see her name in headlines...thinking "that's me."

Only in rehearsal for the present production "eight or nine days," she attributed much of the play's success to the director, Philip Minor, whom she described as "terribly bright and the best director I have ever worked with."

"Usually I don't like being directed, taking it as implied criticism, but (Minor) is funny and bright." She said he provided not only intellectual direction, but a good "good comedy audience." The others in the excellent cast include Katherine Houghton and Charles Kimbrough.

Marsh left New York for Boston the night of the blackout and "ran down 14 flights of stairs with a grip and bare essentials." Those "bare essentials" carried her through a week until she could return to New York for more clothes.

Opening night brought another trauma for some members of the audience chose to disregard rules about picture taking. When the flashes went off, Marsh says "I thought it was a gun at first...I was so upset I wanted to run off and cry. If it wasn't opening night, I would have." Now the request for no picture taking is repeated clearly before the play. The offenders' film was also confiscated.

Regional theatre is something Marsh says she enjoys and she is well paid for. However, the peripatetic actress is ambivalent about travel. Asked where her home is, she replies "nowhere." Recently she gave her "cottage" in England to her parents, and when they converted it to be compatible with their lifestyle, she says she "realized I can no longer call it my home."

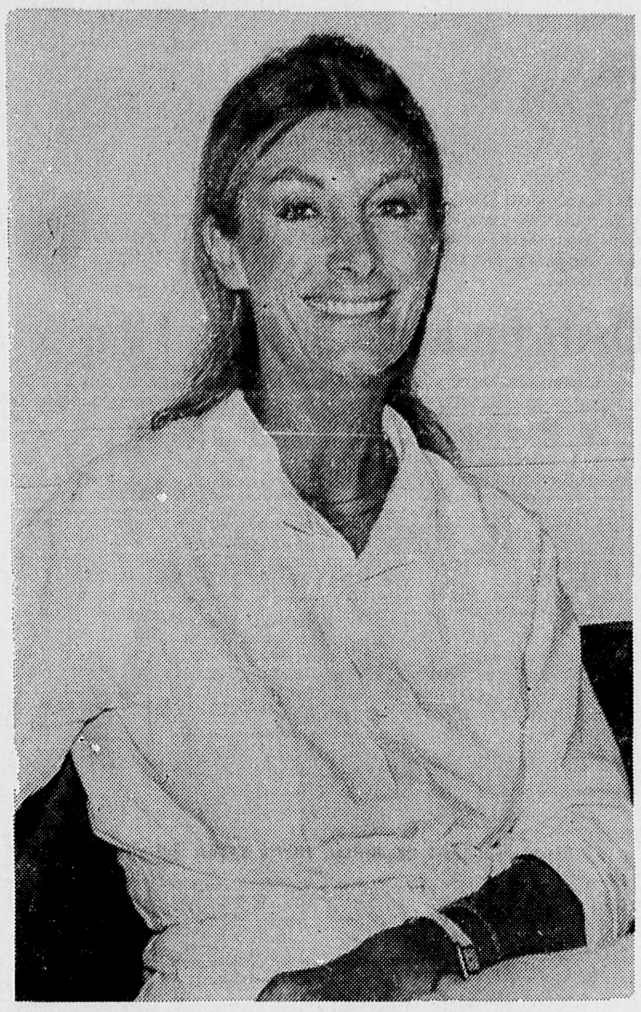

She also points out some of the travel is "tiring and even sad." "I just get to know somewhere...where the shops are...the newspaperman begins to say hello and I'll be gone."

Through the television series, "Upstairs, Downstairs," Marsh won wide acclaim. She originated the series with her friend, actress Eileen Atkins. Marsh's mother had been "a housemaid briefly," and "Eileen's father had been an underbutler." They realized that in period pieces, the servants were never shown, and decided to show the times from the downstairs point of view.

She won an Emmy Award for "Best Dramatic Actress in a Continuing Series," and noted people comment upon meeting her "there aren't many American actresses who would disguise their looks and figures to appear in a play."

Off stage she likes to "read, cook, walk, bike, garden and listen to Mozart, Vivaldi, or Bach." She enjoys entertaining one or two friends with an early evening supper replete with good music and champagne. "I even like washing up," she confided.

Her most irritating habit: publicly piling her plate high with food and then saying "now I will annoy you by eating and not gaining weight."

Jean Marsh is starring in "Too True To Be Good" at the Spingold Theater, Brandeis University. Miss Marsh won an Emmy Award for her part in the television series, "Upstairs, Downstairs."

Blueberries are plentiful and nothing more delicious than a blueberry treat. Here are a few special ones:

BLUEBERRY BUCKLE

½ cup margarine (softened)
½ cup sugar
1 egg well beaten
2 cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
½ cup milk
2 cups fresh blueberries
Topping:
¼ cup margarine
½ cup flour
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Mix margarine and sugar together. Add egg and mix well. Add dry ingredients to the mixture alternately with milk. Pour into well greased 8 inch by 8 inch by 2 inch pan. Sprinkle berries over batter. Combine topping ingredients until crumbling. Sprinkle over the berries. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven for 45-50. Serves 6-8.

LOW-CALORIE BLUEBERRY PIE DESSERT

1 container fresh blueberries
10 ounces low calorie cherry soda
one-third cup dry powdered skim milk
4 tsp. equivalent of artificial sugar
2 packages unflavored gelatin diet whipped cream

Wash berries and place in bottom of 9 inch pan. Sprinkle with diet sugar. Dissolve gelatin in cherry soda. Pour over berries. Allow mixture 10 minutes to gel. Sprinkle powdered milk over pie. Bake in 350 degree F. oven for one hour. Place in refrigerator for 3 hours. Top with diet whip cream.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

½ cup butter (margarine)
1 cup sugar
2 cups flour (unsifted)
2 eggs
½ cup milk
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2½ cups blueberries
2 teaspoons sugar for top
1 teaspoon vanilla

On low speed, cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, and mix until blended. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with milk and vanilla. Mash ½ cup of berries and stir in by hand. add remainder of berries whole and stir in by hand. Grease muffin tins with butter and grease top surface of pans as well. Pile high in each muffin cup. Sprinkle sugar over tops. Bake for 30 min. at 375 degrees. F. Cool in pan at least 30 min.

THE KITCHEN CORNER

Ham today, salad tomorrow

For hundreds of years, it was unimaginable to have a noon or evening meal without soup. Every home was graced with "grandmother's soup pot," simmering for hours on the back of the stove.

Today, those soups are readily available on supermarket shelves. Moreover, they can be used to create interesting and delicious recipes. Here are a sampling:

ORANGE STUDDED RICE SALAD

1 can (10¾ ounces) Condensed Chicken Broth
¼ cup water
¾ cup raw regular rice
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1½ cups diced cooked turkey or chicken
1 cup cut-up orange sections
½ cup coarsely chopped radishes
1 small green pepper, cut in 1-inch long strips
1 teaspoon finely chopped onion
½ teaspoon grated orange rind
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon mace

In saucepan, combine broth, water and rice. Bring to boil; reduce heat. Cover; simmer 25 minutes or until done. Stir occasionally. Add remaining ingredients; chill. Serve on salad greens; garnish with orange slices if desired. Makes about 5 cups, 4 servings.

ENCORE POTATO SALAD

1 can (10¾ ounces) Condensed Cream of Mushroom Soup
one-third cup French dressing
4 cups cubed cooked potatoes
1½ cups cubed cooked ham
1 cup cucumber cut in 2-inch long strips
½ cup sliced celery
¼ cup thinly sliced green onions
3 coarsely chopped hard-cooked eggs
1½ teaspoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Paprika

In bowl, combine ingredients; chill. Serve on salad greens; garnish with paprika and additional egg slices if desired. Makes about 7 cups, 4 to 6 servings.

POLYNESIAN HAM BAKE

5-pound canned ham
½ cup pineapple preserves
Whole cloves
1 can (29 ounces) peach halves, drained
2 medium green-tipped bananas, cut in 2-inch pieces
1 can (10¾ ounces) Condensed Cream Chicken Soup
½ cup water
3 tablespoons cream cheese, softened (about 2 ounces)
1 tablespoon toasted shredded coconut

In shallow roasting pan, bake ham at 325 degree F. for 1 hour. Pour off fat. Score; spread with ¼ cup preserves. Stud with cloves. Bake 15 minutes. Spread peaches and bananas with 2 tablespoons preserves and place around ham. Bake 15 minutes more or until done (18 minutes per pound or 140 degrees F. on meat thermometer). Remove ham and fruit to warm serving platter. Pour off fat, saving 1 tablespoon drippings. On top of range, in roasting pan, blend soup, water, cream cheese, coconut and remaining preserves into drippings. Heat, stirring to loosen browned bits. Serve with ham. Makes 6 to 8 servings with enough ham left over for Encore Potato Salad.

COMPANY BAKED CHICKEN

1 can (about 16 ounces) sliced peaches in heavy syrup
4 whole chicken breasts (about 3 pounds), split
¼ cup melted butter or margine
1 can (10½ ounces) Chicken Gravy
4 cups cooked rice
¼ cup chopped parsley
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon salt
1 large clove garlic, minced
Paprika

Drain peaches, reserving ¼ cup syrup; cut up peaches. In 3-quart shallow baking dish (13x9x2"), arrange chicken skin-side down. Pour butter over. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 20 minutes; remove chicken. Stir in reserved syrup, peaches and remaining ingredients except paprika. Arrange chicken skin-side up on rice mixture; sprinkle with paprika. Bake 30 minutes more or until done. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Makes 8 servings.

Fix Ahead: Prepare as above; cover with foil. Reduce oven temperature to 170 degrees F. or warm setting. Can be held two hours.

FRIED CHICKEN WITH MERRY-GO ROUND SAUCE

1 package (28 ounces) Frozen, Battered and Fully Cooked Fried Chicken Thighs & Drumsticks ½ cup sour cream
3 tablespoons ketchup
⅛ teaspoon Worcestershire

Heat chicken according to package directions. To make sauce, in bowl, combine remaining ingredients; chill. Serve as dipping sauce with fried chicken. Makes about ½ cup sauce, 6 servings.

To serve chicken cold: Heat chicken according to package directions; cool at room temperature for 15 minutes. Wrap in moisture-proof covering; refrigerate. Serve with dipping sauce.

N-W Hospital helps patients find doctors

If you are new in town, if you have no family doctor, or if you need a medical specialist, the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Patient Information Service can help.

Patients who call the service are referred to appropriate physicians, or to community service agencies which can respond to their needs. The service can tell patients which doctors are closest to their homes or businesses, and can supply doctors' names according to their specialty and subspecialty.

Doctors are classified under general practise, internal medicine, obstetrics-gynecology, pediatrics, psychiatry and surgery. Surgeons are listed under such divisions as cardiovascular, neurosurgical, oral, orthopedic, otolaryngological, pediatric, plastic, urological and vascular. Helpful information on 24 subspecialities is also available.

The outpatient service department, whose chief is Lennig Chang, M.D., cites the advantages of having a personal physician. He knows you and your family history, a helpful fact in either emergency or routine situation. His file of information on you may save you money by preventing duplication of diagnostic services.

The physician referral service is available from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, at 964-0597.

Peirce seeks teachers for community schools

The Peirce Community School Local Committee is currently planning it's fall program.

Teachers are needed for the following courses: Canning (jellies and pickles), Elementary School Drama, Flower Arranging (Holiday Centerpieces), Home Maintenance, Pre-school Story Hour, Typing and Quilting.

If you can teach any of these subject, call Coordinators, Suzanne Levine (527-5947) and Anne Larner (965-4746) or Newton Community Schools office (244-4700 ext. 249).

Mt. Ida sponsors new summer program for pre-school children

Children from Newton and nearby communities are attending a new summer program sponsored by the Child Study department of Mt. Ida Junior College and engaging the services of students, volunteers and senior citizens. The mixed social grouping is intended to give all ages an opportunity to develop and interact together.

The professional staff is made up primarily of faculty from the child study program. Emphasis is placed on an individualized approach to supporting children8in their early separation from home. It offers an opportunity for sound emotional, social and intellectual development in a child centered environment which includes art, music, language, movement and exploration of the campus.

The program also provides opportunities for parents to participate in child study discussion groups. Director is Mrs. Eunice Perry of the Mt. Ida faculty, child study department. Department chairman is Mrs. Harriet Kahn of Waban.

Head teachers are Linda Lipman and Andy Wizer, assisted by Lisa Lindblom and Carol Sullivan, graduates of Mt. Ida. Senior citizens from the Human Services Program of the Newton Community Center are Mrs. Sophia Shaw and Mrs. Midge Lilis. Auxiliary staff includes Ellen DeMartino, Eileen Crohan and Teresa Smith, students.

DAR finds meaning of America

by Rosamond K. Boyce

A member of the Lucy Jackson chapter, Massachusetts DAR, discovered America on a recent Sunday when handed a program calendar in a church in Maine. The calendar linked together meaningfully the special holidays of July 4th and May 30th.

On the front cover was a colored reproduction of the American Flag and a white marble stone engraved with the fundamental rights, aims and purposes of the government of the United States. The foundation was inscribed "Fundamental Belief in God". On a marble block above was inscribed "Constitutional government designed to serve the people". The next block was inscribed with the Bill of Rights. The top block was inscribed "Political and economic rights which protect the dignity and freedom of the individual". America's Independence Day with America's Memorial Day by printing across the back cover, tFreedom isn' Free",and across the bottom of the front cover,"Liberty without License-Authority without Despotism".

The Lucy Jackson (Newton) chapter DAR was invited to participate in the annual July 4th ceremonies at Granary Burial Ground, Boston, honoring the signers of the Declaration of Independence. On Memorial Day Mrs. George Stanley Watten' dorf, regent, and three other chapter members, Mrs. Edward H. Lloyd, Jr.; Miss Helena Sprague; and Mrs. Antoine M Gaudin, rode in the front section of the Newton parade and took part in the wreath-laying ceremonies.

The DAR's concern for the educational needs of America's youth was made evident in May when the Lucy Jackson chapter and other DARs from New England awarded DAR scholarships to graduates at the Hillside School for Boys.

Gardeners' markets at Lincoln-Eliot School

Newton residents may buy or sell fresh produce at three Gardeners' Markets planned by the Lincoln-Eliot Community School for summer Fridays. The markets will be held on the school grounds, rain or shine, on August 19, 26, and Sept. 9 from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Gardeners must reserve space to sell their produce, and pay a registration fee of $1 at each market. They price their own vegetables and keep all their profits.

Mrs. Tricia Cook, Community School coordinator for the Lincoln-Eliot School, 191 Pearl St., Newton, suggests that students be encouraged to sell their own homegrown surplus vegetables or assist their pare ts. She feels the market experience will be an enjoyable way of earning money as they sharpen their mathematical and verbal skills.

The first Gardeners' Market on Aug. 19 will be followed by square dancing for adults and children (75 and 25) provided by Steve Park of the Garden City Squares. Beginners are urged to be on hand promptly at 6:30 to learn the basic movements. Steve almost guarantees that after an htur of allemandes, promenads and do-si-do's, the beginners will be indistinguishable from the advanced dancers.

Chinese and Italian food and homemade pastries will be sold between marketing and dancing.

Gardeners wishing to reserve space at any of the markets must call Mrs. Cook at 965-2566.

Local cancer unit seeking volunteer

The Newton-Wellesley Unit of the American Cancer Society is seeking a volunteer to head its service committee.

The person being sought would chair the Volunteer Service Committee, serve on the unit's board of directors, and direct the activities of Service Committee members.

Some of the activities of the Volunteer Service Committee include organizing volunteer drivers for transportation of cancer patients for treatments, arranging for loan of equipment needed by patients, and other tasks.

Objective of the Volunteer Service Committee is to provide assistance to cancer patients and their families in the Newton— Wellesley area.

Do your plants need a doctor?

Free medical advice for plants?

That's the case every Thursday from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Horticultural Hall in Boston. "Doctors" from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society are on hand throughout those hours to diagnose and treat sick houseplants.

The experts can tell whether a plant has been overwatered, underwatered, — or even if it has been getting too much sun or heat. If a houseplant is potbound, they can show how to repot it in a larger container, or if it needs pruning or cutting back, they can do that, too!

The general public is invited to bring any gardening questions to the weekly clinics sponsored by the Society, and there is no charge for any advice given. In addition, free demonstrations are held each week at 5 p.m., on different topics of interest.

The Plant Clinics are held on the Falmouthtreet side of Horticultural Hall, 300 Massachusetts Ave., opposite Symphony Hall. In case of rain, they are held indoors.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society, founded in 1829, is a non-profit membership group, dedicated to encouraging horticulture around the country.

Dr. Fuchs to head task force

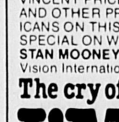

Job Fuchs, M.D., of Newton, director of Health Services at Northeastern University, has been appointed to the newly-created University Task Force on the Handicapped.

The charge of the task force will be to study and evaluate the recent H.E.W. regulations, designed to carry out Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, which bans discrimination against persons with physical, mental, or psychological disabilities.

The task force will also assess Northeastern's current policies, programs, and facilities and make specific recommendations to upgrade the quality of life for handicapped students and staff.

The task force will supplement Northeastern's Committee on the Handicapped, which has been working since 1974 to make long— range recommendations

Tanglewood: the sights and sounds of music

LENOX, Mass. (UPI) — A young musician silently conducts the evergreens, a violinist plays for the hedges and a young woman joins the birds in song.

It's a weekday at Tanglewood and 450 young people are filling the picturesque 280-acre summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra with the sights and sounds of their musical studies.

"Certainly the setting is a big part of Tanglewood's image and the orchestra's music is a big part. But what sets Tanglewood apart from other performing places is its idealism," said Daniel R. Gustin, administrator of Tanglewood's Berkshire Music Center.

"It's a very special kind of idealism that is due in part to having the symphony here, but also to having these young people singing their hearts out, playing and tooting, writing symphonies and conducting the trees."

Tanglewood, nestled in the rolling green of western Massachusetts' Berkshire mountains, attracts thousands of visitors each summer to its symphony concerts, its popular concerts and its music school performances. Between the three activities, something is happening daily at Tanglewood for eight weeks of the summer.

Gustin and Tanglewood Director of Business Affairs Walter D. Hill say the orchestra is drawing record crowds this summer and the popular concerts are "drawing very well" despite one of the more controversial off-seasons in the center's history.

The first orchestra weekend attracted more than 33,000 people — the largest opening weekend crowd in Tanglewood's history. And Hill says reservations are 10 per cent ahead of last season.

The winter problem had nothing to do with Tanglewood's symphonies. First, state officials proposed building a prison across the street from the orchestra's summer home. Area residents vehemently protested the proposal and the plan faded away.

"Those people certainly indicated the passion — the deep passion — with which people regard this place," Gustin says. "In other countries such a proposal would be unthinkable. It takes screwed up priorities for anyone to even conceive of doing such a thing, let alone the economic impact it would have had on Tanglewood and the tourist industry which is central to the area.

"Geographically and aesthetically this is one of the unique places in the world. And building a prison across the street is just unthinkable. It raised a lot of passions, but mostly among people who were already committed to Tanglewood so it will have very little impact on our summer attendance."

Gustin says the quality of programs is probably what is attracting larger crowds at Tanglewood concerts. But Hill thinks the nation's economy has something to do with Tanglewood's increasing attendance.

"In a strong economy, people take their long trips to Europe or wherever. If the economy is questionable, perhaps they decide to go a little closer to home. But enjoying the concerts has to be part of it, too, because all of the people that come here aren't people who take trips to Europe," Hill says.

Even with strong reservations for the 5,000 seats ($6-$15) in the "shed," Tanglewood's round, open concert hall, the summer's success depends upon the weather the day of concerts.

Thousands of $4 tickets are sold for space on the lawn around the shed and many people make a picnic out of attending concerts. A rainstorm the day of a popular or symphony concert can cost Tanglewood "at least $10,000" and as much as $20,000, Hill says.

"One of the things that makes Tanglewood unique is its "essentially rural character," Gustin says. But it was that character that caused the second winter problem as some area residents protested the noise levels of some concerts.

Area residents protested the noise levels of popular music concerts and Tanglewood agreed to limit the noise. Hill says the decision had been made before the protest, because Tanglewood had decided that hard rock concerts weren't part of the Tanglewood image.

"If we obtained certain very hard rock groups we could probably double the number of people at any particular concert. But there would be problems with noise and crowd control," he says. "It's all a part of developing a total image of Tanglewood. We don't want a discordant image."

Gustin says the dispute was part of the "unique ambiance" of Tanglewood.

"The year-round residents of the Berkshires both love us and hate us. They need the summer crowd, but they can't help but feel some antagonism at the great influx of people into their little towns. It's just a natural kind of resentment," he says.

Even so, Gustin says Tanglewood and the area residents have a strong bond and "since Tanglewood became symphony property in 1938 one of the things we have always been proud of is our relationship with Berkshire County — the positive impact we make here financially and just being good neighbors."

He says the nonprofit Tanglewood pays property taxes, even though it has an annual deficit of nearly half a million dollars. "We don't have to pay the taxes but feel it's our civic obligation," Gustin says.

Besides cutting back on noise levels, the decision to have "softer" rock artists at Tanglewood's concerts was also part of that obligation, he says. "Somebody's got to think of the audience. There's an audience out there for this kind of popular music, an enormous crowd of primarily young people who deserve to be thought of. Tanglewood has an obligation to them, too," Gustin says.

Tanglewood "obviously is not just another performing pavillion," he says. "The school is very central. We don't have just a stage that we rent out. The orchestra owns this place and it's sacred ground to us.

"There are other considerations than just selling tickets. We could get rid of some of that deficit, but we have ideals. You mix together all of these colliding elements — the great composers and conductors who come here, the members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the popular concerts and the students who are here from all over the world — and it's not like anywhere else."

He says "the kids come here to learn about performing or composing. That's what they see in the shed, that's what they're taught in the classroom, that's what happens when they're coached by orchestra members. That's what it's all about. The people who come to the school's concerts provide the final link — the strangers in the audience — in the training link."

Gustin says the setting becomes important because "it's such a concentrated eight weeks that I don't think it would be possible to do it in the city. The trees, the sun, the lake front, all the green and the fresh air allows things to happen that I don't think would happen in the city.

"There have certainly been changes here, there's always something new. But its essence always remains the same. I have a feeling it's always been the same. That's part of Tanglewood's idealism."

Battlefront memoir

Wartime, by Milovan Djilas. (Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, $14.95)

With the exception of Winston Churchill, no major figure in World War II has written of it so well as Milovan Djilas.

"Wartime" is that war's finest battlefront memoir.

Djilas, a poet and a revolutionary, ranked as the third top wartime aide to Josip Broz Tito, leader of the Communist partisan forces in the mountains of Yugoslavia.

Djilas tells of the times they shot prisoners.

He tells of the times they did not shoot prisoners.

He tells of the comradely times with Tito, the sharing of food on the run, the band of Communist brothers in rags battling Nazi SS warriors in the ravines and on the summits.

Djilas tells of the not-so-comradely times with Tito, of having to take Tito's measurements for a marshal's uniform on a first night flight to Moscow.

He chronicles the see-saw war with the Germans, Italians and anti-Communist Yugoslavs, the fading of his marriage, the Roman soldiers begging for life, the Balkan butchery of Serbo-Croat rivalry, much blood and a little poetry.

Djilas tells of the personalities of the cautious, tough, human Tito, of the rise of Alexander Rankovic, of the doings of the intellectual Edvard Kardelj. The reader can trace the start of the differences that led to Djilas' fall from power in 1954 as well as Tito's 1948 break with Moscow.

No students of the 20th century can understand World War II and Eastern Europe without reading this book. But this is not just a time for historians. It is a human document of a man at war with his time, place, comrades and himself.

One More July, a Football Dialogue with Bill Curry, by George Plimpton. (Harper and Row, $8.95)

An automobile ride from Louisville, Ky., to Green Bay, Wis., obviously means different things to different people. To George Plimpton it meant a book.

His companion was Bill Curry, a professional football player en route to "One More July" of training camp and a comeback attempt with the Green Bay Packers. Plimpton switched on a tape recorder while Curry explained his unique world where men play a child's game with the intensity of demons.

In the ensuing dialogue it is easy to discern the Plimpton who once braved football fields and boxing rings as a proponent of participatory journalism.

But Curry is clearly the star. He is a sensitive man, not a stereotyped grunter with beer can in one hand and TV Guide in the other.

Among his gifts is the ability to capture life in the anecdotes of his profession. Skirting Indiana farmlands toward a rendezvous with training camp agonies, he virtually knows a bad leg will keep him off the team. But this does not seem as important as what he is remembering and saying.

His recollections of coach Vince Lombardi alone make the book worthwhile reading. He describes the mesmerized ambivalence of the players toward Lombardi, and where descriptions fail, he provides stories. He recalls memorable personalities, the despair of losing a Super Bowl, the heated atmosphere in union-management salary negotiations.

Plimpton's tape-recorder journalism would be a cop-out were it not for some well-timed narrative touches and an occasional speck of imagery. The structure and substance mesh into an effort a pro football addict can enjoy and pass to his wife. Or vice versa.

A Woman's Place, by Ruth Adam. (Norton, $8.95)

After World War II, the fashion industry foisted what became known as "The New Look" on women of the western world, and in retrospect it marked a low point in feminine fads.

As designer Christian Dior proclaimed, it was a "tight slender bodice, narrowing into a tiny wasp waist, below which the skirt bursts into fullness like a flower."

The skirts were a foot from the ground and padding was all over, supposedly the ultimate in delicate femininity and a sharp departure from the short skirts and raffish styles of the wartime years.

And, as the book points out, this was the era of the ultimate in treating women as frilly sex objects whose entire role in life with enticing and pleasing men.

A British Member of Parliament raged, "The New Look is too reminiscent of a caged bird's attitude."

Male-dominated society was at it again, putting women in their place, which, when not in bed, certainly was in the home, preferably aproned and in the kitchen.

For whatever reason, Britain was the scene of both the greatest persecution of women (the material on forced feeding will make even male chauvinists cringe) and women's most strident protests.

The book takes us from the suffragettes through the changes wrought by two world wars as women struggled for the vote, the right to work, to receive an education. The changes have been many, often contradictory.

The book concludes that a woman born at the turn of the century would have lived through three separate periods "in which she was a bad wife, mother and citizen for wanting to go out and earn her own living, and three others when she was a worse wife, mother and citizen for not being eager to do so."

Mafia wife plays kiss-and-tell

NEW YORK (UPI) — You show up an hour late for a date with a flashy blonde who played "kiss-and-tell" with Mafia thugs and she's sitting at the bar with a dark Sicilian in a white leisure suit, broad as an ax handle at the shoulders.

"Hi," she says, smiling friendly enough. "This is my friend, Frank."

(Boyfriend? Bodyguard? Mob enforcer about to teach some New York street manners to a reporter with Mississippi mush in his mouth?)

"Hi," says Frank, presenting a hand big as a ham hock. He quickly turns back to his vodka and orange juice where he remains affixed in his own "code of silence."

"Well, what do you want to know?" she asks, as nonchalantly as a PTA mother.

(What do you ask the wife of a Mafiaso sent to the slammer in the French Connection case, a street-wise girl who had been kept by a half dozen mobsters by the time she turned 18? Do gangsters make good lovers?)

"Well, uh, did your conscience ever bother you while you were running around with those guys?," you ask, knowing all the while that the pleasant woman sitting here in a backless sun dress once participated in a steal-to-order shoplifting ring.

"You know," she says, taking a long drag off a Winston, "I never thought about it. You never think about what they're doing, but you know they're not Fuller brush salesmen."

Thus begins a conversation with Barbara Fuca, wife of Pasquale "Patsy" Fuca, the nephew of the powerful Little Ange Tumminaro.

The 35-year-old mother of four says she got equally mad at the cops and the mob when she and Patsy were busted in the French Connection case. She told police where to find the 88 pounds of heroin, the key evidence, and decided to break the Mafia's "code of silence" and write a book.

"She did it because they (the mob) didn't give her any help, like with lawyers," says Frank, taking an interest for the first time.

Frank, it turns out, works with the Italian-American Civil Rights League which was organized by Mafia boss Joe Columbo, who was subsequently shot in the head at a rally.

"The League doesn't have anything to do with organized crime," Frank says, adding that the Brooklyn-based organization is now mainly involved with social work and community improvement projects.

(FBI sources said the League virtually withered away after Columbo was shot).

Frank turns back to his drink and orders a fresh round.

"Frank's an old friend," Barbara explains. "He's been driving me around to interviews all day."

"Do you know where I can get a press pass?" Frank asks.

But back to Barbara's story.

Patsy was paroled from New York's Greenhaven State Prison after serving less than half of his 15-year sentence in the French Connection case. Alas, he quickly fell into his old ways and found himself back in prison for hijacking.

In the meantime, author Robin Moore had made a bundle of legal money with his book and movie "The French Connection." Barbara, hoping to cash in, wrote Moore offering to collaborate on another book.

She wanted to tell the "real" story of French Connection detectives Eddie "Popeye" Egan and Sonny Grosso and give an inside look at the Mafia from a female's point of view.

"Some of the personalities who are in today's limelight — namely Joe Gallo, Joe Luparelli (the getaway driver in the Joe Gallo murder case), Sonny Pinto — I knew them when they were first getting started.

"I knew Joe Colombo when he ran a club called the Como Lounge that was a front for a crap game and he danced his way through business. From personal experience I can tell you he was the best dancer the Mafia ever had."

She said her book would be spiced with sex. "Everyone enjoys a "good" dirty book with a theme," she said.

Moore, who also authored "The Green Berets" and helped Xaviera Hollander and Yvonne DunLeavy write "The Happy Hooker," at first resisted but then decided perhaps there was a buck to be made here.

In late June "Mafia Wife" (Macmillan $7.95) reached the book stores. It probably reveals little about the Mafia that careful readers of New York newspapers didn't already know and it could hardly be described as "dirty." Sex acts are implied, but rarely described.

But it is an easy-reading, sometimes fascinating story of a how a young Brooklyn girl, born out of wedlock to a mother of Polish-Jewish extraction and a father who was a small-time gangster, takes to the underworld.

By the time she was 15, Barbara was a barmaid in a Mafia-run after-hours club. By the time she was 17, she had fronted for a bookmaking operation in Brooklyn, escorted visiting mobsters at a Miami Beach Hotel owned by Carlo Gambino, been paid to spy on the New York police morals squad, and had been wined, dined and kept by a half dozen Mafiosi.

She never witnessed a murder, but she knew how to be discreet about the violence around her.

A prizefighter named Leo Molino was bringing her home from a date one night when she was approached by two men she knew. One of them motioned for her to leave. She said goodnight to her date and left.

The next day Molino's body was found stuffed in a garbage can.

A month later she ran into one of the killers who said, "I hear you're on the lam?'

"What for?" Barbara asked.

"You were out with Leo Molino the night he was hit," he said.

"Who's Leo Molino?" Barbara asked.

The man smiled and walked away.

In the book, Barbara tells how she and other Mafia wives would organize boosting (shoplifting) rings, especially when their husbands were behind bars and money was short.

She tells of double-dating with Joey Gallo, who pulled a gun on his date for flirting with another man, and how she spent many happy evenings dancing with Joe Colombo, whom she called "Dancing Joe," the most accomplished ballroom dancer in the Mafia.

"The typical Mafia wife knows nothing about where her husband goes or what he does when he's not home," she writes. "As long as he's back by dawn, she doesn't ask."

Barbara puts Mafia wives in three classes. On the bottom rung are the Class C wives.

"They bear children, keep old style Italian households, and go out with their husbands only to christenings, weddings and funerals."

The top category are the Class A wives who usually start out as Mafia girlfriends.

"They're fast-living, free-spending, fun-loving women with lots of street smarts and a strong sense of self-preservation."

Thats were Barbara ranked herself.

Isn't she afraid of retaliation for writing such a book?

Barbara smiles, winks.

"I don't really reveal any secrets."

Vermont has 'Thurd Party'

CHESTER, Vt. (UPI) — Vermont without natives is like Disneyland without Mickey Mouse, according to the founder of a newly-formed party to keep the state's homegrown citizens from becoming extinct.

Fletcher Manley, 63, of Chester, is a retired builder and a seventh-generation Vermonter who thinks something should be done to make the state more attractive to keep its young at home.

That's why Manley announced creation of "The Thurd Party," dedicated to the native Vermonter he believes represents a third of the state's roughly 460,000 people.

The "Thurd," an imaginary species envisoned by Manley, is depicted in the party's promotional stickers as a cross-eyed, owl-like bird wearing a top hat.

This "rare bird" is not to be confused with the designation "third," Manley said.

"We wanted to give the Thurd an identity," he said.

Manley defines a "native" as a person over 18 years old who was born in Vermont.

However, that definition is more lenient than a common Vermont maxim on natives which goes, "Just 'cause the kittens were born in the oven don't make 'em muffins."

Although the "Thurd Party" has no political aspirations, Manley said it plans to lobby for legislation to help the native Vermonter — such as tax incentives for farmers.

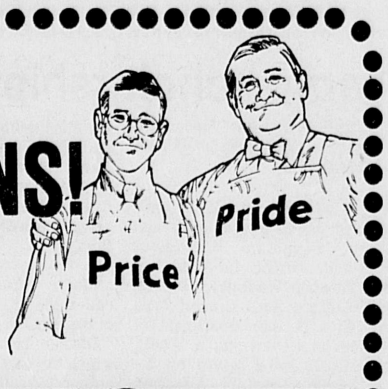

Manley particularly wants to make sure the "good jobs" go to natives, instead of to outsiders, a subject that is a sore point to many oldtimers.

"If it's even-steven, the native would get the preference," Manley said.

The party will also push to upgrade training in Vermont so the state does not need to recruit outsiders, Manley said.

We pick the best meat and poultry

All A&P beef is federally inspected. It comes from the West and the cattle have been grain-fed. Our young fryers are raised where the climate is ideal for meaty tender birds. In fact, our experienced staff of buyers look for the best quality — and the best buys — in every kind of meat and poultry.

And we always package meat "best side down." That means the side you don't see is as good or better than the side you do see.

The final quality check is done by our butchers in the store. They cut and trim for best value, easy cook-ability and flavor.

Diamond Jubilee

Among those present to help celebrate the diamond jubilee of St. John's Episcopal Church in Newtonville recently were (standing from left): Rev. Philip Jacobs, former parishioner; Rev. Ronald P. Prinn, rector from 1966-67; Rev. DeWolf Perry, rector, 1941-47; Rev. William C. Lowe, rector since 1971; (seated from left): Alvin H. Hartman, immediate past senior warden; Mrs. Leon E. Slayton, senior warden; Rev. Wilbur J. Kingwill, rector from 1947-66; Rev. Linda Grenz, curate. Dinner was served to more than 145 people and Ret. Rev. John Bowen Coburn, the next day, celebrated the Holy Eucharist at the church' followed by a reception in the Loring Room.

Donation quadruples camp scholarships

The City of Newton's Department of Human Services will soon be forwarding a check for $4600 to the Massachusetts Department of Public Welfare. However, by participating in the Welfare Department's Donated Funds Program, the city will get in return $17,480 in federal funds to be used for summer camp scholarships for Newton children.

Money for the donation was raised by the Garden City Campership Coalition. Donors include Newton YMCA, Horace Cousens Industrial Fund, Camp Academy, Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., Alles Corporation, Alumabilt, Inc., Balco Realty, Thomas J. Lyons Funeral Home, Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Lown, King's Department Store Foundation, McDonald's Foundation, Dr. and Mrs. Melvin Shoul, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Richards, Stop & Shop Foundation, Bikofsky Insurance Agency, West Newton Shell Service, Newton Firefighters Relief Association and the Newton Police Benefit Association.

Additional camperships have been made available through the Perpetual Benevolent Fund, Office for Children (Newton, Wellesley, Weston, Needham Area Office), Area Office of the Department of Mental Health and a benefit softball game played by the Newton Board of Aldermen and the Waltham City Council.

The Garden City Campership Coalition estimates that by the end of the summer over 400 Newton children will have been provided with scholarships through the combined use of private donations and public funding.

Mayor Theodore Mann called the city's participation in the Donated Funds Program "Another innovative way in which the City of Newton has cooperated with state and local resources to meet the needs of local residents."

8000 expected to attend August religious conference

Eight thousand persons involved in religious education in New England are expected to attend a three-day congress scheduled for the UMass campus at Amherst Aug. 19, 20, and 21.

More than 80 speakers and panelists, including three Bishops, 36 priests, and scores of nuns, brothers, and laypersons will address themselves to the theme "Religious Formation—A Ministry of Light and Healing."

Topics to be covered include Scripture, Peace and Justice, the Spanish Speaking Populations, Ecumenism, Divorced and Remarried Catholics, Television and Other Media of Communications, Parish Life, Youth Ministries, the Retarded, Prayer, Reconciliation, Conscience, Love, Concepts of Death with Children and Adolescents, the Family, Grace, Family Planning, Catechesis for the Black Community, "Faith in Funnies, Film, and the Fonz," Music and the Liturgy, the Charismatic Renewal.

The 29th New England Congress is being sponsored jointly by the religious education offices of the eleven Roman Catholic dioceses in the six state region.

Parents as well as professors, administrators, and parish council members will participate in the various sessions and seminars. Delegates have been registered from New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, while speakers will attend from Washington, D.C., Quebec, Kentucky, Tennessee, Minnesota, and Ohio.

The keynote address will be given by Rev. Stephen Doyle, O.F.M., professor of Sacred Scripture and Biblical Preaching at Pope John XXIII National Seminary for Delayed Vocations, Weston, Mass. Father Stephen will speak on "The Problem of Evil and the Mystery of Suffering."

Congress registration is priced according to four plans: Plan A: $49.50, lodging for two nights, seven meals. Plan B: $35.50, seven meals, no lodging. Plan C: $17.50, registration for three days, no meals, no lodging. Plan D: $12, registration for one day, no meals, no lodging.

All Troop 373 scouts cited at Court of Honor

Boy Scout Troop 373 of West Newton, sponsored for many years by The Second Church, recently held its final Court of Honor Ceremony in the Church Parish Hall. All of the scouts received at least one award, a major achievement in itself.

Skill awards were presented to 68 scouts and 38 merit badges were presented.

Tenderfoot Scout rankings were given to P. Russell, D. Driscoll, H. Obermeyer, R. Margolis, P. Passavant and C. McGrath.

Second Class Scout rankings went to C. Lang, M. Margolis, E. Gundersen, T. Houston, K. Winkler and M. Negrotti.

First Class Scout rankings were earned by H. Levine, B. Feeney, M. McGrath, S. McKinney, P. McGlaston, S. Olsson, T. Houston, S. Houston, L. Houston and D. Nelson.

Star Scout rankings were won by S. Buckley and W. McKinney.

A special award for religion in scouting was awarded to D. Guterman.

At a special ceremony, sashes for the Order of the Arrow were received by L. Houston, M. McGrath, S. Buckley, D. Nelson, and Mr. "Tiny" Houston.

A final note of sadness was registered when it was announced that both Scoutmaster Tom Reilly and Assistant Dana McKinney are retiring. Tom Reilly has been scoutmaster for the past 15 years.

They will be sorely missed, and an active campaign is underway to find replacements.

Troop 373 is among the oldest and strongest Troops in Newton, consistantly scoring well in jamboree and camporee events. Nearly 80 percent of the troop has registered to attend the scout camp this summer in Rhode Island.

Bloodmobile

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Newton Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville, on Wednesday, Au 3, from 10 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. Donors are asked to make appointments (call 527-6000) so that the donation process may take place evenly, without waiting lines.

Anyone able to volunteer assistance at the bloodmobile is also requested to call 527-6000.

Donation should take no more than one hour, and can save four lives.

Birth

A son, Avery Seth, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Weiner (Donna Gerry Rosenhack) of Parsippany, N.J., on July 6 at Riverside Hospital, Boonton, N.J. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weiner of Newton Centre and Mr. and Mrs. Ruby Gerry of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Five cited at Temple Israel

Five Newton residents were among the award winners of the 1977 Confirmation Class at Temple Israel, Boston.

Students who received awards for excellence studied with Rabbi Paul J. Citrin and Rabbi Roland B. Gittelsohn.

The students are Richard Zucker of Waban, Robert Alexander, Marcia Okun, Phyllis Rittner and Howard Caplan, all of Newton Centre.

While you've been paying full fare, thousands have been taking cabs home from Logan for half the price.

Now you can Share-A-Cab, too.

What's Share-A-Cab?
Back in April we introduced a plan called Share-A-Cab. It let people take a cab home from Logan for about half what it would normally cost. Apparently it was the most exciting news to come out of Logan since reduced air fares.

Because from the original 21 cities and towns served by Share-A-Cab the list has jumped to 138. So now more people than ever can enjoy the advantage of Share-A-Cab.

Of course, the basics of Share-A-Cab have stayed the same: your fare is about half what it would be normally. You share a cab with other people who are going your way. But you don't have to worry about finding those people. We'll find them for you.

Why Would I Share-A-Cab?
1. The fare is about half what you'd normally pay.
2. You know in advance what the fare is and that fare includes all tolls and other fees.
3. You get door-to-door service... from Logan to your doorstep.

How do I get Share-A-Cab Service?
Every Logan terminal has a clearly marked Share-A-Cab booth located at the Baggage Claim Area. Just tell the Share-A-Cab dispatcher inside where you'd like to go. (Also feel free to ask any questions you have about Share-A-Cab or other Logan Airport ground transportation services.)

What does Share-A-Cab guarantee?
1. The Dispatcher is obligated to include you in a group within 10-15 minutes.
2. If, after 10-15 minutes, the Dispatcher doesn't hear of even one other person wanting to share a cab in your direction, the Dispatcher will advise you of that and ask if you want to continue to wait, or use some other means of transportation.
3. Once in a while a person scheduled to join your cab may not make it. But that's not your problem. Once you're in a Share-A-Cab taxi, you're guaranteed service at the Share-A-Cab rate. Even if you're all by yourself.
4. Each person can bring 2 pieces of luggage—more, if space permits.

What Hours does it run?
Share-A-Cab is in service 7:30am-11:30pm, seven days a week.

Where does it go and what does it cost?
These are the areas covered. The fees listed are per person regardless of the number of people in the cab (minimum two, maximum four) and the cab driver is responsible for all tolls. Tipping? That's up to you!

Getting to Logan
Local cab companies will soon offer Share-A-Cab service to Logan. For more information, contact your local cab company. Or dial the special, toll free Share-A-Cab number below and ask for the name of the nearest participating Share-A-Cab company.

A bit of background
To provide travelers through Logan with the widest choice of economical ground transportation services, the taxi industry, with promotional assistance from Massport, introduced Share-A-Cab to areas outside downtown Boston.

Because our concern doesn't end when your plane lands. We want your whole trip to be comfortable and enjoyable...door-to-door.

SHARE A CAB

For additional information call our special toll-free Share-A-Cab number: 1-800-732-3466

Share-A-Cab is a concept in multi-passenger taxi dispatching for Logan Airport promoted by the Massachusetts Port Authority. Actual taxi services under the Share-A-Cab concept are rendered solely by participating independent taxi owners and operators, not by the Massachusetts Port Authority.

Under federal and state law and Massport regulations, public transportation services at Logan shall be provided without discrimination on grounds of race, creed, sex, or national origin.

Pines' aide and Baxter testify on adverse effects of smoking

Doug Husid, legislative aid for State Representative Lois G. Pines of Newton, and Suzanne Baxter of Newtonville, a member of the Massachusetts Nurses Association, were two of 60 witnesses testifying recently in Boston before the National Commission on Smoking and Public Policy, established by the American Cancer Society.

Rep. Pines, in her message read by Husid, called for continued and accelerated public demand for legislative action to protect the rights of the non-smoker.

"A legislative body is a vacuum which is filled by the most visible, the most vocal, and the most persistent," she said. "The rights of non-smokers must be advocated by the non-smokers themselves."

Citing the results of scientific research into sidestream or exhaled smoke, Pines said that non-smokers who share an enclosed space with smokers are forced to inhale carbon monoxide, nitrogen, dioxide, hydrogen cyanide, hydrogen sulfide, hydrocyanic acid, arsenic formaldehyde, and other deadly substances against their will.

"Can there be any doubt," she said, "that this represents the deprivation of the majority's rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness at the hands of the minority?"

Pines' proposal to ban smoking in certain public places, defeated in 1973 and 1974, was enacted by the Massachusetts legislature in 1975. She has continued to file proposals to expand and strengthen the law to include medical offices, educational facilities, state buildings and restaurants.

She also proposed that non-smokers be given lower automobile insurance rates than smokers. "The general health and alertness of non-smoking drivers is superior to that of smokers and should be a factor in determining rates," she said.

According to Ms. Baxter, nurses should take a stand against smoking regardless of personal habits. She noted that she does not allow smoking in her classrooms and feels that this should be the policy in all classrooms.

In a survey of smoking habits of health professionals between 1969 and 1975, Ms. Baxter said that it was found that nurses were the only group in which smoking increased (37.3 to 38.9 percent).

Upon questioning 43 senior nursing students, she found that 46 percent were cigarette smokers. The smoking students, she added, felt that physicians should set an example to their patients of not smoking "but were unwilling to commit the nurse to the examplar role."

"More needs to be done," Ms. Baxter said, emphasizing the need for educating nurses in the hazards of cigarette smoking. She suggested that the Massachusetts Nurse, the M.N.A.'s official publication, as well as Councils on Practice and specialty groups within the M.N.A., could be used as effective tools in disseminating this information.

The Boston hearing was the sixth of eight regional public forums focusing on various aspects of the cigarette problem. The National Commission on Smoking and Public Policy was established by the American Cancer Society's Board of Directors to gather nationwide testimony to develop a public mandate against cigarette smoking.

The forums are the cornerstone of the American Cancer Society's Target 5 program, a five-year campaign which aims to reduce smoking among youth and adults and to reduce by 50 percent the toxic elements of cigatette smoke through industrial and government controls.

Donald Levitan

Levitan made full professor

Donald Levitan of 249 Homer St., Newton Centre, has been promoted to professor of public management and administration at the Suffolk University Graduate School of Administration, Richard L. McDowell, dean of the college, announced this week.

Levitan, who had been an associate professor, is also director of the master in public administration program at Suffolk and director of the Suffolk University Center for Public Management.

Formerly director of intergovernmental relations for the City of Newton, Levitan is a national consultant on grantsmanship and resource development and the author of numerous publications on grants and municipal management.

Levitan received his bachelor of science degree from Boston College in 1951 and an M.A. from the Maxwell School at Syracuse University and was an honors scholar at New York University where he received his doctor of public administration degree in 1972. more

Here's your chance ice cream lovers

An ice cream-eating contest will be held in Waltham Sunday, Aug. 7.

Designed to break the current world record of eight pounds of ice cream in 12 minutes, the contest will be at Dean Dairy Ice Cream Shoppe, 5 Beaver St., Waltham' starting at 1 p.m.

Banjo and fiddle players and a barber shop quartet will be on hand to provide entertainment. There will be free balloons and sand pails for children and several drawings for prizes.

Official timekeepers for the contest are City Councillors Joseph Godde and Carl Cincotta.

Linda Sullivan, regional representative of the Boston Gas community affairs department, presents a check to Newton-Wellesley Hospital Administrator William Christensen toward the purchase of a gamma camera, a major item in the hospital's capital needs budget. The donation was from Eastern Associated Foundation, the charitable arm of Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates.

HOW DO YOU SPELL SUCCESS?

We, at National Lumber, spell success as Webster does. We also, in the broader sense, spell success P-E-O-P-L-E!

We have found, since opening our Home Improvement Center store, that a policy of paying attention to people, that is, listening to them, has proven to be the key to our success.

From the very beginning, we, and, of course, our competent staff, have kept one thought in mind: if our customers (people) are happy to do business with us, we will be successful.

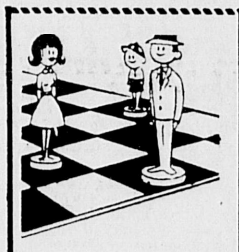

With that principle to work toward, our staff is instinctively courteous, efficient, helpful and, above all, prompt in solving your particular problem. We do everything we can to provide the particular product you need and at the lowest price possible for first-quality merchandise. We will not make promises we cannot keep, such as delivery times, and such, that will inconvenience you, our customer.

Maybe that's the way to spell success . . . it certainly has been for us.

In short, we want to thank you, the people, who have made National Lumber a Success story.

Home care

If she does decide to enter the labor force fulltime who then takes care of the MS victim? Who takes care of any small children the couple may have?

These are difficult questions for both victim and family to deal with.

Then, there is the touchy problem of the victim's family leaving the house, getting out for recreation and needs of their own.

The families feel guilty if they try to go out and have a good time, even one evening a week, when the victim cannot go out.

Children may feel that they shouldn't leave home to go to college, get married or otherwise leave the family domicile, if that will leave one parent to take care of an MS parent.

Lastly, there is the practical problem of care of the MS patients.

Families usually lack the skills and confidence required to care for them at home, and they are frequently forced to place the victims in nursing homes.

This can lead to economic and emotional suffering for everyone concerned.

One of the main purposes of the Red Cross-MS Society course is to avoid the unnecessary institutionalization of an MS patient.

"MS is a family problem, and teaching family members how to care for the disabled will help many thousands of MS patients to lead more meaningful lives despite their disease," said Daniel Haughton, chairman of the National MS Society in recognition of projects home care initiated two years ago and tested in 1976 in both Detroit and San Francisco.

The overwhelming success of those pilot projects has led to a nationwide program.

In the fall, the Massachusetts MS Society will offer the home care course at two new locations, one on the South Shore and one on the North Shore.

In addition, Ms. Wasserman is willing to organize a 10-week course wherever there is a demand for it in Massachusetts.

The only requirement for the free course is that people be willing to set aside two hours, either evenings or in the daytime, once a week until the course is completed.

People interested in signing up for courses may call Lynn Wasserman at 964-7600.

Equipment

"There was no preventive-maintenance program, I admit, but when you have to keep all your men busy fixing old stuff ' there was never time," Larson said.

Larson has been public works commissioner since 1976, but could not exert full powers of the position until the mayor's reorganization of departments was fully passed by the Board of Aldermen. The reorganization was passed this year.

Among the aldermen who seem to feel that a better job could have been done in maintenance are some aldermen who put up no fuss when maintenance supplies were cut in the budget, nor indeed in other years when new vehicles were cut.

Ald. David Cohen, chairman of the Public Works Committee for the past two years, commented at last Thursday's meeting that hereafter if the bonding is passed for $1.25 million, $300,000 should be put in the budget every year for replacement of equipment.

Ald. Richard Bullwinkle, a candidate for mayor who therefore will not be on the Board next year, said the annual $300,000 "is obviously too low," but how many future aldermen will agree with him?

Larson thinks that figure is too low. If that is all that will be spent, Larson said, "You're saying all the pieces will last 30 years."

Responding to criticism of his role in letting the public works equipment deteriorate and not be replaced, Mayor Theodore Mann says he had no proper public works commissioner until last year and no plan for maintenance, and so did not want to spend money on equipment until he felt Larson could handle it.

Some of his detractors and political opponents are faulting him at the same time for bonding equipment that should have been bought over the years and for not giving Larson what Larson feels he needs in the way of equipment to do a good job, which would cost over $3 million.

The Finance Committee will now go into Larson's seven-year program, which would cost $8 million.

Housing

housing in compliance with the city's "10 percent ordinance."

That ordinance requires developers to provide low-income housing equivalent to 10 percent of the new apartments built by permissive use of the Board.

A 124-apartment building to be constructed and operated by Jewish Community Housing for the Elderly IV was given the go-ahead by the Board after two previous attempts at getting housing on the Stanton Avenue site had fallen through.

JCHE has acquired the land from the former owner, Dr. Edwin Guiney, whose plans for luxury housing for the elderly could not get financing.

Twelve of the JCHE apartments will be leased for low-income elderly tenants, 12 will be rented at market rents, and 100 apartments will be subsidized by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for low- and moderate-income elderly tenants.

The development will not be restricted to Jewish tenants.

Although the Land Use Committee approved a 112-unit complex on Nahanton Street, Ward 8, by a 4-3 vote, several legal matters need to be taken care of before the proposal is voted on by the Board. Final action is expected at the Aug. 15 Board meeting.

By then developer Oscar Wasserman must produce a deed restriction that will prevent anything other than the proposed buildings from being built on the land after rezoning is voted.

Also to be worked out is the composition of a management group for the 21 acres which Wasserman will give to the city as conservation land, most of which is a wetland.

Wasserman has proposed complying with the 10 percent ordinance by providing housing in existing houses scattered across the city.

Land Use Committee Chairman Eliot Cohen is somewhat concerned that all the apartments provided do not end up in several two- or three-family houses, thus creating tiny ghettos of low-income families.

Cohen hopes to be able to discuss some of the answers to these questions at the Aug. 8 committee meeting.

A proposal by Ald. Terry Morris to allow conversion of single-family to two-family houses in Residence C district, when the lot size is sufficient to allow the required number of square feet per unit, was denied by a vote of 12 in favor, 11 opposed.

A zoning amendment requires 16 votes.

Morris' proposal also would have allowed the conversion of two-family houses in Private Residence district to occupancy by more than two families of the lot size provided there is enough footage for each units as now specified by the zoning ordinances.

Morris wanted to allow the conversions to prevent destruction of housing and its replacement by bigger houses or apartment buildings and to preserve the character of the city's housing.

It would allow for more densely populated housing, but would create no new structures.

Another measure introduced by Morris, which has been languishing in the Board for many months, would have required permissive use from the Board of Aldermen before the owner of a dwelling could demolish the building. It was denied by the Legislation & Rules Committee twice and has now been denied by the Board.

Elections

papers to run for alderman-at-large.

In Ward 7 the latest entry in the aldermanic race is Letitia Angelone of 314 Langley Rd., running at-large.

In Ward 8 the new candidate is Mitchell Snyder of 107 Brandeis Rd., running at-large.

As of Wednesday, 20 of the 55 potential candidates for alderman had had their nomination papers certified by the Election Commission, according to Licarie.

They are: Ald. Robert Gaynor, Ward 1; Patricia Ciccone. Guido Cetrone, Joseph DePasquale, candidates ward alderman in Ward 1; Ald. Edward Richomond, Ward 2; Ald. Thomas Concannon and Elaine Gentile, Ward 2 ward alderman; Ald. Matthew Jefferson, Ward 3; Anthony Salvucci, Ward 3 ward alderman.

Also Ald. John Stewart, Ald. Donald Budge, Ward 4; Ald. Carol Ann Shea, Ward 4 ward alderman; Paul Coletti, Ward 5; Ald. Susan Schur, Ward 5 ward alderman ; Gene Blumenreich, Ward 6; Ald. Ernest Dietz, Ward 6 ward Kardon, Cynthia Creem, Jerold Wise, Ward 8; Robert Katz, Ward 8 ward alderman.

In School Committee races eight of the 19 people with nomination papers have had them certified.

They are: William Maloney, Ward 1; R. Dennis Becker, Ward 2; Nancy Mann, Ward 3; Honora Kaplan, Ward 5; Robert Cohen, Ward 6; Paul Ash, Ward 7; Sandra Fleishman, Ward 7; Alvin Mandell, Ward 8.

Kaplan, Cohen, Ash and Mandell are incumbents.

The entrance of the two late candidates in Ward 5 at-large will make it a race. Both incumbents, Ald. Sidney Small, and Ald. James Miller, are not seeking reelection. Until last week, newcomers Leon Brathwaite II and Paul Coletti were in the unique situation of being non-incumbents with no opposition.

Sandman and Weinrebe have both run for office before. Sandman was a candidate for School Committee from Ward 5 in 1971 and Weinrebe was State Sen. Jack Backman's Republican opponent in 1974.

Election Commission Secretary Licarie also announced this week that the drawing for ballot position for the preliminary will be held Thursday, Aug. 11 at 7 p.m. at City Hall.

Candidates names will appear on the ballot in the individual races in the order of the draw.

Preliminary races are expected for mayor, alderman-at-large in Ward 6, alderman-at-large in Ward 8, ward alderman in Wards 1 and 3, and School Committee in Wards 1, 2 and 3.

Licarie also noted that students who will be away in the fall can register to vote now and get absentee ballots at his office in City Hall.

Obituaries

Marguerite Dolan

A funeral mass was celebrated in St. Bernard's Church Tuesday (July 26) for Marguerite F. (Golden) Dolan.

Mrs. Dolan, 80, of 215 Cherry St., West Newton, died Sunday (July 24) in St. Elizabeth's Hospital after a brief illness.

A resident of West Newton for the last 11 years, she was the immediate past treasurer of the West Newton Senior Citizens Club.

She is survived by her husband, George T. Dolan; two sons, Col. (Ret) George T. Jr. of Nashua, N.H., and Robert L. of Wellesley; three sisters, Miss Marion J. Golden of Boston, Mrs. Claire M. Ferrick of Waltham, and Mrs. Katheline T. Clark of Auburndale; and a grandson.

Burial is in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Boston Gas can help with winter fuel bills

"Boston Gas is anxious to participate in this program under rules that are not an undue burden to all ratepayers, but which will help customers who found it difficult to meet last winter's heating costs," states Chester R. Messer, the company's assistant vice president of customer activities.

To be eligible, a customer must have either an income derived solely from Social Security, or an income below the poverty level as defined by federal guidelines.

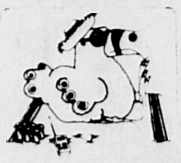

In its notice to 55,000 customers, Boston Gas has stressed that the program funds are limited, and that even customers eligible under the program's requirements are not guaranteed assistance.

Boston Gas has also agreed to contribute an amount equal to 2 percent of the funds it receives to the state to help defray the Program's administrative and auditing costs. It will also provide, as required under its agreement with the Commonwealth, a variety of monthly statistical data about its residential customers and their payment habits.

Boston Gas Company has notified the Massachusetts Department of Community Affairs of its willingness to participate in the Special Crisis Intervention Program.

Under this federally-funded program, qualified residential customers, principally elderly and low-income persons, who experienced difficulty paying last winter's fuel bills, may receive up to $250 to be paid directly to their fuel supplier.

In conjunction with it participation in the program, Boston Gas is mailing to approximately 55,000 residential customers a special notice outlining eligibility requirements. Also included will be a list of community agencies, throughout the company's 74-community service territory, through whom the federal monies will be channeled.

contemplating the possibility of filing an for an abatement of $5000-$10,000 on the valuation of his property because of the appearance of the building.

Eliot Cohen's letter to Johnson said that after he had discussed the problem with Building Commissioner Allan Fraser, Fraser told him legal notice has been sent to the owner, and if there is no response, "court action will be sought ."

If the owner responds, Cohen's letter continued' "the roof will have to be replaced and new plans will have to be submitted" for a new building permit.

Johnson and more than 50 other signers of the "Charlemont Committee Report" are a little bitter that the problem has been allowed to go on for so long.

"This sort of problem would never have occurred in Waban or any of the higher-income neighborhoods, so why here? We pay taxes just like anyone else."

Hollywood's NBC network is talking to the producers of Broadway's hottest musical, "Annie," about filming it for TV.

Police, fire bargaining nears end

Labor negotiations for police and fire contracts are coming down to the wire.

According to Mayor Theodore Mann, police negotiations are entering the third and last stage of compulsory arbitration. Police have turned down a fact-finder's report recommending acceptance of the city's offer of a 5 percent wage increase for each year of the two-year contract.

The city offered all employee8 unions 5 percent increases last year. Settlement was reached with all except police and fire.

The police contract expired last July, so any pay increase will be retroactive more than one year.

The firefighters are waiting for a factfinder's report.

The state compulsory-arbitration law applies only to fire and police. It calls for three steps — mediation, factfinding, and binding arbitration. Each step has a prescribed timetable, which often cannot be strictly adhered to because of demands on the arbitrators' time.

Binding arbitration requires a "final and best" offer from each side. The arbitrator selects the offer.

The School Committee and the Newton Teachers' Association have no bargaining sessions scheduled, School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell said this week.

The teachers' contract expires the end of August, he said.

Record Attendance

Veteran officials at the Newton Recreation Department report last week's heat wave brought out a record number of swimmers at both the Gath Pool in Newtonville and Crystal Lake in Newton Highlands. The sale of swim permits has been so brisk that it is expected that the Department may exhaust the supply before the summer is over.

Jimmy Fund Wins

Children attending the Recreation Department's supervised programs at Newton's 30 playgrounds turned over $400.00 to $500.00 to the Jimmy Fund last week. The money was collected at the annual playground carnivals conducted throughout the City. The youngsters came up with many original ideas for booths and games they built and operated. The nickels, pennies and dimes collected went to charity. This is the 15th year the Carnival Days have been held on Newton's playgrounds.

Playground Tennis Tourney

Plans have been completed for the Recreation Department's Annual Playground Tennis Tournament. The event will be held at the Newton North High School courts on Monday, August 8th, beginning at 9:30 a.m. There will be two divisions, Midgets for 10, 11 and 12 year olds and Juniors for those 13, 14 and 15. The Tourney is open to both boys and girls. No player holding a New England Lawn Tennis Association ranking, or who has won any of its sanctioned tournaments is eligible. Any boy or girl except those to whom these restrictions apply may sign up with tennis instructors Steve Freeman, Ellen Hearst or Lesley Fitzgerald on days lessons are given at their playgrounds, with playground leaders, or report to the Newton North High School courts the morning of the Tournament. Trophies will be presented to the winners and runner-ups.

Soccer Clinic

A Soccer Clinic will be held at the West Newton Common on Wednesday, August 3rd, beginning at 2 p.m. Instructors will be Bob Worden, Junior Varsity Coach at the Rivers School and former Newton High School players, Peter Hite and John Kreider. The Clinic Coordinator is Brian Valleley. Prizes will be awarded and tonic ready for the thirsty.

International League Standings

The standings in the Newton Recreation Department's Twilight Baseball Program International League as of July 16, 1977 are as follows: Copp Division — Boys' Club 9-2-1; Carson Post A.L. 9-3; Barnstormers 7-4; Sacred Heart 6-5-1; Totem Pole Braves 4-7; Highlanders 4-3 and Upper Falls Lions 1-11. Murphy Division — Newton Sports Center 10-1; Our Lady's 6-5-1; Oak Hill Cubs 5-6; St. Bernard's 5-6; Post 440 A.L. 4-6-1 and Elks Red Sox 3-9.

Field Trips

Some 60 kids from the Franklin School and Auburndale Playgrounds recently attended the Red Sox-Cleveland game at Fenway Park. The trip was especially enjoyable as the home team won, 11-4. The children were accompanied by Chub Ryan, Diane Astone, Steve Burke and Steve Park. Leaders Carol LeConti and Faye Rosenberg took 20 children from the Davis School on a recent field trip to the Science Museum in Boston.

Steve Park and the Garden City Squares will present two Square Dances for Newton residents. The first will be Thursday, July 28 at the Emerson School Playground from 7 to 9 p.m. The second will be at the Franklin School on Thursday, August 4th also from 7 to 9 p.m. Both are free.

Folk Concert

Arts in the Parks has scheduled a Folk Concert at the Jackson Homestead, 527 Washington Street, Newton for Tuesday evening, August 2 at 7:15 p.m. The Concert will be presented by the Rattle Hill Ramblers, featuring New England trick and fance fiddle champion, Craig Eastman. The Ramblers, an old time string band consisting of a fiddle, banjo, guitar and bass, offer a variety of music, ranging from old time fiddle tunes, to Blue Grass and old time country music. In case of rain, the concert will be held at Aquinas Junior College, on Jackson Road, behind the Jackson Homestead.

Cole Porter at North

Cole Porter's "Anything Goes", will be presented at the Newton North High School July 27th through the 29th, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings at 8:00 p.m. The presentation continues the tradition of the Newton Recreation Department to offer Newton tennagers the opportunity to participate in the production of a Broadway musical. This year there are over 50 high school and college students involved in all phases of the production. Tom Leonard heads the production and serves as musical director, while Mrs. Susan Nussbaum is the director.

Jana Rosenblatt is producer and costume designer, John D'Agnese, choreography and Caleb Mayerson, technical director. "Anything Goes" is the story of people travelling from England to New York on an ocean liner in the late 1930's. The plot is enhanced by Porter's memorable music. Tickets are $2.00 for adults, $1.00 for students and Senior Citizens are invited to attend any of the performances free of charge. Tickets may be obtained by calling the Newton Recreation Department 969-3171, or at the door the nights of the performances.

Concert in Newton Centre

Folksinger, Ruth Anna, one of Boston's original street singers, will present a concert on the Newton Centre Greene beginning at noon, Friday, July 29th. Arts in the Parks of the Newton Recreatio Department invites residents to bring lunch and a blanket and enjoy this program of summer music. Ruth Anna was scheduled to appear on July 15th, but the concert had to be cancelled because of rain.

Sports briefs

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers will hold their only controlled scrimmage of the training season Saturday night at San Jose State College's Spartan Stadium, Coach Ken Meyer announced Tuesday.

The 49ers also said wide receiver Willie McGee underwent surgery Tuesday at St. Mary's Hospital to remove a pin in his left femur. He is expected to be out of action for at least 12 weeks.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The Nevada Equal Rights Commission decided Monday it had jurisdiction and will investigate a sex discrimination complaint filed on behalf of about 250 male coaches in Clark County.

John Chura, head coach at Chaparral High School, filed the suit last week charging male coaches were discriminated against because they would not receive pay increases this year. The suit said other school activity advisers, including female coaches, will receive pay boosts.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Chargers suffered two injuries in training camp Monday.

End Fred Dean incurred a bad ankle tackling running back Ricky Young and doctors say he'll be out 10 days.

Wide receiver Mike Robinson is scheuled to undergo surgery Tuesday for a right shoulder separation.

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Lions have acquired veteran defensive back Chris Fletcher from the San Diego Chargers for a ninth-round draft choice in 1978, it was announced Monday.

Fletcher, 29, became the Chargers' starting free safety late in the 1971 season after playing at cornerback most of his first two years in pro ball.

GREENVILLE, S.C. (UPI) — Four rookie players were waived by the Atlanta Falcons Monday and the team learned first-year running back Dave Farmer had suffered a torn cartilage in his right knee.

The players released were tight end Richard Reagan, linebackers Bill Muxlow and Ken Culbertson, plus guard Dave Ostrowski.

Farmer was told by team physicians he needed an operation this week for a cartilage tear suffered last Monday. The rookie running back will be sidelined for eight weeks.

Hool-a-hoop competition held

By CHRIS SWAN

On Tuesday the 19th of July, the annual hool-a-hoop competition was held at the Newton Centre Playground.

The participants were the single champions of their particular playgrounds throught the city.

Bob Warden, Sandy Geller, and Eileen Sullivan, all of the Newton Recreation Department judged the hoopsters in six events which included Wrap the Mummy, Knee Knocker, Hula Hoop, Stork, Alley-Hoop and the all important Free-style. The competitors fought it out in scorching 90 degree temperatures in competition labled "intense" by director Joe Siciliano.

Not one of the four divisions was in the bag for anyone, which meant that each was up for grabs. But, when the sounds of rattling pellettes ceased to ring, the judges had to decide, and this is how it turned out: Boys 11 and under—winner Frank Perry, runner-up Mike Murphy. Boys 12-15, champion Jeff Sampson, runner-up George Stoyanoff. (This is a carbon finish of last year.)

For the girls, 11 and under champ was Roberta Curcio, followed closely by Lana Kim. Finally, the 12-15 category saw Emmanuel Curcio finish just behind Stephanie Stoyanoff.

The loudest round of applause was given to the musical Sung Kim who played his gazoo during the free-style.

Cosgrove Memorial golf tourney slated

On Sunday, September 11, the 16th Annual Charles H. Cosgrove Memorial Golf Tournament will be held at the Wayland Country Club. Awarding of golf prizes and scholarships will be made at the dinner to be held that evening at St. Bernards Hall in West Newton.

Over the years, you have been an integral part of this fan day, and we hope that you will be able to join us again this year.

The tournament started in 1962 when sixteen golfers played to honor their late Alderman and golfing friend. It has grown to the point that we now annually have about 120 golfers and 135 at dinner. By the time the 1965 tournament was held, we had been able to save enough money to award a $200.00 scholarship to a deserving West Newton youth. Last year the scholarship was $1,100.00, and the total amount awarded to date is $9,900.00!

Both of these; a fun day of golf with old friends, and the award of a $1,000.00 scholarship are the things that Charlie Cosgrove would have truly cherished.

We are very proud of the following list of golf and scholarship winners that shows the growth of our tournament.

1963 — Joe Cosgrove 59.

1964 — Jim Picariello 62 - Tom O'Rourke 75.

1965 — Maurice Quinn 57 - Len Devane 69 - $200. John Rooney - St. Anslems.

1966 — Fran Gorgone 54 - Bill Van Wart 72 - $300.00 John Rooney, St. Anslems; $300. Kay Burke, Sacred Heart.

1967 — Rich Faherty 61 - Leo Purcell 76 - $400. John McDonald, Tufts; $300. John McCarthy B.C.

1968 — Jay Civetti 59 - Len Devane 72 - $400. Paul Capello U. Mass.; $300. Judy Russo, U. Mass.

1969 — Ed Desmond 53 - John Tedesco 75 - $800. Mary Hyde, Newton Jr.

1970 — Bob Proctor 59 - Len Devane 73 - $400. Paul Capello, U. Mass.; $200. Margaret Lennon, Newton Jr.; $200. Chris Mason, B.C.

1974 — Robie Nix 53 - Len Devane 71 - $500. Mary Doolin, Assumption; $500. Kevin Kudejko, U.R.I.

1975 — Don Fox 58 - Dan Curtis 72 - $500. Cathleen Murphy, American U.; $500. Beth Civetti, B.C.

1976 — Len Devane 65 - Dan Curtis 69 - $500. Frances Gallelo, Lasell Jr. Coll.; $300. Robert Norcross, Bentley; $300. Julia Livingston, Framingham State.

Applicants for the Scholarship awards must be West Newton residents either enrolled or accepted at college of junior college. Scholarship applications are available by writing the scholarship chairman, Dr. Ben Antonellis, 130 Walnut St., Newtonville, by Sept. 1.

Co-chairmen of the event are Edmond White and Paul Burke. Francis "Chick" Carvelli is serving as golf chairman. Bob Cronin is ticket chairman and Billy Hannan is Prize chairman.

Joe Cosgrove, John Walsh, Ray Demeo, Mickey Demeo, Jim Ryan, Jim Picariello, Donald King, Frank Vona and Ed Scarlett are committee members.

Tickets are available from any of the committee members.

Persons wishing to donate to the scholarship fund may do so by contacting the treasurer, Ed White, at 70 Rowe St., Auburndale.

CAR CORNER

by John Borelli, Mast. Tech. No. 3428

For combining maximum power and minimum weight with low cost and high durability, the modern internal combustion engine has no equal. The most popular model in terms of sales volume, is designed to develop about 170 horsepower and to do so efficiently enough to move a two-ton car between 10 and 15 miles at 60 miles per hour on one gallon of gasoline. Small engines, however, work on the same principles as the V8 engine—and their gasoline mileage is much more satisfactory.

Enjoy a relaxing and friendly visit today with your knowledgeable friends at NEWTON CAR RADIO, 873 Walnut St. (corner of Beacon St. at 4 Corners), Newton, 332-2487. We feature a large inventory of car communication systems to enhance your driving fun this Summer and all year-round. The Peace Corps is alive and well and waiting for you.

This gumshoe finds thieves quick to blab

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — If you're a worker stealing from your company and Mark Lipman catches up with you, chances are he'll have you confessing in three minutes flat.

Private investigator Lipman prides himself on case preparation and when he walks into a factory or store to confront a suspect, his undercover agents already might have been on the job for two months or longer.

"They know I've got 'em cold when I start laying it out for 'em," says Lipman, a native of Philadelphia, now 74 years old and as eager as he was when he first trudged into Little Rock in 1935.

He then started what has grown into Guardsmark, Inc., a security-guard business — grossing $25 million annually — with offices in 40 cities and headquarters in Memphis.

Eventually, he was bought out by his son, Ira, who was fingering larcenous salesclerks and cashiers for his father at the age of 13. Ira would make small purchases in department stores and shops and then see if the purchase was rung up.

"We caught a lot of dishonest clerks that way," says Lipman, nostalgia glazing his eyes.

"Twenty years ago I figure that three out of every 10 employes were stealing from their companies. Today, I figure it is seven out of 10," he says.

He recalls his Little Rock beginnings: "Here I was a guy from Philadelphia, still wearing a winter suit and it's May, 100 degrees, hot as hell, and no automobile.

"Some people I had to investigate lived in the country. I walked gravel roads for miles and miles. I hitchhiked, took trains, buses, and gradually people began to trust me.

"I wasn't a wise guy. I didn't know it all. I was humble, and I found people gave me more information than they would some other guy who knew all the answers or treated them casually."

He says America's employes are stealing their companies blind — an accusation that doesn't endear Lipman to the labor unions and one which could earn him a punch on the nose. But no one swings at Lipman.

It's his size and chutzpah that saves him. At 5-foot-6, 140 pounds, he's a little guy. And he says it's part and parcel of why most susepcts cave in when he hits them head on with an accusation that they're stealing.

"The fact that I'm little and can accuse a man of stealing means that I must have proof. Otherwise I would expect him to kill me. Since I obviously don't expect that, they decide to confess instead," he says.

People steal anything from pants to porterhouse steaks and to some even the bible isn't sacred. They rip them off, too. And the workers aren't the only who are doing all the stealing either. The swag they steal is often sold to their companies' competitors or other businessmen.

One thing Lipman has found after 42 years in padding around after thieves is that the guilty are likely to blab once he fixes them with his penetrating gaze and bites the end off his Nicaraguan cigar.

"The nature of guilt is such that they have no choice. Guilt is something that everyone in the world feels. Everyone. I don't care how tough or amoral a person considers himself, he feels guilt pangs from time to time.

"Everybody is guilty of something, and if this guilt involves criminal acts, it keeps building up. The guilty person is constantly thinking, 'When are they going to catch up to me?'"

Lipman concedes that in his business a little education can be a dangerous thing. The more schooling a person has, the less likely it is that Lipman will nail him in three minutes flat.

Then again if a man is a pathological liar, Lipman is in big trouble.

He differs somewhat from fictional gumshoes. He sometimes uses gadgetry, but his old school instincts tell him you can't beat legwork, and he tells his agents there's no substitute for it.

And while he's firm, he's no Mike Hammer, the tough private eye who strode through the pages of Mickey Spillane's "I, The Jury," "My Gun Is Quick," and "Vengence is Mine," in the 1950s.

Hammer leaves little to the imagination when he tells a woman captive what will happen if she tries to kill him with a shotgun whose barrels have been plugged with heavy clay:

"The barrel would unpeel like a tangerine and you'd get that whole charge right down your lovely throat and if you ever want to give a police medical examiner a job to gag a maggot, that's the way to do it. They'd have to go in and scrape your brains up with a silent butler and pick pieces of your skull out of the woodwork with needle-nosed pliers."

And no woman ever told Lipman as she did Mike: "Man, you're mean!"

Broadway: bubbly black pixie headed for top

By DAVID L. LANGFORD

NEW YORK (UPI) — Broadway is a two-day bus ride from Winona, Miss., a vine-shrouded town which clings to the last of the yellow clay hills where Mississippi flattens out into the vast cotton and soybean fields of the Delta.

For a young black girl, it took more than bus fare to get here from there.

You might say Marilynn Winbush, a bubbly pixie of 23, hasn't really arrived yet. She's just a "chorus person" in the Broadway musical called "Your Arms Too Short to Box with God."

But the odds are this petite daughter of a small town high school teacher will find her "place" — as Mississippians put it — at or near the top.

A critic for one suburban New York newspaper, after seeing Marilyn sing and dance in the chorus of "Seesaw" at a Long Island theater, wrote:

"She has one of the loveliest voices you'll hear around, and a perky personality that makes you want to take her in your arms and give her a big hug and a kiss. Watch for this name; it has to wind up on Broadway, along with some of the other members of the cast."

Marilyn, a former beauty contest winner, is typical of the hundreds of chorus line girls who ride buses to New York to live in tiny one-room apartments and go through endless auditions — fatigued and frustrated — perhaps eventually landing a small part to put food on the table.

But Marilynn took an unlikely route, by way of Mississippi State University, a statesupported school once derided as a "cow college" that produced mainly farmers, engineers and military officers — all white and practically all male.

Marilyn doesn't care much about all that. She's a daughter of the New South.

"Protest?" she repeats the question during an interview. "Not really, no. I had a habit of doing what I wanted to do anyway."

And Mississippi State has changed with the rest of the South. There were almost 600 blacks in Marilynn's freshman class.

Thanks to the $285 a week scale she gets for her part in "Box," plus another $15 as an understudy, Marilyn and her roommate have moved into a two-bedroom apartment decorated in blue and gold on Manhattan's West Side, just a block from Central Park.

The books on her shelf reflect the interest of a black student in the '70s: Alex Haley's "Roots," "The Making of Black Revolutionaries," "The Negro Mood," "Legal Philosophy from Plato to Hagel," Edgar Cayce's "Story of Kharma," books on yoga, karate, Sarah Vaughn and opera; and works by Karl Marx, Malcolm X and Ghandi.

It was in late December of 1975 that Marilynn got on that bus in Winona to head for the Great White Way, her only contact being Phillip Meister, director of the New York Theatre Conservatory in Woodstock where she had studied one summer.

Her credentials were a fine soprano voice, a degree in communications, part-time work as a disc jockey in Winona, numerous credits in campus productions, and the title of Miss Montgomery County of 1974.

(She was also a preliminary talent winner and fourth alternate in the Miss Mississippi Contest that year.)

"I didn't even know where I was going to stay," she recalls. "Mama called Phil and told him to take care of me."

Through Meister she wound up on a two-month tour in the cast of the New York Theatre Company's productions of "The Fantasticks" and "Spoon River Anthology," playing small theaters in such places as Keokuk, Iowa.

"Then I came back and starved for a while," she says. "I moved into a one-room apartment on 69th street."

She got some bit parts in off-off Broadway shows and then "got lucky" and got a two-month job doing summer stock in Brandon, Vt. Then it was back to New York to "do some more starving."

She was playing "Sophie" in the chorus of "Seesaw" at Hempstead, L.I., last November when the stage manager of "Box," which had been on the road for a year, called to say he needed a soprano. She auditioned and got the part.

The show opened at the Lyceum Theatre Dec. 22. Marilynn Winbush had made it to Broadway.

In addition to the daily performances, she is also spending five hours a day rehearsing for another Vinnette Carroll production called "Alice."

She figures she's lucky and can manage just fine on her salary, which is meager for Manhattan.

"You would be surprised how little I spend," she said. "I eat all the time, but I don't eat much. My only expense is for rent and clothes.

"I ride buses a lot."

School Fashions Strongly Classic

NEW YORK (UPI) — A strong classic trend dominates back-to-school fashions: plaid kilts, bulky Nordic and heathery colors in sweaters, argyle vests, fringed challis shawls and plastic ponchos that fold into tiny pouches.

This was the message from Seventeen magazine's 25th annual fall trends fashion show that opened recently in New York City. It will be performed in nine other cities in August.

Legwarmers, eyelet petticoats, short rubber boots and knit mittens linked by long strings were also featured.

Look for letter sweaters, jumpers, knickers, big plaid shirts and camisole blouses, too.

For outerwear, there are blouson shaped jackets and Sherpa-lined three-quarter length coats.

Following the trend for women, evening clothes include lots of full, tiered skirts, flounces, lace and ruffles.

BUG OFF!

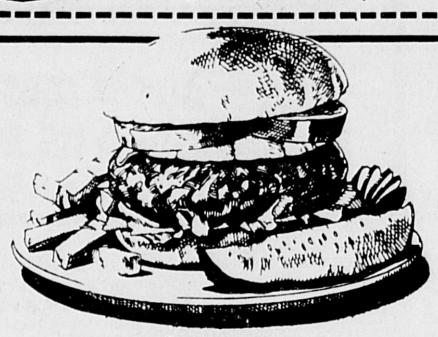

RACINE, Ws. (UPI) — A new product for golfers, fishermen and other outdoors types tells insects to "bug off." The manufacturer says his packeted towelettes saturated with insect repellant repel mosquitoes, stable, black and deer flies, ticks and chiggers. They are sold 10 to a box, with towelettes sealed individually in foil-lined envelopes.

BRL Barnstormers contenders for title

By RICHARD GROSSMAN

Weren't we all Met fans in '69?

Don't we all secretly dream of the Toronto Blue Jays making a run on the Yanks, Orioles, and our own beloved BoSox in the AL east?

In the same manner, the Barnstormers of Newton's Babe Ruth League have, in their second season of existence, become a contender for the title.

And you thought Rocky was something.

Our saga begins one year ago, when coach Bradford L.A. Schiff, under the aegis of the Barnstormers had their triumphs and their setbacks.

"Last year we started out with 45 boys trying out for the team, but with all our enthusiasm we were still inexperienced and finished with a mediocre 3-12-2 record," reminisced coach Schiff.

This season, after losing their first three games, the Barnstormers have come back to win eight of their last 11 outings, to compile an 8-6 record. The tally is the fourth best in the 13 team league and places the Barnstormers in third place in their division.

"No one really could have blamed the team if they just quit after those three games," said Schiff.

"After a 3-12-2 season last year and an 0-3 record this year, who could have blamed them if they decide to take a walk?"

The Barnstormers, however, did not quit.

"That is probably the greatest aspect of our team," said Schiff.

"We did not, and do not, quit. We have been behind at some point in practitally all of our games—but we usually seem to mount a come-back.

"We try not to let setbacks get us down."

Naturally teams do not win by attitude alone, and in alalyzing his team's success Schiff emphasized the performance of several of his players.

Center fielder Dale Lewis is one of the teams key performers. Dale is hitting an astounding .600 and with three home runs is the team's leading power hitter. Coach Schiff classifies Lewis's arm as, "one of the strongest in the league."

David Goldman, one of the Barnstormers' pitchers is another important factor in their success. The Barnstormer ace has a 4-2 mound record and is also a fine hitter.

Tim Murphy, who is hitting .400, is the team's first baseman. He has proven himself as one of the league's best fielding first basemen.

According to coach Schiff, pitcher Mike Buras is another important element of his team.

"Mike pitched two key victories for our team. In important games against Our Lady's and Sacred Heart Mike came up with strong performances to win."

Lewis, Goldman, and Murphy will all be sophomores at Newton South next year, while Buras will be in his junior year.

"If those players are any indication of future talent going to Newton South, they should have a much improved team in the coming seasons," commented Schiff.

Coaching with Brad Schiff is Phil Kramer, Newton North's junior varsity 'B squad' coach.

"Phil has brought lots of knowledge and many innovative ideas to our team," commented Schiff.

"His work on infield play, pickoffs, and bunt defense, have helped make us a thinking team—not just a team of hitters and fielders."

Another man to whom Brad attributes the team's success is league advisor Jim Murphy.

"Mr. Murphy gave us lots of help and encouragement in finding a sponsor.

"There are always problems with an expansion team and Mr. Murphy's help in dealing with these problems was invaluable."

With one week left in the regular season, the Barnstormers are preparing for the playoffs which involve the top four teams in each division.

Looking back on his team's performance and looking towards what lies in store for them, coach Schiff commented, "With the team's desire, hustle, and willingness to improve, which has allowed us to come this far, I'm sure we will be successful during the rest of the regular season and during post season play."

I'll bet you didn't know that the spirit of the Italian Stallion was alive, well, and living in Waban—did you?

The Women's Division of the American Heart Association recently held a local fundraiser at a Boston Lobsters tennis match. From left are Mrs. Phyllis Kilpatrick of Wayland, Randy Vataha of the New England Patriots, Jess Cain of WHDH, and Mrs. Dee Dee Wilcon of Newton.

Close named track coach at Tufts

MEDFORD — Peter M. Close, a former All America, U.S. Olympian and track coach at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been named head coach of men's track and cross country at Tufts University, Rocco J. Carzo, director of programs and athletics, announced. Close is a Newton resident.

For the last five years, Close has served as head cross country coach at M.I.T. His cross country teams have posted a 30-13 dual meet record, produced two All Americans and his 1976 squad was selected to represent District I in the NCAA Division III Championship.

During his five years as assistant track coach to Gordon Kelly, 1964 and 1974-77, M.I.T. teams have compiled a 27-19 dual meet record, produced two All Americans and set nine school running records.

He also served as M.I.T.'s director of sports information, 1962-76.

A native of Hartford, Ct., Close was an outstanding distance runner at St. John's University (N.Y.) where he was selected to the All America Cross Country Teams in 1957 and 1958, the All America Collegiate Track Team in 1959 and was named Metropolitan New York Track Athlete of the Year in 1959.

The two-time IC4A mile champion ('58 and '59) was selected for the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Team, 1500 meters, in 1960. He also won the North African Games 1500 Meter Cahmpionship in 1962 while running for the U.S. Marine Corps.

Close will begin his duties at Tufts in September.

He replaces John Pistone, who resigned to concentrate on duties as coach of women's track at Tufts for the 1977-78 academic year.

Sarazen to speak at woodland

Gene Sarazen will be the featured evening speaker as well as No. 1 celebrity in an afternoon tournament at Woodland Golf Club's 75th Anniversary on Friday, Aug. 5. Woodland is staging a week-long series of events at its Auburndale course.

Sarazen, a former Masters, U.S. Open, PGA and British Open champion, has had a long relationship with Woodland, dating to a 1928 exhibition with Bob Jones, Walter Hagen and Johnny Farrell. He helped launch the Invitational Tournament at Woodland honoring his friend, Francis Ouimet.

As the home club of three National Amateur champs — Ouimet, Jesse Guilford and Ted Bishop — Woodland holds a distinction shared with no other club in the U.S.

Two of its members, Bill Donnelly and Eddie Lowery, won the Massachusetts junior title twice a half century or more ago. A current member, Debbie Simourian Jamgochian, has won the state and N.E. women's championships.

Charles Burgess, a fine teacher who was also Harvard's soccer coach, was club pro from 1909 to 1939, then came out of retirement for a year in 1944. Francis (Ancy) Doyle, amateur star out of Holy Cross, has been Woodland's professional since 1946. He has won state PGA and N.E. PGA Senior championships.

Woodland dates its origin to 1897 when a five-hole course was laid out behind the Woodland Park Hotel, a hundred yards or so from Commonwealth Ave. Its charter incorporation is dated May 14, 1902, making it one of the dozen oldest golf clubs in the Boston area.

C. James Cawley III is general chairman for the 75th. In addition to a number of special club golf tournaments, activities will include club competition in tennis, swimming, gin rummy and bridge. A fashion show is to be another highlight.

Marriott to open resort

Marriott Corp. owners and operators of the Newton Marriott will develop a 356-room company-owned resort in Rancho Mirage, Calif., near Palm Springs.

J.W. Marriott Jr., president of Marriott Corp., said the resort is scheduled to open in September, 1978, and will be built on land owned by Sunrise Corporation, a condominium developer and owner of the adjacent Rancho Las Palmas Country Club.

Marriott and William Bone, chairman of Sunrise Corp., also announced that Marriott has been selected to manage the Rancho Las Palmas Country Club beginning May 1, 1978. The country club includes a 27-hole regulation golf course designed by Ted Robinson, full golf clubhouse facilities, a pro shop, 25 tennis courts and a separate tennis clubhouse.

Marriott's Rancho Las Palmas Resort will be located 12 miles south of Palm Springs near Palm Desert. Initial plans include 78 two-bedroom villas and 200 guest rooms overlooking the golf course and man-made lakes. Planned for later development are 72 additional two-bedroom villas which would bring the total number of units to 500.

There will be a 300-seat multi-level specialty restaurant, 260 seat outdoor buffet area and a 140-seat lounge. Other amenities include two swimming pools with adjacent hydrotherapy pools, gift shop and game room.

The First of Boston Mortgage Corp. has committed $3 million in construction financing to Spaulding and Slye Corp. for two three-story buildings at Newton Executive Park in Newton Lower Falls. The buildings are scheduled for completion later this year. The permanent lender is New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. Pictured (standing from left): James A. Progin, vice president and treasurer of Spaulding and Slye; Arthur Gutierrez, president of Spaulding and Slye; Construction Co. Inc.; (seated from left): Raymond H. Weaving, vice president at First ofBoston; Charles H. Spaulding, president Spaulding and Slye; Edwin B. Morris III, chairman of the board and president of First of Boston.

N.E. Bancorp shows profits

New England Bancorp, Inc. reported net income before securities transactions for the six months ended June 30, of $310,860 or 86 cents a share, compared with $357,516, or 99 cents a share a year ago.

As of June 30, 1977 total deposits were $71,555,649 versus $60,700,333 of a year ago.

New England Bancorp, Inc. maintains offices at 600 Main St., Waltham. It is the parent of Guaranty-First Trust Company which has 13 banking offices in various communities throughout Middlesex County.

Its non-bank subsidiary, New England Financial Services Corp., also is at 600 Main St., Waltham. It engages in real estate advisory services, structuring and placing real estate financing and loan servicing.

Simblist named senior officer

Brian V. Simblist, son of Lillian Simblist of Newton, has been promoted to senior international officer at The Fiedlity Bank of Philadelphia.

Simblist, who joined Fidelity in 1973, is presently serving in the Bank's London Office. He was appointed international officer in 1975.

Simblist received his B.A. and M.A. from Yale University and is working toward his Ph.D. at that university.

Ms. Glickman elected Brandeis trustee

Sally Glickman of Newton Centre, the winner of Brandeis University's Alumni Service Award in 1976, is the first Brandeis graduate to be elected an alumni-term member of the school's Board of Trustees.

Sally Marshall Glickman, a 1959 graduate of Brandeis, was elected by Alumni Association members voting in a national election to serve for a five-year term.

The Board of Trustees last year approved the creation of "alumni-term" trustee seats, which call for the election of one such trustee to the board each year for a five-year term.

Candidates for the post must possess qualifications reflecting their commitment and service to Brandeis, and willingness to act as ambassadors of the university and to assist in furthering its goals. They also must demonstrate career achievement and community leadership.

Among the university's most active alumni, Mrs. Glickman is a member of the university's Board of Fellows who previously served as a president's councilor. She is a past president and vice president of the Alumni Association who has worked closely with the Alumni Fund Committee.

After graduating from Brandeis Mrs. Glickman studied at Tufts University and the State Teachers College in Boston. She is a former classroom teacher in Concord and New Jersy.

This fall she will be a learning disabilities teacher in the Newton school system. She is a past president of the Mason—Rice School PTA in Newton Centre.

Merit Outdates Conventional Low Tar Cigarettes.

'Enriched Flavor'™ technology matches taste of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

There is a way to pack flavor—incredible flavor—into a cigarette without boosting tar.

That's the report on MERIT and the remarkable breakthrough called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

Tobacco that for the first time delivers flavor you wouldn't expect in a low tar cigarette.

MERIT and MERIT 100's were packed with this special tobacco. And taste-tested among thousands of smokers like yourself.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Taste-Test Proof

MERIT and MERIT 100's were tested against a number of higher tar brands. The results proved conclusively that 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco does boost taste without the usual increase in tar.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar than MERIT.

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And you can taste it.

REALTOR® MULTIPLE LISTING SERVICE MLS (TM)

REPORT

The MLS Advantage

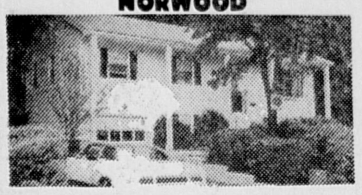

- ★ Over 300 Different Companies
- ★ Over 2400 Selling Agents
- ★ Thousands of Listings to Choose From

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Figures released by the Multiple Listing Service of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board, show a gain of 30% in total sales of 56 cities and towns, served by the board in 1976. According to local Realtors, mortgage money is available and rates are lower than they have been in some time. MLS is the modern professional one stop-one office way to buy or sell your home. Through this facility listings are exchanged among Realtors, and buyers and sellers benefit from the cooperating efforts of the brokers. As a seller your home will have exposure to hundreds of brokers and yet the convenience of working with their own MLS office. Buyers have the advantage of working with one office and having access to all of the participating Realtors listings. Council I&M of the Boston Board is comprised of 16 towns with some 80 offices involved. In order to further promote MLS, this council meets every second and fourth Tuesday of the month at the Pancake House in Walpole. A business meeting is conducted and then the brokers discuss their listings or a particular type of property they might be looking for. Many sales are effected through these efforts.

UPPER CAPE
Finest location in Wareham. 30,300 sq. ft. of prime waterfront land on beautiful knoll overlooking the sparkling Weweantic River and Marion Shoreline. Only a 50-minute drive from the Dedham-Needham-Newton area and only a one minute walk to a private and sandy ocean beach.
This is the nicest spot left on the Upper Cape. It's a dream-come-true property that has only a salt marsh between the water and you. Walk down your front steps to your private dock or stroll across the road for a breathtaking view of Buzzards Bay.
Lot has 165 feet right on water with 200 feet bordering on Sippican Road. At $21,000 it's the last bargain left on the Upper Cape. Call Rod Merrill, Realtor, in Wareham at 1-295-4443 and arrange to see this outstanding buy.

Summer Scholarship Program Deadline Extended

NEW YORK (UPI) — Due to large-scale response, deadline for applications for the summer study scholarship program known as "Encounter Ireland" has been extended until July 8th, according to its organizers, the Union of Students in Ireland in association with the Council on International Educational Exchange.

Launched last year, the program provides scholarships valued at $300 for study in Ireland, July 14 August 12, to qualified full-time students (between 18 and 30 years of age) attending American colleges and universities.

Each scholarship provides a curriculum of study, discussion and living experiences, focusing on Irish history, politics, music, literature, and theater, with a special seminar on Brendan Behan. The contributions of Irish women will also be explored.

The "Encounter Ireland" scholarships provide students with the first three weeks' accommodations and meals with Irish families in Dublin and the final week free for independent travel. Each participant will receive a three-week bus pass for use in Dublin and a rail pass good for unlimited travel throughout Ireland during the fourth week.

Each candidate is required to submit a 500-word essay about his or her activities and reasons for wanting to win the scholarship to visit Ireland. Also necessary are two passport-size photos, a reference from a college professor and an official application.

Forms are available from CIEE, Encounter Ireland Program, 777 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017. (212) 695-0291.

Generating Own Electric Power

NEW YORK (UPI) — Industry has begun generating electric power in its own plants to combat future blackouts, says James O'Connor, editor-inchief, Power magazine.

Behind this emerging trend is growing industry concern that generating capacity cannot be assured because of a shortage of electric utility generating plants.

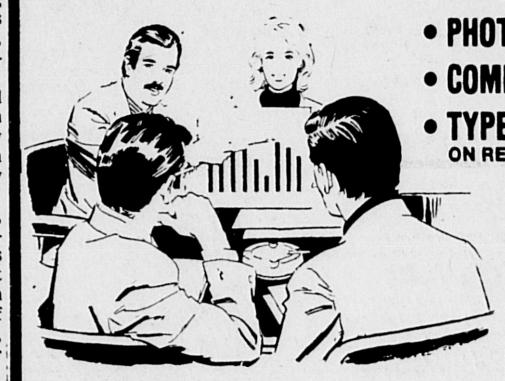

To generate electric power, industry has turned to cogeneration, which works as follows: As an industrial plant generates power it ties in with a utility and is thus capable of selling power to the utility and, when necessary, buying power from that same utility.

In addition, industrials are looking at the feasibility of 'wheeling' (moving) power over utility lines to other industrial plants belonging to the same industrial corporation.

Stuttgart Orchestra To Tour Israel

STUTTGART, West Germany (UPI) — The Stuttgart Radio Symphony Orchestra and the radio choir will make a concert tour of Israel Aug. 6-12.

Autoworld

by Brent Russell

A gasless automobile must evolve in the next decade or the U.S. will risk transportation disarray by the year 2000, an important federal panel is warning.

In its "most likely" energy scenario, the Commerce Dept.'s Office of Energy Programs says that the key factor in avoiding disarray will be the ability of auto manufacturers to meet transportation requirements with high-efficiency, non-petroleum-burning vehicles.

If the technology for producing such vehicles is not available by the late 1980's, OEP says "basic decisions" will have to be made regarding alternate modes of transportation for the car-using public. The only other option would be a national commitment for large-scale conversion of coal and oil shale to gasoline - both highly expensive processes.

The Commerce officials did not specify that the car of the future must be electric-powered. They did, however, imply as much by saying that a far larger percentage of the nation's available raw energy resources would have to be converted to electricity in the future.

In contrast to its dire warnings on transportation troubles, the report was markedly optimistic on leveling off the nation's growth in energy consumption. It forecast an average per capita growth of just 1.2 per cent per year until the year 2000. Other forecasters have offered figures up to 4 per cent in consumption growth.

Reasons for the moderated growth rate prediction are interesting:

-Consumption patterns have changed since the 1973-74 crisis and growth rates have decreased.

-Conservation legislation and public awaren+ss programs will have an increasing impact.

-Increasing prices will have a dampening effect on consumption.

-Technology in the form of energy-saving devices, lighter materials, and other innovations will contribute to lower per capita energy use.

-The nation appears to be approaching "energy saturation" on a per person basis because almost everyone who wants energy consuming devices (say, autos or air conditioners) have them.

Commerce's researchers readily agree that their study is flawed in that they made no attempt to assess the impact of specific developments. Rather they only studies basic trends and weighed them accordingly. Additionally, the scenario discounted the likelihood of a "miracle" technological breakthrough that could change projections.

Nevertheless, the OEP officials are confident in predicting that the nation's petroleum imports will have to continue rising. Energy prices will rise too, and economic dislocations can be expected.

This report, like so many these days, points to the need for more and better planning. Dire warnings about the future of the gasoline-powered automobile may in fact be exaggerated. But the report may job thought and study about this possibility and from that may come solutions.

Judges go for CB

The state court system in Michigan is paying out $2,600 to equip the personal cars of 25 top judges with citizen band radios. The devices are going to the seven Supreme Court judges there and the 18 judges of the Court of Appeals. "We decided to get them for the court as a highway safety precaution," explained Philip Sprague, a spokesman for the state Supreme Court. "The justices have to do a lot of traveling and if one of them has a breakdown on the highway, he can radio for help."

New bus venture

A hands-across-the-sea business deal may put a fleet of large passenger buses on the U.S. streets by the end of the year. Chloride, Inc., a British company that has five test electric buses running in California and three in New York, has teamed up with an Ohio firm to turn out the vehicles on a production line basis.

Chloride and its Cleveland partner, Electric Vehicle Associates, say it will take them most of the year - and $500,000 - to get rolling, but that they hope to finish at least 20 buses by December 31. The 40-passenger battery-run buses will retail for around $70,000 each.

Tips

by Patrick Kelly

President Carter's goal of a 10 per cent decline in gasoline consumption by 1985 can easily be achieved by better public motoring habits.

Car owners can help cut the nation's gasoline appetite in three areas: car use, operation and care.

USE-For short distances to school, church or the shopping center, ride a bike, take a bus, or walk. Plan multi-stop local trips ahead. Backtracking costs you fuel and time.

Carpool. A vehicle with two riders is twice as energy-efficient as a car with one. And sharing the ride isn't just for going to work. It can be applied to shopping trips, meetings, school, sports, etc.

Avoid traffic jams. If your schedule permits, drive during late morning or early afternoon when vehicle flow is light. When possible, drive when it's dry. Wet pavement demands more power to reach a comfortable speed.

OPERATION-For every five miles over 50, there is a loss of one mile to the gallon. Actually, the most economical speed is 45 mph. More fuel is consumed below 35 than at 45. Also, a steady foot on the accelerator can do wonders. Consider a speed control, which allows the driver to preset the speed and hold it regardless of terrain.

Idling. Your car delivers zero miles to the gallon when the motor is running and the wheels are not. Just 30 seconds of idling consumes as much gasoline as you might use to start your car.

Fast starts. Don't stomp on the accelerator when the signal turns "green," and coast to a stop when it turns "red." And, if you can gauge your speed to make the green lights (not the yellows), miles per gallon will improve.

Whether you come to Hugo's Lighthouse by land or by sea, ample parking and docking facilities are available.

Hugo's Lighthouse Restaurant famous landmark for gourmets

For more than half a century, Hugo's Lighthouse Restaurant has been host to royalty, celebrities, and gourmets the world over. Located on Cohasset Harbor, it is a famous landmark of the scenic South Shore.

Its beautiful ocean view dining rooms and lounges, breathtaking atmosphere and decor all promise a memorable dining experience.

The menu offers a wide range of selections from freshly caught lobsters and shrimp to steaks and chops. Hugo's own fishermen bring their daily lobstercatch directly to indoor ocean pools, where they await your selection: baked, broiled, boiled, fried, whatever your preference.

Specialties of the house include Hugo's Lobster Savannah, with the meat of a select native lobster, fresh mushrooms, peppers, exotic herbs and wine, all baked in its own shell in a rich sauce.

Or you might tempt your tastebuds with a baked lobster, stuffed with fresh mushroomcaps, baby sea scallops and Hugo's famous stuffing. You may select full dinners or a la carte, all cooked to order to serve you in leisure and excellence.

Special rooms are available for private parties, wedding receptions and banquets. Details for functions of all kinds are handled at no extra charge. One of their five dining rooms, the beautiful John Smith Room, with its own dance floor, broad-beamed fireplaces, and an oceanview from every seat, will accomodate any occasion.

John Carzis, owner of Hugo's Lighthouse, has worked to build his restaurant to a level of excetlence that has won it the Holiday Magazine award for distinctive dining every year since 1952.

A man of many monuments Mr. Carzis was honored by more than 600 friends and personalities two years ago at a testimonial dinner held at Hugo's. Former Speaker of the House John McCormack the main speaker at the testimonial, described Carzis as "the statesman of the statesmen." He has known presidents from Roosevelt through Johnson — working with Johnson as a Greek-American liason. The trophy case by his office at Hugo's contains photos of him with prominent persons in government, sports, and the arts.

He has maintained his influential contacts and has also remained active in humanitarian ventures: all the proceeds from the testimonial were donated to youth and church related charities.

John Carzis, by his own admission, has "made fortunes, given them away, and lost them." He is a man who despite his material success, holds as his guiding philosophy: "unless all your efforts are to help humanity, you're a failure."

Kimball's By-The-Sea is Carzis' latest material monument. Located next to Hugo's, the motor inn offers all the pleasures of a faraway retreat. Enriched with balconies and garden terraces, it offers a most picturesque view of Cohasset Harbor. The suites and rooms are all beautifully appointed with two queen-size beds, color television, telephone, full baths and deluxe furnishings.

There are men's and women's saunas, two exercise rooms, and an oversized, heated, indoor swimming pool fully equipped with whirlpool bath, springboard, sun lamps, and a poolside garden terrace for year-round pleasure.

John Carzis and the staff at Hugo's Lighthouse Restaurant and Kimball's By-The-Sea would like to welcome you and serve you in the same manner as the "royalty, celebrities, and gourmets the world over." A visit will always be remembered and will always bring you back.

Hugo's Lighthouse, where people come for exquisite dinner by choice and not by chance.

Meating Place offers quality and services

The Meating Place, located at the corner of Beacon and Walnut Streets at Newton Four Corners, offers a unique service to it's customers. Lester Gardner and Lenny Chyat and their staff will butcher your meat for you while you watch, or you may place your order over the phone. Both Lenny and Lester have considerable experience in the meat industry. They offer a wide selection of prime and choice cuts of beef, pork, lamb, veal and chicken at prices that help to stretch everyone's budget for quality foods.

Additionally, a meat plan is available for those who wish to purchase their meat in bulk for their food freezer' and larger cuts of meat can be shared with a friend.

Since meat is a weighty item in everyone's food budget, the Meating Place has many suggestions on how to purchase top-quality meat at substantial savings, and free delivery is available with a $35.00 minimum order.

The Meating Place, open on Sundays for your added convenience, caters to the homemaker, as well as the restaurant and supermarket trades. Co-operatives may find their prices worth looking into for their members. They are closed on Mondays.

The friendly atmosphere and helpful suggestions help make shopping for meat a very pleasant experience.

George Seeley

Chair caning popular

George Seeley, a master craftsman, teaches chair caning in the "Arts in the Parks" program this summer.

Seeley did not start caning until he retired. Before that, he was a traveling representative for the New York Central Railroad Corp., starting in 1916 at the age of 18. Later, he was a partner in the Seeley Brothers Co., an upholstering firm which was founded in Newtonville in 1904.

He now enjoys teaching and feels the need to share his knowledge of the fine art with others.

In addition to his courses with the Recreation Department, Seeley has taught in the adult education program in Brookline, Wellesley, and Newton North High School.

Due to the popularity of chair caning, the Newton Arts in the Parks program will offer another course during the fall session.

Library lends museum membership cards

The Newton Free Library is circulating membership cards for several local museums including the Museum of Transportation, the Museum of Fine Arts, and the Smithsonian in Washington, D.C.

There are two membership cards for each institution and they can be loaned for seven day periods. They are subject to the regulations for seven-day materials, no renewals, five cents fine for each day overdue, in addition no reserves will be taken.

These membership cards provide the bearer with free admission to the institution, to members' rooms, and discounts on purchases. The cards are available at the Circulation Desk of the Main Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner.

Summer hours at the Main Library are 9-9 Monday through Friday, closed Saturday and Sunday through Sept. 12.

Mystery of medicines explained during course

"How Common Medicines Work" is the title of the first course to be offered to the general public this fall by the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy's new Center for Citizen Health Learning (CCHL).

The course will be held at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, 179 Longwood Ave., Boston, over a two-day period, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 24 and 25.

Five experts in the field of drugs will serve as faculty members for the course, topics of which include: general principles of how drugs work, sleeping pills, drugs for your stomach, pain reducing drugs, antibiotics, drugs for your heart, and drugs which affect the mind.

Registration for the course is open to the general public in line with the center's purpose to provide consumer-oriented health education for adults. Tuition is $50, which also covers luncheons on both days.

Participation in the course is limited by classroom capacity so the CCHL is urging early registration. Registrants should call 734-6700, ext. 210, for information.

Other courses to be offered to the public by the CCHL in the future include Dealing With Doctors and Hospitals, Signs and Symptoms of Life-Threatening Disorders, The Nature of the Health Care System, The Future of Health Care, and Problems in Community Public Health.

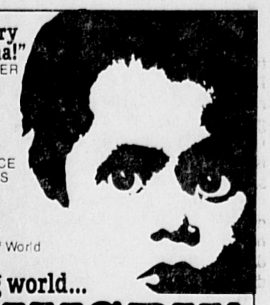

Dates, times, and registration information for these courses will be announced at a later date.

Newton Country Players elect Sloane president

James M. Sloane of Newton Highlands, selected recently by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce as a finalist for its 1977 distinguished service award for outstanding community service, has been installed as the 22nd president of the Newton Country Players.

Last month, he concluded his sixth consecutive term as treasurer and business manager of the community theater group.

The JCC certificate, awarded the four finalists, reads, "Through his loyal, faithful and unselfish efforts, he has made a great contribution to his community, state and nation." The award is given annually to a person between the ages of 18 and 35 who has contributed to the community welfare, given evidence of personal and business progress, exhibited leadership ability and is an active member in professional, civic and-or fraternal organizations.

Sloane is a member of the Newton Cultural Affairs Advisory Board and has served on the Players' Board of Directors for seven years. In June, 1976, he served as co-host chairman and stage manager of the 23rd annual New England Theater Conference Drama Festival for community theaters, completely overseeing and staging the mountings of 39 drama productions in five days.

In previous NETC Drama Festivals and under the aegis of the Players, Sloane served as stage manager for their entries of "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," "Eve's Complaint" and the "Best Production, 1975" award-winning "The Real Inspector Hound." He worked also as lighting consultant for the

James Sloane

Players' Festival entries of "War," "The Contract," "Sam Stiller, Private Eye" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

For regular season mountings, Sloane devised lighting design for "The Pajama Game," "Suds, or How to Win a Princess" and "Black Comedy," and served as lighting technician for productions of "War," "The American Dream," "A Marriage Proposal," "See How They Run," "The Contract," "We Have Always Lived in a Castle," "Sisters," "Sam Stiller, Private Eye," "Puzzle Girl," "Everything in the Garden," "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," and for "Showcase One" at the Newton Junior College Workshop.

In his capacity of business manager, Sloane was at the helm of both fall and spring tours of "Sam Stiller, Private Eye," "Everything in the Garden," "Gabriel Ghost," "The Pajama Game," "Suds," "Black Comedy," "Odd Couple," "Pal Joey," "The House of Bernarda Alba," "Dr. Fish," "The Real Inspector Hound," "The Boys in the Band," "Picnic," "How to Succeed, etc.," "Dark of the Moon" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

Sloane was employed as producer for "Gabriel Ghost," assistant producer for "How to Succeed," and as technical director for "Dark of the Moon." He has been in charge of programs, tickets and reservations for innumerable productions and, in his infrequent stage appearances, portrayed the stage manager in "Sisters" and "Pal Joey," in a tongue-in-cheek bit of typecasting.

A graduate of Northeastern University's School of Business with a BA in business management, Sloane elected to take his six months college co-op work program in Israel as part of the Ulpan program and was assigned to Kibbutz Ramat Hashofet.

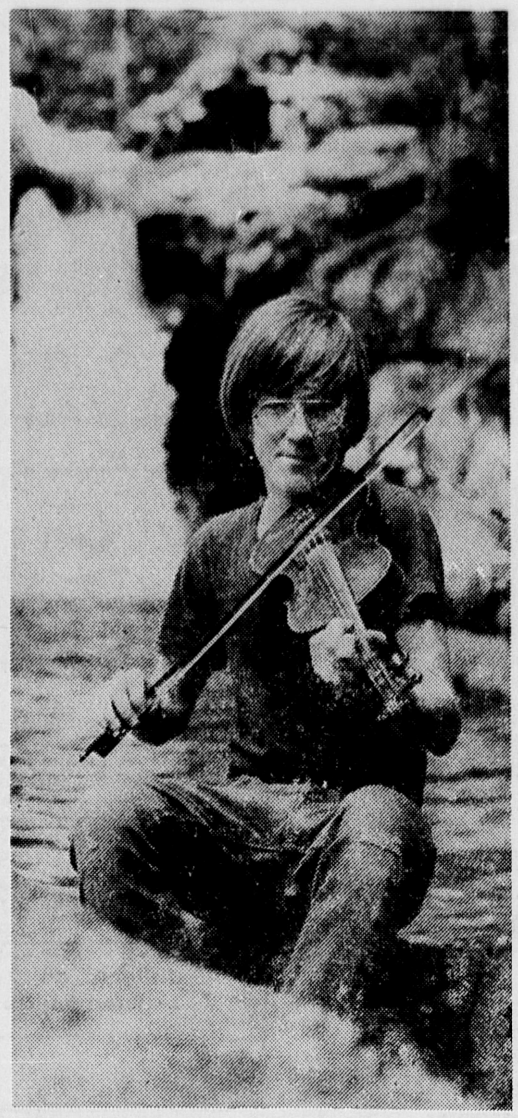

As a member of Northeastern's Drama Department and Silver Masque, he served as house manager for mountings of "A Flea in Her Ear," "Anyone Can Whistle," "Hedda Gabler" and "Alice Again," and as box office manager for "The Babtism," "Rats," "Suddenly Last Summer" and "The Adding Machine." Sloane worked also on ticket staff for "The Connection" and "The Lion in Winter," and on make-up and costumes for a staging of "Mistress of the Inn."

Sloane, a 1971 graduate of Newton South High School, had his own weekly disc jockey radio show at college for three years over WRBB, and holds a third-class radio-telephone license.

As a staff member at Camp Bauercrest, Amesbury, for five summers, Sloane worked as publicity director, aide to the director, and head bunkclerk and canteen supervisor. He was also a staff member at the North Shore Jewish Community Center Sunday Program, teaching second to sixth grade students a number of creative and performing art courses, including dramatics, model making and newspaper publishing.

Currently in the employ of Chestnut Hill Motor Hotel, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Sloane of Newton Highlands.

For information concerning membership, phone 244-2160 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Ballet returns to Esplanade

Free ballet comes back to Boston this summer with the Boston Ballet's "Esplanade" performances.

Ten free evenings of ballet will be presented at the Hatch Shell on the Charles River Esplanade, Aug. 10-14 and Aug. 17-21 at 8:30 p.m.

Seven of the Boston Ballet's most popular pieces will be performed, with a different program each week. Over the last three years, Esplanade has become a Boston-area tradition, drawing upwards of 12,000 people a night. Many bring their families and picnic dinners for a festive evening under the stars.

"Without a doubt it's one of the most popular things we do all year," said Boston Ballet General Manager Robert Brickell. "Absolutely everybody in and around Boston shows up."

The first Esplanade series, Aug. 10-14, will feature "Classical Symphony," "Flowering Into New Battles," "Butterflies," and "Le Corsaire" pas de deux.

"Classical Symphony" is a ballet filled with vivid movements and striking combinations; it's danced to Prokofiev's lilting "First Symphony."

"Flowering Into New Battles" was inspired by the forceful movements of Tai Kwan Do, a form of karate; a part of the Boston Ballet's repertoire for only two years, it's a favorite wherever it's performed. "Butterflies" is Rael Lamb's elegant, angular ballet performed to a background of lively electronic music. And the pas de deux from "Le Corsaire" is one of the most spectacular and famous duets in all ballet: it tells the story of the love of a pirate for a beautiful young girl sold into slavery, and calls for virtuosity and superb technique.

The second program, Aug. 17-21, will feature a pas de deux; "Scotch Symphony," George Balanchine's enchanting ballet that captures the charm of the Scottish highlands (and is set to Felix Mendelssohn's Symphony of the same name); and "Jazz for Boston," three jazzy, sparkling ballets that won raves at the Boston Ballet's Choreographer's Showcase earlier this year.

'Emma' ends Boston 18-week run Aug. 14

"Emma," Howard Zinn's play based on the life of activist Emma Goldman, ends an 18-week run at the Next Move Theatre Sunday, Aug. 14.

To accommodate the demand for tickets, two shows have been added Tues. Aug. 2 and Tues. Aug 9. "Emma" plays Tues. through Sun. until Aug. 14.

The drama, directed by Maxine Klein, acted by the Next Move Theatre Co., has attracted over 10,000 playgoers to 75 performances since its premiere in April and has launched the Next Move in Boston's newest playhouse on Boylston St. in the Back Bay.

Tickets are available for all August shows. Reservations can be made by calling 536-0600, Next Move Theatre, 955 Boylston St., Boston.

Program openings

Countryside Community School has openings for children kindergarten age through 7 years in its summer program. The dates are Aug. 2, 4, 9, 11, at Countryside School.

Activities will be held on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9:30 to 12 a.m. There is a $6 registration fee and a $2 materials fee. There will be playground activities, arts and crafts and water play.

For information and registration call Anna Decker 965-4486 or Ann Michalik, 965-4971.

"Extraordinary human drama!"
—ART LINKLETTER

Death-by-starvation is ravaging the family of man. Twelve to fifteen thousand die every day. Today you can be an eyewitness to this global human tragedy. You can journey to Asia, Africa and Latin America for intimate, revealing visits with hungry families. You will feel the agony of hopeless mothers and fathers who watch their little ones growing up with crippled minds and bodies due to malnutrition. You will understand the causes of hunger, and you will thrill to the dramatic stories of men and women whose love-in-action is bringing hope to hungry people!

THE GREAT WHITE WAY

Nipon's white restaurant dress.

Holly Harp's white jersey gown.

The white blouson with gold and white helmet.

The classis summer suit.

Summer's crisp white eyelet.

White Is Golden

Boston and New York . . . Designers here suggest a sure way to beat the summer heat. Go the great "white" way, they say.

There's nothing that makes one feel cooler than to dress in white this time of year. And if you have a tan or even a suggestion of one, all be the better.

Those who know fashion will tell you that every summer wardrobe should have at least one white dress, short or long, depending on your needs . . . along with some exciting white sportswear.

The stores still have a few white fashions in stock, but the choice is dwindling fast. By the way, when you do shop for your white fashions, be sure to think of such fabrics as cotton, linen and silk. You'll find more and more of these natural fiber fabrics again. The fashionalbes are turning toward them. Their love affair with synthetics seems to be over.

That's not saying that there won't be synthetics available but that synthetics are no longer replacing the natural fibers. Some feel the rising prices of synthetic fibers may be the reason for the new cropt of naturals. Let's face it, we didn't mind settling for "fake" when the price was right. But now that it isn't, forget it!

Incidentally, if you want to add a touch of glitter to your summer whites, make it gold. Gold is popping up everywhere here in Manhattan. Items such as gold sandals, gold belts, gold sunglasses and gold handbags are really selling.

Interestingly enough, it's not just the teens who are sporting it. There are plenty of mothers and grandmothers who are also wearing it. Glitter accessories can be found anywhere from Woolworth's to some of the finest specialty shops.

The gold look, which originated in Paris with the young and later caught on here, is continuing through fall. Designers such as Mary McFadden are blending different shades of gold together for gowns. McFadden is also doing some gold painting on her silks. It's no wonder the collection is called "Fort Knox."

Oscar de la Renta is still another using the gold theme. Since his native country, Santo Domingo, is a source of the precious metal, he says this gives him a special reason.

All the gold and glitter doesn't stop at fashion. The beauty people have jumped on the bandwagon and come up with gold dust makeup. There's no question about it, the gold rush is on!

Royal Danish Family And Tivoli Gardens Set For Boston

Shown discussing plans for the upcoming "Denmark Comes to Boston" Fair to be held at Boston's Park Plaza Hotel on October 5-9 are Maureen Carey of the Park Plaza Staff; Robert W. Darvin, President of Scandinavian Design; Soren Dyssegaard, Director of the Danish Information Office in New York; Judy George, Design Coordinator for Scandinavian Design; Kaj Hansen, the Danish Consul to the United States; and Christy Lyons of the Park Plaza staff.

Scandinavian Design is sponsoring the Fair in conjunction with the Danish Government. This will be the largest event ever staged between the two countries and is considered a real coup for D.D. The Park Plaza will be transformed into a replica of the Beautiful Tivoli Gardens, the center and main attraction in Copenhagen. Over fifty Danish manufacturers and distributors will be participating in the event.

Judy George told T there will be a gala black tie preview party which will be attended by members of the Royal Family and Danish dignitaries who will be jetting to Boston expressly for the Fair. Of course, Boston's important people will be invited to give the visitors the royal welcome they deserve.

IN: Swaggering

Fall/Winter is going to be an interesting, exciting fashion season for men. It's diversified, elegant, colorful and casual with something for everyone.

All of the wild explosion that liberated men from the dull fashions have now evoluted into a refreshing combination of tasteful elegance and easy going informality. Men will look more elegant as exemplified by the importance of the cane or walking stick. Webster's dictionary defines the cane as a staff carried in the hand as part of a man's costume, or for support or diversion. In walking, the cane provides employment for the hands and thereby creates a feeling of ease and poise. Canes have ingenous surprises such as containing a quart of liquor . . . perfume . . . a steel blade or dagger or sword.

The cane evolved from the crude club which cave men used as a weapon for attack or defense. In a more sophisticated manner so will today's "Cave Men" carry their canes or walking sticks.

From Bathsheba to Boston

You've come a long way. . . Yes, you have. From the scanty bathing suit to the ethnic inspired fashion . . . The Israeli fashion industry which is in its twenty-eighth year has come a long way and now has international acceptance. Israeli designers Beged-or . . . Oberson . . . Gottex, Rimka, Aled, Melitz and others are on a par with both American and European Haute Couture designers. Their fashions are sold in practically every country. They use the most modern and advanced techniques to keep quality high and costs low.

Six hundred dedicated and concerned women from the North Shore and Boston gathered at the Park Plaza to see the magnificent Israeli fashions. The entire collection travels sixty major cities in the U.S. and Canada. Admission is by the purchase of Israeli Bonds.

The collection was one of the most exciting in the many years I have presented the "Bonds of Israel" fashion show. From the enticing bathing suits and their beach cover-ups to the knits, the leathers, the furs and the unusual evening gowns that designer Finy Leitersdorf created as a tribute to her late husband, artist Johanan Simon. Appliqued forms on the fabric are reproduced from his paintings. The models opened and close the "Bonds of Israel" show dancing the Hora as the audience gayly clapped to the rhythm. An emotional afternoon was had by all.

N.Y.: BEAME-TOWN

Summer Soirees and Sailing Ships

New York's Beautiful Beasties paid their social dues this month in a fast and furious rush of parties that left everyone pop-eyed. Diplomats were especially gung-ho about clearing up their obligations before they took off for their summer haunts. Some of their entertaining was official, some not. One of mid-town's most popular hosts, Baron Carl-Henric Nauckoff, Sweden's Consul General and his recent bride, the former Marcia Dawkins, held a dinner to meet each other's friends, the ones they knew separately before they wed. Reunions with your left-over-singles can be chilly as we all know; happily on this occasion the vast Park Avenue palazzo, Carl's official residence, turned into a house of mirth. Before Marcia threw in the towel, she worked as Deputy Commissioner for Consulate Affairs here so the kid is used to handling sticky wickets. This week those dumped singles will just have to face the music. Carl is taking Marcia off to his "torpstuga", a 200 year-old farmhouse between Torekov and Bastad. They say between Torekov and Bastad is best if you want to get lost.

At the Swedish Consulate and elsewhere the talk centers around this year's America Cup races at Newport. Sweden has a good chance to win against the Aussies, the French and the British with her new 12-meter racer. If Sweden does win, King Carl XVI Gustaf will show up at the seaside resort and the Nauckoffs will just have to give up getting lost and attend him and the Queen. Nothing is perfect.

At the Herbert Papocks' silver and brown penthouse the other night, one dinner guest, yachtsman Huey Long, owner of the famous sailing ship "Ondine", agreed that Sweden had a chance to beat out the non-American contenders. Others including real estater Rennold Wacht, and Wall Street's Robert Loeb of the Rothschild brokerage firm, joined in the conversation which soon turned to money. After boats, money is usually a fast second.

Hostess Hurley Papock kept the lights low in the enormous pad that night. It was the "A" group (Hurley always gets the "A"s) and she wanted everything to be perfect including the ambience. Everything was. Hurley is a super-star hostess and these days that's saying a lot. There are no hitches, bumps or callouses at her parties. In that setting it's hard to go wrong. Hurley decorated it herself. The result is lots of well-done space in black, browns and white with silver metal touches, and an interesting variety of contemporary art. Hurley doesn't care if the artist is famous. She buys what she likes and to hell with investment. Some people can do that.

The lovely ex-model wore ST. Laurent's modified gypsy and looked sleek. Her guests were pretty smashing too, decked out in chiffon; solid red, white and some pastel prints. One brunette wore black silk sleeveless and looked very right. A lot has to do with those low lights. Of course they can get you into trouble but never mind. It's still the age of permissiveness and as long as the kiddies don't pick up any ideas anything goes. Talking about kiddies, the Papocks packed off with theirs the other day for a summer-long cruise on their private yacht. Some people can do that.

German Ambassador to the United Nations, Rudi Von Wechmar and his wife Susie are swimming madly in Manhattan's social stew. They threw a simple little cocktail do the other day for SOUTHAMPTON'S Finest; all to honor Robin Biddle Duke who heads up the gala benefit for the hospital there next month. Susie, cool and blonde, in her black linen Givenchy, greeted a rather heady brew of socialites including Ambassador and Mrs. John Davis Lodge and Mrs. Cordelia Robertson.

Alas for them, some of the Southampton ladies looked as if they were trying to represent the Goddesses of Fruit in their long pastel gowns. Pale lime, pale lemon, pale orange just didn't come off too well in the beige main room of the Von Wechmar townhouse. They would have shown better in a fruitstand. Don't blame us . . . someone had to say it.

The news from Southampton is that everyone is tootling off hither and yon these days; Nonie Kellogg, the former wife of Ambassador Francis Kellogg, is leaving for Kenya and a wild and woolly hunting expedition in the Great Jungle. We hope she won't go ape. Remember Tarzan, dear, and keep your cool. Otherwise you'll be swinging in the trees before it's all over. The Duchess D'Uzes, once just plain Peggy Bancroft of the oil millions, just returned from a short stay in Red China. No need to warn her about going Commie. Heiresses don't make it in China.

ELEANOR SPAAK

Sweden's Consul General, Baron Carl-Henric Nauckoff and his bride, Marcia Dawkins, formerly Deputy Commissioner for Consulate Affairs in New York, saying adieu to friends before they left for Swedish honeymoon.

Pepe Fernandez, clothes designer, talks things over with actress Greta Thyssen at a celebrity-packed shindig held recently at Taveron-On-The-Green.

Enjoying the Von Wechmar party, Mrs. John Davis Lodge of Westport, Conn. shows off her wild jungly necklace, a stunning combination of animal teeth and ivory beads.

Junior Committee Members, Courtney Armour, Christine Biddle and Mrs. Marina Limb meet at Club El Morocco to discuss plans for this year's Southampton Hospital bash.

Mike Crane, chatelaine of Crane's Castle at Crane's Beach in Ipswich, Mass. at exhibit of her primitive oil canvases now at Peter Flanagan's E. 72nd St. Gallery.

Baroness "Susie" Von Wechmar greeting guests at the Von Wechmar Manhattan townhouse. The occasion was a party to honor Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke.

MARA & VICTOR HAVE ARRIVED.

Mara and Victor are two of the most popular hair stylists in Boston. And they used to be at two of the most popular hair salons in Boston. But they're not there any more. They've moved to the Colonnade Hair Salon at the Colonnade Hotel. If you'd like a free consultation in cutting, styling, coloring or perming by either Mara or Victor, there's only one place you'll find them. Right here.

FIT TO A T

A Temple Place "Barr" Room Where Women Exercise Shrinking Options

In every woman's curvy dream, there's the vision of herself sensuously rounded, confidently poised, floating into a salon filled with animated men and women: her entrance, a dramatic moment in time and space is a cue for the heady set to be momentarily restrained in their ego/pursuits to become spectators envying, desiring, admiring the bounce and vitality of the astral body entering their galaxy.

Morning arrives with her promise, "I will start exercising — I will seek my dream world; I will have confidence, approval and other benefits of a healthy and appealing body.

No longer will I avoid having partners or opponents view or ignore my body at tennis hours. And, I am determined to be free of the windlessness and palpitations that I have after great points on the court — some that cause me worry that I might not survive the set."

But in the dawn, what is reality is that initiating a routine of self-control and exercise is like the Boston weather fre—But the women who are devoted to having supple and agile bodies are enthusiastic about the benefits and pure joy they derive from the exercise routines supervised by Beverly Barr at her Temple Street, Boston, Salon.

At all times be aware that your body will be with you for the rest of your life. How you treat your body, is how your body will treat you. Avoid exercise salons that feature machinery. Machinery breaks down tissue, capillaries and can play havoc internally . Select an instructor who has schooling in exercise, who knows how to construct exercises. Attending a class that is small insures you will get individual attention. A good teacher can spot a problem fairly easily and give you the extra attention you might need to correct it. The class should consist of exercise for every part of your body. I might add that in my own salon we eliminate facial exercises. The teacher should have a nutrition background. You may not want a diet, but it is fun and helpful to have an instructor who can share with you some good updated nutritional hints.

I have a favorite saying that I have coined and proven over the years. You are not a football player, nor are you planning to be one. Therefore you do not have to huff or puff, push or pull to realize your goals. Here is another "precious point" (in class I usually refer to a precious point as being an area one wants to get rid of). Do not think you have to touch the floor to derive the benefit you are looking for. Not everyone is built to touch the floor.

Take proper exercise, and exercise your way into a world of flattery. Take the option of exercising your way into a world of confidence and well being.

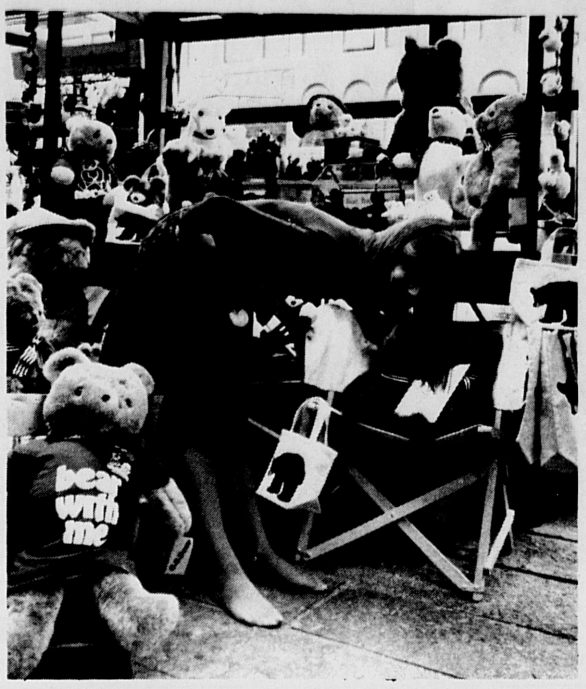

When I go to my exercise class, (I leave my troubles at the door and enjoy the friendly atmosphere that Beverly created. When I leave, I take a feeling of well being with me.)

Beverly Barr is my daily escape, my means of relaxation, and my source of physical energy. The ordeal of managing a cart seven days a week at the Faneuil Hall Marketplace is not extremely endurable unless you are fit physically and mentally. Fortunately, I have found total peace of mind while exersizing with Bev.

Nancy Atkins, Boston, Mass.
Owner, The Bear Necessities

(While I've never had a weight problem, I depend on the exercises for muscle tone and getting re-energized. That's great therapy psychologically in and of itself — in addition, both Bev and Janice keep the routine disciplined and fun. I am now every much pregnant still exercising.)

Sheila G.

Bev's the best. She's not only the most qualified person in her field in New England; she takes a personal interest in — really CARES about — each and every person who comes to her salon.

Kathryn Dinovo

Beverly Barr's classes make all the difference in how I feel. An hour's exercise is the pause that refreshes.

Betty Cook

("I can't imagine my life without Beverly's exercise program — I feel healthier and more fit than I have been anytime in my life, I've learned to more fully understand my body and its needs through my classes with Bev over the last 7 years — anyhow."

GARDEN ROOMS

Hilda Morrill

The home and gardens of Helen Snow Wilson Goddard on picturesque Valley Road, Nahant, have been visited by thousands of people — if not actually in person, at least via newspaper and magazine articles. The quaint Cape, as well as its dynamic owner and designer, have been the subject of countless articles in such publications as Better Homes and Gardens, Horticulture, American Home, Flower and Garden, the Boston Globe and The Boston Herald, to name a few.

Helen, a past president of the Nahant Garden Club and Flower Show Judge, is well known among horticulturists and garden enthusiasts for her lectures and writings on gardening and flower arranging. MacMillan has published two of her books — The Gardener's Book of Arrangements and The Gardener's Christmas Book which is now out of print.

It is hard to believe that over 45 years ago the house stood alone in a field of sumac and daisies. In that time, Helen has transformed it into a landscape architect's dream reminiscent of European gardens and villas. Hundreds of specimens of flowers, bushes, vines and trees are planted in her gardens. A mere 11,000 feet — the area seems to be many times larger because of the careful planning and design by Helen. She feels that gardens should be like rooms, each one having a distinct function and providing "a feeling of intimacy" since after all the principles of landscape design are not unlike those of interior design. A walk through her gardens takes one through a rose garden, vegetable garden, cutting garden, leisure areas and work area complete with compost bins and potting bench.

The inside of the house is just as startling. Everywhere you look there are plants and flowers. Even her color schemes reflect garden themes. Over the years walls have been knocked down and windows replaced so that the outside is clearly visible from every room. The living room boasts a gorgeous and functional conservatory. The dining room has floor to ceiling window overlooking the verranda and leisure areas, and even the family room which was once the garage has French Doors which open out into a terrace.

An unbelievably 71 years young, Helen plays tennis every morning, paints beautiful seascapes and landscapes as well as remarkably detailed flowers and fruits, makes all her own clothes, designs and makes original hand-painted jewelry, antiques old furniture, is an accomplished amateur photographer, and is presently teaching herself how to play the organ. Until recently she was an avid ice skater but after breaking her arm twice decided that was one activity she could forgo.

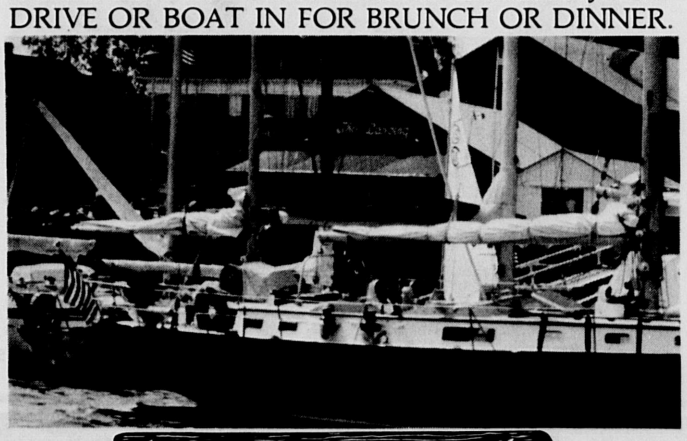

Also during this time she has written three children's books which she illustrated herself in full color. The nature studies are darling and perfect for the little ones. Helen is presently looking for a publisher for these gems.

During the club season Helen may have as many as three lectures a week, the preparation for which is tremendous. Recently she has changed her format somewhat especially during November and December before the Christmas holidays. She decorates her home completely and holds open-house for small groups. The response has been unbelievable and she already has many bookings for next season!

Helen's favorite expression is "Beauty should greet you everywhere you look." This was clearly evident when "T" visited Helen recently in picturesque Nahant.

SUMMER CURTAINS

A scene from the Opera Company of Boston's rollicking production of Jacques Offenbach's "opera co mique" — "Orpheus In The Underworld" which was part of the Sarah Caldwell season.

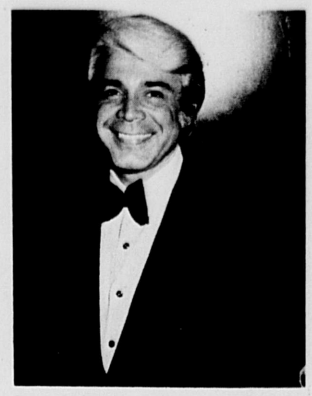

The "Rock" himself — Rock Hudson is starring in "Camelot" during a summer theatre tour . . . He has several New England appearances scheduled.

Sandy Dennis stars in the Broadway smash — "The Royal Family" — which is touring the summer circuit . . . she will appear at the North Shore Music Theatre August 1-8th.

America's favorite musical is rolling along the "straw hat trail" — Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma" — it is playing at many New England Summer Theatres during the '77 season.

Jerry Vale, the popular vocalist will appear with Caterina Valenti at the Cape Cod Melody Tent in Hyannis — in a two person musical revue . . . they are slated for August 1-7th.

The summer "staw-hat" season has rung up the curtain on the 1977 season. The North Shore Music Theatre opened with Rodgers and Hammerstein's classic "Oklahoma" and the South Shore Music Circus got off to a musical start with "Stars of the Lawrence Welk Show" featuring Myron Floren. In Beverly, Mass. the North Shore Music Theatre presented the all-American historic musical "Oklahoma" which contains some of Rodgers and Hammerstein's most memorable music. This production in some way missed the boat. The direction of Joel Zwick gave an all over static quality, as a matter of fact there was a lack of direction. The tempo was lack-lustered. It did not have the "freshness" that this particular musical needs. Christine Andreas and David-James Carroll in the title roles were adequate, nothing more, nothing less. Miss Andreas sang with light voiced beauty, but I could not understand one word of the spoken dialogue, due to the assumed "regional dialect".

Joel Zwick's Oklahoma was misdirected lack-lustered Americana gift package that remained untied.

Mr. Carroll is too fragile a Curly and lacks the robust quality of the role. Vocally he had a habit of straying from pitch. He looked more like a "high school" senior in the final performance of the scholastic year. He does not seem comfortable in the role. The only real professional performance in the company was the Aunt Eller of Jane Rose who knew what "Oklahoma" was all about. Another fine performance was that of David Lee Taylor as Will Parker. The Ado Annie Carnes of Barbara Miles, lacked the vitality and vivacity this delightful role requires. It did not have the punch. The choreography of Loi Leabo was undistinguished and bore no likeness to the original DeMille patterns. This musical depends much on the dancing as part of the story line and in this production it just did not coordinate. The wonderful story is there as well as the now "classic" music, but this Americana "gift-package" remains untied.

Myron Floren and The Lawrence Welk Show is just cream and sugar if variety shows are your cup of T: full of charisma, enchantment and "sell."

Now at the South Shore Music Circus we had a musical revue that featured — Myron Floren and the Lawrence Welk Stars. If this type of variety show is your cup of tea and according to the advance sales, there were a tremendous amount of "tea-drinkers" — there was plenty of cream and sugar. The revue starred Guy and Ralna, Bobby and Cissy, Sandi, Gail and Mary Lou, Anacani and Ken Delo. They did all the things they do on the idiot box and more. I will grant this (by audience watching) the "stars" do have some hypnotic charisma that totally enchants the viewers. They do know how to "package and sell". I guess one could chalk it up to "show business" and the wonder of it all. What they do, each in their respective areas, they do well and routinely. Pat Principe, the musical director gave excellent backing and the South Shore Music Circus orchestra never sounded so good. Who said the American syndrome of "apple pie and peaches and cream" was extinct? I'll take tea black and see!!

Sarah Caldwell Boston's great "C" gave a new look and freshness to Orfeo ed Euridyce with opera's superstar, Shirley Verrett in the title role.

. . . Boston's great "C" . . . Sarah Caldwell of the Opera Company of Boston brought her season to a close with Gluck's masterpiece "Orfeo ed Euridice" with opera's superstar Shirley Verrett in the title role. This was a unique and interesting experience as only Sarah Caldwell can create. She gave a total "new-look" to the work, which is always presented in a traditional manner. The "freshness" worked and with the staging of the great "C" it fused into a totally magnificent evening of opera. Shirley Verrett is the one singer in the world who can do anything vocally (a range that is incredible) and do it well in dazzling manner. She can also act physically as well as vocally. Orfeo is one of her great roles, but then what role isn't? Her name association with this Gluck work will join that of the great British singer, the late Kathleen Ferrier, whose performance of this role brought her into the operatic hall of fame. Miss Verrett was joined by two superb singers, Benita Valente as Euridice and Marianna Christos as Amor. The ballet sequences were effectively handled and Miss Caldwell's placement of the chorus in the orchestra lent a magic and mythical "feel" to the work. This was one of OCB's finest productions to date. As a non-subscription bonus to the Opera Company's season, Sarah Caldwell and company proved with Jaques Offenbach's rollicking operatic satire — "Orpheus in the Underworld" that opera can be fun! With a delightful cast headed by Donald Gramm, Maralin Niska and the "cameo" performance of veteran star, Margaret Hamilton (she was the Wicked Witch in the film of "Wizard of Oz") this fast paced comic work (in English translation) was masterfully done. The fun and fantasy conceals so much difficult vocal work, however the stars were well aware of it and sang the "comique" style beautifully. This extra of the OCB season was a welcomed addition to the Boston musical season. Leave it to Sarah to make something from a bit of nothing. What's more she makes it palatable!! The season has "lit the lights — and the curtain is up"!!

Copley Plaza observance of Sundial Day aids Eye Research

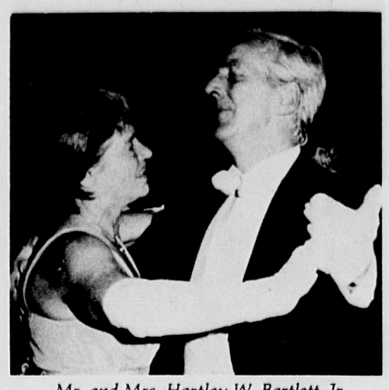

Aiding the "SUNDIAL DAY," Tuesday, June 21, Governor Michael S. Dukakis and Mayor Kevin H. White issued proclamations urging all citizens to become aware of the pressing need to support eye research. June 21, the day of the year with the greatest number of daylight hours was the ideal time to make a commitment "to give another hour of light" to those threatened with blindness.

"SUNDIAL DAY", June 21, was celebrated in a special way by Boston's Copley Plaza Hotel. Director of Sales and Marketing, Chris Wall, stated: "The management of this hotel recognizes the importance of the preservation of vision and elimination of blindness; therefore, they donated $1.00 to the Eye Research Institute for every SUNDIAL card presented to their staff with the purchase of breakfast, lunch, dinner or cocktails on June 21."

Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Schroeder of Brookline . . . Mrs. Schroeder served on the Boston City Hospital Charity Fund "Pops" concert benefit committee. She shared her duties with Mrs. Arthur Fiedler.

A Boston Tradition

Mr. and Mrs. Hartley W. Bartlett, Jr. among Boston's best waltzers.

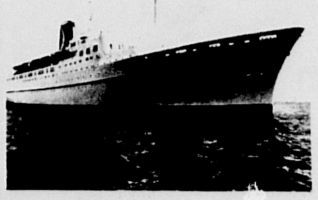

Viennese waltzing was first introduced in Boston by Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis, Jr., a Society belle of the period, and at that time it was called an "indecorous exhibition." Waltzing became really popular when Johanne Strauss played in Boston for the International Peace Jubilee in 1872. He composed the "Jubilee Waltz" especially for the occasion. Enthusiasm for the dance waxed and waned during subsequent decades, and with the advent of the Jazz Age, the foxtrot, tango, and the Charleston, was all but obliterated.

In 1934 Mrs. E. Schier Welch and the late Mr. Welch revived the dance in the drawing room of their Louisburg Square home. Music was furnished by Phonograph records, and guests were required to wear formal attire. Soon subscription dances were organized by the late Mrs. Russell Howell in the lovely Ballroom of the Somerset Hotel. Later they moved to the ballroom of The Copley Plaza, and are still held there where all ages from 18 up whirl to three-quarter time under the crystal chandeliers. For many years the thermostat in the ballroom has been set up 62 degrees for the Waltz Evenings for Viennese waltzing is quite a warm-up. Formal invitations to the series include a note "Ladies must wear evening gown suitable for waltzing; gentlemen white or black tie."

These popular parties have been copied in New York, San Francisco, Washington, D.C., and Philadelphia.

The last of the 1976-1977 series was held on May 13th.

ROBERT KIPNESS AT QUANDRUM GALLERY

The poetic landscapes of Robert Kipniss are dreams which lead us to discover the special unity of man and nature, a realization so poignant they arouse in most viewers a sense that they know that particular place, that once they were there. His paintings are about returning and remembering.

Science is opposed to a poetic interpretation of nature — sense versus sensibility — and implies not only understanding, but aggression, power, and conquest; whereas art in its highest form makes one feel part not only of nature, but of the whole history of mankind. It puts one at rest, at peace, in balance again. It does this by showing that the forces which move us are the forces which move everything else. When looking at a landscape, we see that the forces which exist in nature are the forces which exist in us. A structured, balanced landscape gives one a personal sense of order. Art gives one the feeling of continuity in the past and, as a consequence, continuity in the future.
